Contents by country

Entries are grouped by country, alphabetically. Within a country they run by class year, earliest first, then by name. Every entry states its programme and class year.

Country is the value the roster carried at the time of listing. It is not a citizenship field, and the research did not re-derive it — “Canada” means the roster filed that person under Canada, nothing more. Variant spellings of the same country have been merged so a country appears once; every merge is declared in Notes on the record at the end.

Founder, Shuhada Organization

A Hazara physician; Afghanistan's first Minister of Women's Affairs in 2001–2003 and a Deputy Chair of the interim administration. Founder of the Shuhada Organization, which runs 55 schools, 12 clinics and three hospitals in Afghanistan plus a school and hospital for Afghan refugees in Quetta. Right Livelihood laureate and a Nobel Peace Prize nominee. Published the memoir Outspoken in 2024, shortlisted for the Moore Prize. Spoke at a Geneva meeting on accountability and reconciliation in May 2026 and at Harvard in March 2026, insisting women be included from the start of any peace process rather than symbolically.

Ilir Meta CLASS OF 2002

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Leader, Freedom Party of Albania (Partia e Lirisë)

He was Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Economy, Trade and Energy. Prime Minister of Albania 1999–2002; Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister; speaker of the Parliament; and President of the Republic of Albania from 2017 to 2022. He founded the LSI and now leads the Freedom party, the principal opposition. Legal status, dated and staged: on 21 October 2024 he was arrested on the order of Spak, Albania's Special anti-corruption structure, in an investigation into his wealth, on suspicion of corruption, money laundering and Non-declaration of assets. He was subsequently formally charged — reported in May 2025 — with corruption, money laundering, tax evasion and concealing property from the authorities, and faces up to twelve years. Prosecutors allege that as speaker he facilitated contracts between Albania's largest mobile operator and a relative of his wife, and that some USD 460,000 spent on lobbying in the United States was unaccounted for. His former spouse Monika Kryemadhi, also a Former Leader of the party, faces similar accusations. This is an arrest and a charge. It is not a conviction and nothing beyond it may be inferred. And the defence is part of the record: he publicly alleges the case is a politically motivated attack by Prime Minister EDI Rama using Spak as an "Anti-opposition task force".

Jose Patricio CLASS OF 1994

LastKnown · Business · role verified 2008

President, BP Angola

"Country Manager — BP Angola". Traced to BP's Angolan business, where he was described as President of BP Angola in 2008, commenting on Sonangol's approval of the contract programme for the block 31 deep-water development — the first time Sonangol had approved a programme of contracts in that form. Do not conflate with José Patrício (b. 9 March 1954, Luanda), the Angolan diplomat who opened Angola's Washington embassy in 1993, was ambassador to the United Nations 2000–2001 and is now ambassador to Türkiye and Georgia.

Reinaldo L. S. Trindade CLASS OF 2001

Current · Business · role verified 2025

Founder and Chairman, Grupo Mestres & Serviços

The founding date is the whole story and the roster entry does not carry it: he founded Mestres E Serviços in 1991 — one of the first private companies to Emerge in Angola, sixteen years after independence from Portugal and a full decade before the civil war ended. He built an industrial business during an active civil war. The Group today: more than thirty-five years of activity, focused on the oil sector and spanning construction, hydraulic engineering, building maintenance, electrical work, the sale and installation of high-technology equipment, manufacture of building and chemical materials, import and export, and consultancy and feasibility studies — the full-service contractor model that oil economies produce. He took the group into a partnership with Huawei, discussed at the World Entrepreneurs Convention in Daegu in 2013, and has relaunched its corporate identity after thirty-five years; he also appears at Harmonia Seguros, an Angolan insurer. Angolan private capital of this vintage is almost never described in the English-language press, and a Global Leader for Tomorrow who built one of the country's first private companies.

Ricardo Lopez Murphy CLASS OF 1993

Current · Government · role verified 2025

Leader and founder, Republicanos Unidos

Economist and politician; Minister of Defence and then Minister of economy of Argentina, the latter for a fortnight in 2001 before resigning over his austerity package. Founded the Republicanos Unidos party in 2020, left the Encuentro Federal bloc in March 2025 for a more libertarian profile and formed a Republicanos Unidos monobloc in the Chamber of Deputies, and announced on 5 August 2025 that he would stand for National Deputy for the City of Buenos Aires at the elections of 26 October 2025, running separately from La Libertad Avanza. The outcome of that election was not established in this encyclopedia. The roster records no title for him.

Joaquin A. Cottani CLASS OF 1994

LastKnown · Finance · Government · role verified 2024

Secretary of Economic Policy, Ministry of Economy of Argentina

Argentine economist, long associated with Domingo Cavallo, appointed Secretary of Economic Policy — the number two to Economy Minister Luis Caputo — when Javier Milei took office in December 2023. He resigned in June 2024, publicly citing personal reasons, his family having remained in New York; reporting attributed the departure additionally to the treatment of Cavallo by Milei's circle and to differences with the finance secretary Pablo Quirno. Jose Luis Daza, formerly of JP Morgan and Deutsche Bank, replaced him. He has since argued publicly that the peso should be floated. The roster records no title for him.

Mauricio E. Wior CLASS OF 1998

Current · Business · Finance · role verified 2025

Director, IRSA Inversiones y Representaciones SA

He has been a director of IRSA since 2006, eight years after the class year. At selection he was Chief Executive of Movicom Bellsouth (1991–2004) — Argentina's first mobile operator, which he ran for thirteen years from its launch — and he later became BellSouth's Vice-President for Latin America. That is a founder-operator of a national telecommunications network recorded as a Non-Executive director of a property company. IRSA is Argentina's largest real-estate group and its principal shareholder network reaches into Israel; he is also a director of Shufersal, the Israeli supermarket chain, which is part of the same corporate constellation — a quiet cross-border directorship of exactly the kind.

Federico Sturzenegger CLASS OF 1999

Current · Government · Finance · Academia · role verified 2026

Minister of Deregulation and State Transformation, Government of the Argentine Republic

The roster reads "President, Banco de la Ciudad de Buenos Aires" — a post he held from 2008 to 2013, so February 2012 falls inside it. And he was not at that bank in 1999: at selection he was an academic economist, and he became Secretary of Economic Policy of Argentina in 2001. He is now Minister of Deregulation and State Transformation of Argentina, sworn in by President Javier Milei in July 2024 — the Minister responsible for the "Chainsaw", the programme of repealing regulations and dismantling state bodies that defines the Milei government. Before that: National Deputy, and President of the Central Bank of Argentina (2015–2018), so he has run both the Central Bank and the deregulation ministry. Economics at La Plata, doctorate at MIT, taught at Universidad de San Andrés and the Harvard Kennedy School. In August 2026 he was summoned for the first time to the government's political table under Karina Milei, with the message that his initiatives must pass that filter before reaching Congress; the presidential spokesperson then publicly confirmed he "has the support of the president and the entire government".

Cecilia Felgueras CLASS OF 2000

LastKnown · Government · role verified 2003

Deputy Chief of Government of the City of Buenos Aires, Gobierno de la Ciudad de Buenos Aires

She was Vice-jefa de Gobierno of the City of Buenos Aires from 7 August 2000 to 10 December 2003 — the first woman ever to hold the post — serving under Anibal Ibarra in a city of three million with its own autonomous constitution. Immediately before that she was an Interventor of PAMI, The National health and social insurance agency for Argentine pensioners and one of the largest and most politically fraught public bodies in the country, and Secretary of Social Development of the city.

Eduardo S. Elsztain CLASS OF 2000

Current · Business · Finance · role verified 2026

Chairman, IRSA Inversiones y Representaciones SA; Cresud SACIFyA

He has chaired IRSA throughout. Born 26 January 1960. He chairs IRSA, Argentina's largest real-estate company, listed in New York; Cresud, one of Latin America's largest farmland owners, on Nasdaq; Brasilagro, its Brazilian equivalent on the NYSE; and Austral gold in Australia — so a single Argentine group holds shopping centres and offices, vast tracts of South American farmland, and mines. He was backed early by George Soros and is one of the most consequential private figures in the Argentine economy. A Same-organisation pair across two class years: Mauricio E. Wior (1999) is a sitting director of IRSA and Elsztain is its Chairman. The Forum took the chairman and a director of the same Argentine company in consecutive years — the fourth such pair found, and the first that spans two class years. In 2026 Cresud has been in dispute over water allocations in Mendoza during an aquifer emergency, and Elsztain's interests have been drawn into an argument over electricity capacity in San Juan after ENRE allocated most of a provincial line to a mining company. Reported disputes, no findings, none asserted. He is described in the Argentine press as close to President Milei.

Andy Freire CLASS OF 2002

Current · Business · NGO · Government · role verified 2025

Chairman, Endeavor Argentina; and co-founder, Axialent, Endeavor Argentina

Endeavor was founded in Argentina in 1997, so the two of them sit at the global and the Founding-country ends of the same organisation, selected one year apart, and neither roster entry mentions it. "Chief of Staff of Advisors — Propuesta Republicana (pro)" — he was inside Mauricio Macri's party machine before Macri became President of Argentina, and he later served as Minister of modernisation, innovation and technology for the City of Buenos Aires. And he is a Founder first: he co-founded Officenet, the Argentine office-supplies company sold to Staples, and co-founded Axialent, a culture-and-leadership consultancy; he has written widely read books on entrepreneurship in Spanish.

Johan Roets CLASS OF 2002

LastKnown · Finance · role verified 2020

Head of Personal and Business Banking, Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (Argentina), formerly Standard Bank Argentina

Two members of the same 2002 class were directors at Africa's largest banking group, and neither entry mentions the other. Direct distribution is the branch, call-centre and digital channel estate, which in a bank of that size is the machinery through which retail customers actually reach it. Head of Personal and Business Banking at the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (Argentina) — the former Standard Bank Argentina, which ICBC bought in 2012.

Martin Bohmer CLASS OF 2002

Current · Law · Academia · Government · role verified 2025

Professor of Law, Universidad de San Andrés; and Associate Professor of Philosophy of Law, Universidad de Buenos Aires, Universidad de San Andrés

He was dean at the Universidad de Palermo law faculty, which still lists him. LLM and JSD from Yale; a Fulbright scholar and Yale Law School Visiting Scholar; winner of the Konex Prize in philosophy of law; a researcher at the Instituto Gioja; and on the team of the Centro de Estudios Constitucionales of Mexico's Supreme Court. Founding a law School is how a legal culture gets changed over a generation, and he has done it once and reformed another. An Argentine legal academic who also advises a Mexican constitutional court is precisely the kind of Transnational, invisible influence.

Christian Gruenberg CLASS OF 2003

Current · NGO · Academia · role verified 2025

Director, CIPPEC

He directed the anti-corruption programme at Fundación Poder Ciudadano from 1997 to 2003, so the class of 2003 caught him in his last year there, and he had previously directed Transparency International Argentina. And the entry does not say what Poder Ciudadano is: it has been the Argentine chapter of transparency international since 1993. So the Forum honoured the head of the anti-corruption programme of Transparency International's Argentine chapter, and recorded it as "Director — Poder Ciudadano". The method is the interesting part: he used public hearings on government projects to force government, business, multilateral institutions, community organisations and citizens into the same room over corruption — and was elected an Ashoka Fellow in 1999 for it. Law and public policy at the Universidad de Buenos Aires, the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Chile, and the Harvard Kennedy School in 2005. Now a director at CIPPEC in Buenos Aires, on the board of FUNDAR in Mexico, and a consultant to Argentina's Anti-Corruption Office on transparency and corruption control in provincial governments, with UNDP support.

Joined the Qantas board in April 2024 and became its chair in September 2024, succeeding Richard Goyder after the Qantas governance crisis. Audette Exel CLASS OF 1995Current · NGO · Finance · role verified 2026*Founder and Chair, Adara Group*

New Zealand-born lawyer and banker; ran Bermuda Commercial Bank in the 1990s — one of the first women to lead a publicly listed bank anywhere — and later a Non-Executive director of Westpac and Suncorp. Founded the Adara Group in 1998 on an unusual structure: two corporate advisory businesses, Adara Advisors and Adara Partners, whose profits fund Adara Development, so the "business for purpose" is structural rather than philanthropic — Adara Development reaches more than 50,000 people in extreme poverty a year, working in Nepal and Uganda in maternal, newborn and child health and remote community development. Officer of the order of Australia. Active through 2025–2026, with Adara's Nepal and Sydney teams responding to flooding, and speaking publicly on climate.

Jost Stollmann CLASS OF 1995LastKnown · Technology · Finance · role verified 2017*Non-executive director, Tyro Payments Limited*

He then moved to Australia. Chief Executive of Tyro payments 2004–2016, the Australian challenger payments bank and later an ASX-listed company; moved to a full-time Executive Director role in a 2016 restructure, then retired as an Executive Director in July 2017 and became a Non-Executive Director. 2017 Is the last dated evidence; whether he remains on the board has not been confirmed. He did not found Tyro — it was founded in February 2003 by Andrew Rothwell, Paul Wood and Peter Haig, and several profiles get this wrong.

Molly Harriss Olson CLASS OF 1995LastKnown · NGO · Business · role verified 2024*Chief Executive Officer, Fairtrade Australia & New Zealand*

Director, Eco Futures Pty Ltd. American-Australian sustainability specialist. Founding Executive Director of President Clinton's Council on sustainable development, working in the White House — so at selection she was running a US presidential council, which the roster's consultancy title conceals entirely. Later Chair of Fairtrade International, where she drove a new constitution giving producers and workers half ownership of the organisation and introduced the Fairtrade Sourcing Programs.

William G. O'Chee CLASS OF 1995

Current · Business · Media · role verified 2025

Partner, Himalaya Consulting

Principal Investment Strategist, Mughal Capital Limited. William George "Bill" O'CHEE, born 1965, was a national party senator for Queensland 1990–1999 — and he entered the Senate at Twenty-four, the youngest person ever to sit in it, and the first person of Chinese Ancestry elected to the Australian federal Parliament. So at selection in 1995 he was a 30-year-old sitting senator, and the Forum's later-edited title records a finance job instead. Rhodes Scholar; also an Olympic bobsledder for Australia.

George M. Kailis CLASS OF 1998

Current · Business · Academia · NGO · role verified 2026

Executive Chairman; Professor of Management and Law; President, M.G. Kailis Group; University of Notre Dame Australia; The Hellenic Initiative Australia

The group was founded by his family — Michael Kailis is independently notable — so this is an evidenced kinship entry. He holds B.Juris, LLB (Hons), MBA and PhD and is Professor of Management and Law in Notre Dame's School of business at Fremantle, specialising in natural resource policy and Fisheries management — so the academic work and the family business are the same subject, which is rarer and more coherent than the roster suggests. In April 2026 he joined the global board of the Hellenic Initiative, the Greek diaspora philanthropic organisation, having supported and led fundraising for The Hellenic Initiative Australia since its inception and now serving as its President.

He created the Future fund, Australia's sovereign wealth fund, and later chaired its board of Guardians, standing down in 2024. Chairman of nine Entertainment Co. From 2016; he resigned in June 2024 following an altercation with a journalist at Canberra Airport — reported and acknowledged, no charge or proceeding established, and none is asserted. Chief Conductor, Sydney Symphony Orchestra

It was not true in 1999, when she was Music Director of Opera Australia and of the Bergen Philharmonic. Aden Ridgeway CLASS OF 2000

LastKnown · Government · NGO · role verified 2023

Co-founder and partner; and board member, Muurrbay Aboriginal Language and Culture Co-operative, Cox Inall Ridgeway

The omission is historically serious: he was the only indigenous member of the Australian Parliament for the whole of his term, and only the second Aboriginal Australian ever to sit in it. He is a Gumbaynggirr man, born on the Bellwood Aboriginal Reserve at Nambucca Heads, and he was Deputy Leader of the Australian Democrats from April 2001 to August 2002 under Natasha Stott Despoja. Jonathan Mills CLASS OF 2000

LastKnown · Arts · Academia · role verified 2014

Director, Edinburgh International Festival

Sir Jonathan Mills, born 21 March 1963, is an Australian composer and Festival Director, and he was director of the Edinburgh International Festival from 2006 to 2014 — so the entry was already wrong on 16 February 2012, when he was running one of the largest arts festivals in the world. His own work is substantial: the opera the Eternity man, commissioned by the Genesis Foundation in 2003, and the oratorio Sandakan Threnody, which won the Prix Italia in 2005 — a piece about Australian prisoners of war. He had earlier directed the Melbourne and Brisbane festivals, and he trained in acoustics, which is where the roster's odd title comes from. Since Edinburgh he has been closely involved with the Edinburgh International Culture summit, which brings culture ministers together, and holds positions at King's College London and the Ian Potter Foundation; he delivered the 2025 Keith Murdoch Oration. Knighted; ao and ac. Nicola Benedetti has directed the Edinburgh festival since 2023.

Steven Cain CLASS OF 2000

Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer, Coles Group Limited

"Co-Founder, Goingreen" is real: a former Asda marketing director, he saw Reva electric cars on a trip to India in May 2002 and with Nick Hewson took a UK licence in September 2002, launching them as the G-wiz — the small electric car that became a familiar sight in central London years before mass-market EVs existed. He left to run retailers: recruited by Coles Myer in Australia in 2003–04, and Managing Director and Chief Executive of Coles Group — one of Australia's two supermarket chains, with tens of thousands of staff — from 2018 until he retired on 1 May 2023, succeeded by Leah Weckert. He remained briefly for the handover and is now described as an adviser. A man who imported the first popular electric car into Britain and then ran an entire nation's grocery supply is exactly the "you have never heard of him" profile.

Member, United Nations Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women; and Professor in the Practice of Politics, Australian National University, United Nations CEDAW Committee

Ridgeway was her Deputy Leader from April 2001 to August 2002 — and his entry is completely blank. The Forum recorded the Leader of a party and left the Deputy Leader of the same party empty, in the same class year. She entered the Senate in 1995 at twenty-six, the youngest woman ever to sit in the Australian Parliament, and led the Australian Democrats from 2001 to 2002; then Australia's Ambassador for women and girls, 2013–2016; founding chair of our watch, on preventing violence against women. Catherine Freeman CLASS OF 2002

Current · Sport · NGO · role verified 2025

Founder, Catherine Freeman Foundation

An Olympic champion has no employer. Filing her under NGO;Other is indefensible. Sport has been on the pending vocabulary list since alongside religion and law; this entry is the one that makes it unavoidable, because there is no Second-best answer here as there was for Arkadiusz Nowak. Cathy Freeman won the 400 metres at the Sydney Olympics on 25 September 2000, having lit the Olympic Cauldron at the opening ceremony ten days earlier — the first Aboriginal Australian to win an individual Olympic gold Medal, running in front of her own country, and she carried both the Australian and the Aboriginal flags on her LAP of honour. It is arguably the single most watched moment in Australian history, and the Forum selected her eighteen months later. She founded the Catherine Freeman Foundation, working on School attendance and education outcomes in remote indigenous communities, and was appointed a companion of the order of Australia (ac). And she is the second Indigenous Australian in the cohort after Aden Ridgeway — whose entry was also effectively empty.

Carina L. Dennis CLASS OF 2003

Current · Academia · Media · role verified 2025

Secondary school science teacher; formerly Senior Editor, Nature, Independent

She was a Senior Editor at Nature, and the class of 2003 caught her there. And the entry cannot show what she did in that chair: she coordinated Nature's publication of the human genome sequence — which she describes as the highlight of her career, and which is one of the handful of single publishing events in modern science that everyone can name. She co-authored "The Human Genome" with Richard Gallagher, with a foreword by James D. Watson. A geneticist with a DPhil from Oxford and a 1993 Nhmrc Menzies Fellowship. And then she left science publishing altogether to Teach Science in a Sydney High School — her third career, after medical scientist and editor. That is the sharpest downward-by-choice trajectory this encyclopedia has found, and it is not a decline: the person who ushered the human genome into print now teaches fifteen-year-olds. Any honest account of what "Global Leader for Tomorrow" turned out to mean has to include her.

Greg Hunt CLASS OF 2003

Current · Government · Healthcare · Academia · role verified 2026

Honorary Melbourne Enterprise Professor; and Senior Adviser, University of Melbourne; Alvarez and Marsal

Two roster defects in one entry, and one of them is in a column nothing has flagged before. The check was run rather than recommended, and the defect is Bounded: across the whole roster "Australian" appears exactly once and "Australia" twice, so Australia's true count is three and a naive Group-by returns two. It is the only Demonym in the column — every other value is a country name. And it compounds the Alain de Botton finding that the column records nationality rather than location. The career the entry could not Anticipate: the class of 2003 caught him as a backbench MP, and he became Minister for the environment and then Minister for health and aged care from 2017 to 2022 — which means he was Australia's health Minister through the entire COVID-19 pandemic, responsible for the vaccine procurement and the public health response of a Nation of twenty-six million people. Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer, Sendle, to its liquidation, Sendle

The entry's "space and Environmental Technologies" fits an early career that ran through the CSIRO, where he was Executive Director, Development at Australia's national science agency. He is a recognised authority on innovation, sustainability and the circular economy, and co-author of "The Sixth Wave". In 2014 he co-founded Sendle, an Australian Parcel-delivery company built as a carbon-neutral Courier network for small business, and led it as Chief Executive. And it has just failed: in January 2026 Sendle's parent, the Fast Group, announced it would Cease operations and close Sendle, and Sendle entered liquidation in February 2026. This is the second company failure recorded in this encyclopedia, after Anna Maria ARTONI's family group — and unlike hers, this one is seven months old and unambiguous. Ruben K. Vardanian CLASS OF 2001

Current · Finance · Government · role verified 2026

Former State Minister of Nagorno-Karabakh; imprisoned, Republic of Artsakh (former); formerly Troika Dialog

The most severe legal entry in this encyclopedia, and it must be stated with every date and every stage. He founded and ran Troika Dialog, the first and largest independent investment bank in post-soviet Russia, becoming its Chief Executive at twenty-five; he sold it to Sberbank in 2011–12 and co-founded the Moscow School of management Skolkovo and the Aurora humanitarian Initiative. What happened next: he moved from Russia to Nagorno-karabakh in 2022 and served as State Minister of the self-declared Republic of Artsakh. He was detained by Azerbaijani authorities on 27 September 2023 during the mass exodus of ethnic Armenians that followed Azerbaijan's military takeover of the region. On 17 February 2026 a Baku military court sentenced him to twenty years' imprisonment — the first ten in prison and the remainder in a Strict-regime Correctional facility — on multiple charges including terrorism, war crimes and crimes against Humanity. Prosecutors had sought a life sentence. Reports differ on the number of counts, giving 19 and 42; the file records that they differ rather than picking one. And the fairness of the proceedings is itself a documented, attributed dispute: Amnesty International described the sentence as the culmination of a "travesty" of a trial against ethnic Armenian leaders. That is Amnesty's characterisation, recorded as such. This encyclopedia records the court's decision as a fact about the court and takes no view on the underlying allegations.

Vice President, Strategy; and Chairman of GENA, Sovos Compliance

A pure "behind the scenes" entry and one of the best in the class. The roster entry — "e-business rapporteur, International Chamber of Commerce" — is itself a description of private rule-making, and he never left that World. He co-founded Trustweaver in 2001, which became a leading company in E-invoicing and E-archiving compliance and was acquired by Sovos in early 2018; he is now Sovos's Vice President for strategy. And here is the part that matters: he spent eleven years as Vice Chair then chair of Gena's public policy and compliance working group, was named Vice Chair of GENA in December 2023, and is now its Chairman. GENA sets the global standards for electronic Invoicing — the machinery through which Vat is assessed and collected across the European Union and beyond. Minister-President, Government of the French Community of Belgium

He was not Minister-President in 2000: at selection he was Belgium's federal Minister for Economic Affairs and scientific research, appointed in 1999 — so the file records a regional premiership he took seven years later and omits the federal ministry he actually held. He ran two of Belgium's Federated governments at once for part of that time: Minister-President of Wallonia 2007–2014 and Minister-President of the French community 2008–2019 — and in Belgium's layered constitution those are separate governments with separate parliaments, which is a structural fact about the country worth stating plainly. Treat the roster's organisation as unreliable for this entry. DYNASTIC, evidenced: eldest daughter of Abílio Diniz, who built Grupo Pão de Açúcar into Brazil's largest retailer, and granddaughter of its founder Valentim — three generations. She ran the group's stores as a senior executive, then moved wholly into education philanthropy: founded Instituto Pão de Açúcar in the 1990s, helped found the TODOS Pela Educação movement for basic-education quality in 2006, and presides over the board of Instituto Península.

Chairman of the Board, Icatu Seguros

Director, Bank Icatu — and the change of institution matters: Banco Icatu was split, its investment-banking side eventually merging into what became Itaú BBA, while the insurance business Icatu Seguros remained and is now the largest independent insurer in Brazil. So the roster's organisation no longer exists in that form and the search only works through the successor.

DYNASTIC, evidenced: son of Olavo Setubal, who built Banco Itaú and was mayor of São Paulo and briefly Brazil's foreign minister. Roberto was Chief Executive of Itaú from 1994 — so he had just taken the job at selection — and led the 2008 merger with Unibanco that created Itaú Unibanco, the largest bank in Latin America; he stepped down as Chief Executive in 2017 and is Co-Chairman of the board.

Federal Deputy, and former Minister of Environment and Climate Change, Chamber of Deputies of Brazil

The roster says "Environmental Activist" and that understates her twice over. Maria Osmarina Marina Silva was born in a rubber-tapping community in Acre, was illiterate until sixteen, and became a comrade of Chico Mendes in the Amazon rubber-tappers' movement before his murder in 1988 — she then entered politics and was a senator for Acre from 1995, so she was a serving Brazilian Senator at the moment of her selection and the Forum called her an activist. Paulo Sergio C. Galvao Filho CLASS OF 1997

LastKnown · Business · role verified 1997

Chairman, Klabin SA

The Forum's own file splits his name oddly, entering "C. Galvão Filho" as the family name and "Paulo Sérgio" as the given name, and this encyclopedia flattens the accents (defect class A). Klabin is Brazil's largest paper and packaging producer, founded in 1899, and has been controlled by the intermarried Klabin, Lafer and GALVÃO families for more than a century; the chairmanship has rotated among them. No dated source about this individual after the class year was located, and the family-name problem is acute here: multiple Galvões have held senior Klabin positions across generations, so extending the entry beyond the roster's own statement would risk the Bronfman/Bjelland error. Held at the roster title.

Controlling shareholder; co-founder, Companhia do Vale do Araguaia; Instituto Desiderata

DYNASTIC and precisely evidenced: he is a grandson of Augusto Trajano de Azevedo Antunes, the founder of CAEMI — Companhia Auxiliar de Empresas de Mineracao — and one of the defining figures of twentieth-century Brazilian mining. In July 2001 he and his brother Mario sold the 60 per cent of CAEMI's voting capital they controlled to Mitsui and Companhia Vale do Rio Doce for USD 332 million, ending family control of Brazil's second-largest Iron ore producer — the Brazilian press wrote it up as an icon dying in the third generation. Afterwards he went into sustainable forestry: Companhia do Vale do Araguaia, created in 2005, produces teak seedlings. With his wife Antonia, an actress, he co-founded Instituto Desiderata, an NGO working in education and child and adolescent health in Rio de Janeiro. Reported as 61 years old in a 2020 profile.

Municipal Secretary of Strategic Projects, Prefeitura da Cidade do Rio de Janeiro

Anachronistic roster title that hides a national industrial job: the Forum records "President, Icatu-Hartford", an insurer. At selection she was President of the Companhia Siderurgica Nacional, CSN — Brazil's national steel company, which she ran from 1996 to 2002, in the years immediately after its privatisation. Born 27 December 1956; a master's and doctorate in economics. And she went on to a first: President of the BNDES, the Brazilian development bank, 2016–2017 — the first woman to head it. BNDES is one of the largest development banks in the world and the single most important source of long-term industrial finance in Brazil, so this is a major node of state economic power. She then led Goldman Sachs in Brazil in 2018 and chaired its advisory board there from March 2019, and has sat on the boards of Pao de Acucar and Souza Cruz.

The timing is extraordinary: he was the sitting Prime Minister of Bulgaria in 1996, the year of his selection — in office from January 1995 — so the clerk's "x-" was added later, after his fall. He resigned in December 1996 and left office in February 1997 amid hyperinflation and a banking collapse that wiped out savings and brought protesters onto the streets; the lev was subsequently pinned to a currency board. Columnist, The Hill Times

The first woman to serve as Deputy Prime Minister of Canada, from 4 November 1993 — the year of this listing — to 30 April 1996 and again from 19 June 1996 to 11 June 1997. Ten years in the federal cabinet, as Minister of the environment and Minister of Canadian Heritage. Now a political columnist and commentator: in January 2025 she argued the next liberal leader would need to "stick it out for the long term" as the party rebuilt after Justin Trudeau's resignation, and in March 2025 predicted Mark Carney would call an early election. The roster records no title for her.

DYNASTIC, evidenced, and the oldest line in this encyclopedia: James Richardson & Sons was founded in 1857 and is one of Canada's largest family-owned businesses, in grain, agribusiness, energy and real estate — he is the fifth generation. Chief Executive since 1993, so he was already running it two years before his selection. The family passed the presidency on this year: Thor Richardson became President of James Richardson & Sons in August 2025 while Hartley continued as Chief Executive; Carolyn Hursh is chairwoman. He also chairs the board of Richardson International, which appointed Darwin Sobkow as President and Chief Executive when Curt Vossen retired on 10 January 2025. A director of the Michael J. An Inuvialuit leader from the Mackenzie Delta who chaired the Inuvialuit Regional Corporation, the body created by the 1984 Inuvialuit Final Agreement to hold and manage the settlement of the western Arctic land claim — so the Forum picked a Canadian indigenous land-claim leader for a cohort otherwise full of bankers. Founder, Softimage; Daniel Langlois Foundation

Murdered. He and his partner Dominique Marchand were found dead in DOMINICA, in a Burnt-out car, after being reported missing; their deaths on 30 November 2023 are being investigated as homicide. Two men were arrested and charged with murder, including an American chocolatier who owned an estate adjoining the couple's resort. They were charged, not convicted, on the evidence located here, and that distinction is mandatory — do not name them as killers. Microsoft bought it in 1994. He then founded the Daniel Langlois Foundation in 1997 for art, Science and Technology, and the Ex-Centris cinema complex in Montreal. The roster spells it Langlois without accent, correctly.

Co-founder, Legacy+; the My Legacy Podcast

Founder and Chairperson, Kids Can Free The Children — accurate and remarkable for its date. He founded free the children in 1995 at the age of twelve, after reading a newspaper report about the murder of a Pakistani child labour activist — so he was roughly fifteen when the World Economic Forum named him a Global Leader for Tomorrow. He is almost certainly the youngest honouree in the entire 1993–2003 rosters. The organisation's end, stated plainly and with its causes separated: WE Charity wound down its Canadian operations in 2020 after the combined impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and a federal contract dispute over a student grant programme; the Kielburger brothers told the CBC they had been made "political roadkill". A parliamentary and political controversy is not a legal finding — no charge, proceeding or adverse finding against him has been established by this encyclopedia and none is asserted. WE Charity USA continues as an independent registered charity and an endowment sustains the international programmes, chiefly in Kenya. Since 2020 he has co-led legacy+, a consultancy, with his brother Marc; co-hosts the My Legacy Podcast with Martin Luther King III on iHeartMedia; and co-authored "What Is My Legacy?" With King, Arndrea Waters King and a foreword by the Dalai Lama — an international bestseller in January 2025.

A completely blank entry — no title, no organisation — for a woman who had run a global automotive manufacturer and would sit in a Canadian cabinet. She was Executive Vice-Chair, President and Chief Executive of magna international, one of the world's largest automotive parts suppliers, before resigning to enter politics; she was a member of the Canadian House of Commons from 2004 to 2008, ran for the leadership of the conservative party in 2004, and in May 2005 crossed the floor to the Liberals and was made Minister of human resources and skills development. Chairman, Chief Executive and president of The Stronach Group and 1/st — thoroughbred racing, gaming and pari-mutuel wagering technology — and the owner of the Preakness stakes, the second leg of the American triple Crown. The family litigation is settled, twice: the 2020 settlement of the suit brought by her brother and niece left her in full control of the racing, gaming, real estate and 1/st assets, while her father Frank and mother Elfriede took the thoroughbred breeding business, the Adena farms and the European assets; further litigation was settled in September 2024 on confidential terms. Current and structural: the Maryland board of public works approved the transfer of Pimlico race course to the State of Maryland, ending The Stronach Group's hold on Maryland racing; the 2026 Preakness ran at Laurel Park while Pimlico is rebuilt as the year-round home of the sport in the state. He became Chief Executive of Quinenco, the Luksic family holding company, in 1998, the year of his selection, and stayed for twenty-eight years. President-elect Jose Antonio Kast named him Foreign Minister on 20 January 2026; he resigned from Quinenco and from the boards of its companies with effect from 31 January 2026, was succeeded as Chief Executive by Macario Valdes Raczynski on 1 February, and took office on 11 March 2026. In August 2026 he led a mission to China for the twentieth anniversary of the Chile-China free trade agreement and the tenth of the comprehensive strategic association, meeting foreign minister Wang Yi and vice-premier He Lifeng, and visiting the port of Shanghai; on 30 August he summarised his position as "we are neither anti-Chinese nor anti-American, we are pro-Chilean". Chilean press raised conflict-of-interest questions in January 2026 while he was still Chief Executive and minister-designate; reported, no finding. Deceased, Formerly Quinenco SA

Chairman of the Board, Quinenco SA — and the Forum's published list Mojibakes the Enye, rendering "Quinenco" with a replacement character, a second instance of source-side character corruption after Kundrun. Born 1956; died 27 March 2013, aged 57, of lung cancer. DYNASTIC at the very top: a son of Andronico Luksic Abaroa and heir to the wealthiest family in Chile, estimated at USD 17.4 billion in March 2013, the month he died. He was chairman of Quinenco, the family holding company, and of Compania Cerveceras Unidas (CCU) and Compania Sud Americana de Vapores (CSAV), and a director of Banco de Chile and MADECO — so a single entry stands for beer, shipping, banking and metals across an entire national economy. He put more than USD 1 billion into CSAV, then one of Latin America's largest shipping lines. The Chilean double surname means he appears as "Luksic Craig", "Guillermo Luksic" and "Luksic", and the Forum's file sorts him under "Luksic Craig" with "Guillermo" as the given name, and the same mechanism will affect every Hispanic double-surname entry in this encyclopedia.

Chairman of the Board (Presidente del Directorio), Scotiabank Chile

"Executive Director — Grupo Said" names a family holding company and no country. The Grupo said is Chilean, not Mexican — he is Salvador said Somavia, son of Jose said Saffie — and a search that assumes otherwise returns nothing, which is probably why he reads as untraceable. He is chairman of Scotiabank Chile — designated President of the board in September 2020 and ratified on 26 January 2023 — having joined the board in August 2018 when BBVA Chile merged into Scotiabank, after two decades on BBVA Chile's own board. He first joined a bank board — Banco BHIF — at twenty-one, in the 1980s. And the rest of the portfolio is the Chilean economy in miniature: President of Parque Arauco S.A., the shopping-centre group operating in Chile, Peru and Colombia, and a director of Embotelladora Andina, the Coca-cola bottler for parts of Chile, Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay — plus Idelpa, SM-Salud, Inversiones del Pacifico and Administradora Costanera, and Executive Director of the said group companies. Edward Zeng CLASS OF 1998

Current · Technology · Finance · role verified 2026

Founder and Chairman; Managing Partner, China Bridge Capital; NextG Tech Limited

He founded Sparkice in 1996 and it was one of the first internet trading and e-commerce companies in China; Time named him one of the five most influential figures in China's Digital Economy. Now Founder and Chairman of China Bridge Capital and Nextg Tech, described as overseeing about USD 2.5bn of assets across AI, blockchain, clean energy, media and food retail, and a global affiliate Visiting Scholar at Stanford's Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center for 2024–26. The finding is not his career; it is who he went into business with. He and Tidjane Thiam (1998) — two members of the same class, one Chinese and one Ivorian — became business Partners Twenty-four years after their selection, and it ended in Court. PIMCO sold its stake in Thiam's SPAC, Freedom acquisition I Corp, to next G — an affiliate of Zeng's China Bridge Capital — and Zeng joined the board in place of Pimco's Jamie Weinstein, the Financial Times reporting him as a "better fit". In February 2024 China Bridge sued Thiam's company, alleging it had "failed and refused" to pay USD 6 million of advisory fees on the merger with the US solar business complete Solaria, which China Bridge says it introduced and on which it did the due diligence and modelling. That is a pleaded allegation.

Shi Yuzhu CLASS OF 1998

Current · Business · Technology · role verified 2026

Founder and controlling shareholder, Giant Network Group Co., Ltd (巨人网络)

The roster title points at a Ruin, and that is the finding. "Chairman, Giant Group" is the Zhuhai conglomerate he founded in 1991 — and it collapsed in early 1997, brought down by the Unfinished Giant building, leaving debts of roughly RMB 250 million. He was selected in 1998, the year after his company failed. Two in one year is not a coincidence; it is evidence about how and when the 1998 list was compiled, and it should be counted across the other classes. The comeback is the most famous second act in Chinese business: he rebuilt on the Naobaijin health supplement, repaid the debts, moved into online games with Zhengtu, listed Giant Interactive on the NYSE in 2007, took it private in 2014 and relisted it in Shenzhen as Giant network. Reported market value about RMB 61.4bn in April 2026; Q3 2025 revenue up 115.63% to RMB 1.706bn and net profit up 81.19% to RMB 640m; Chief Executive Zhang Dong resigned on 28 October and was replaced by Liu Wei. Current and material, stated as reported: his shares were frozen twice during 2025 in Personal-guarantee debt disputes, more than RMB 3.9bn of equity affected; the Hurun list of 28 October 2025 put him at RMB 5.4bn and 103rd in China. These are enforcement measures reported in the Chinese financial press, not findings of wrongdoing, and none is asserted.

Henry Liu Hong CLASS OF 1999

Global Chief Administrative Officer, Executive Vice-President and Global General Counsel, Faraday Future

Henry Hong Liu served as General Counsel of the China securities regulatory Commission — the body that writes and enforces the rules of the Chinese Capital Markets — and Businessweek named him a "Star of Asia" in both 1998 and 1999 as one of China's national policymakers, for his part in the country's economic and legal reforms and its handling of the Asian financial crisis. The Forum's file records nothing at all. And his own record closes the identification: he is documented as receiving the World Economic Forum's Global Leader for Tomorrow Award at Davos in 1999 — the fourth self-attestation this encyclopedia has used. Educated at Peking University, Harvard, Stanford and Oxford. Afterwards a partner at Mayer Brown, and in 2018 Faraday Future, the California electric-vehicle company, appointed him Global Chief Administrative Officer, Global Executive Vice-President and Global General Counsel. He and the company later fell out and he sued it; the reporting is of a fraud claim brought by him, with the company seeking to move the case out of New York. That is litigation he initiated, no finding has been located, and nothing adverse to him is suggested.

Vice-Chairman and President, China Investment Corporation (CIC)

He was not a vice-mayor in 1999: at selection he was inside the securities regulator. The career the entry hides is a complete map of Chinese financial power: General Manager of the Shanghai Stock exchange; Director-General and Secretary-General and then Vice-Chairman of the China securities regulatory Commission; vice-mayor and executive vice-mayor of Shanghai; and finally Vice-Chairman and President of the China Investment Corporation, the country's sovereign wealth fund and one of the largest pools of Investable Capital on earth. Born 1959; master's in economics from Peking University; a designated Senior Economist. The Forum took the regulator's lawyer and its Vice-Chairman in the same year and recorded neither fact.

She was Chief Executive of China Interactive Media Group, which published the fashion magazine iLOOK and held the licence for Time Out Beijing. Born 16 July 1962; Chinese-American, living and working in Beijing; publisher of iLook from 1999 to 2015. What makes her significant is the combination the roster cannot show: she is a daughter of what the Chinese press calls the "Red aristocracy" — her mother was an English tutor to Mao Zedong and her stepfather a foreign minister of the People's Republic — and she built a public persona that is Irreverent, feminist and deliberately Ungrand. The contrast is the act, and it made her one of the most-read commentators in the country; she has been called "China's Oprah Winfrey". Her influence moved from magazine to blog to Weibo, where she has some 14.7 million followers, and she is active on Douyin, Himalaya and Toutiao — which is why the IndependentMedia tag applies: her platform is now hers, not a title's.

Another of the very few entries still Word-for-word true twenty-five years on: he founded Sohu and is still its chairman and Chief Executive, confirmed in both the Q1 and Q2 2026 earnings calls. With Hiroshi Mikitani and Tarek Aggad that makes a small set of quarter-century incumbents worth counting as a category. The origin is unusual: a Physics PhD from MIT who returned to Beijing in 1995 and founded one of the first Chinese internet companies, listing Sohu on Nasdaq in 2000. Sohu spun out Changyou, the online-games business, and SOGOU, the search engine later sold to Tencent. Co-founder (retired from all executive and board roles); founder, Jack Ma Foundation, Alibaba Group

He is Ma Yun, known everywhere as Jack Ma. He is the largest name in the entire 1993–2003 cohort: a former English teacher from Hangzhou who built Alibaba into the company through which a large fraction of Chinese Commerce passes, and whose 2014 New York listing was the largest initial public offering in history at the time. And the fall and partial return are the part that matters for this article: after his October 2020 Bund summit speech criticising Chinese financial regulators, Ant Group's USD 37 billion flotation — which would have been the largest ever attempted — was suspended, and he disappeared from public view for years. He Reappeared at a Symposium with Xi Jinping in February 2025, which was read as an official reconciliation; he spoke at Ant Group's twentieth anniversary in December 2024; he visited Ant's Hangzhou campus in November 2025 as it launched its Lingguang AI Assistant; and in June 2026 he appeared at a Rice-planting event outside Hangzhou with senior Alibaba and Ant executives.

He was one of the most recognisable faces on Chinese television, a Director and Anchor on China Central Television's financial channel and its most prominent English-speaking interviewer of foreign leaders and chief executives. He was convicted of bribery and sentenced to six years by the Jiaohe City Court in Jilin province; his sentence ran from 18 May 2015 to 11 December 2020 and he was released. That is a completed conviction and a served sentence, and it is recorded as such. And he came back on his own terms: in October 2024, after roughly ten years out of public view, he posted a video titled "Rui Chenggang is back" — on Youtube, a platform blocked in China — reviewing his career and his imprisonment and Dismissing the rumours that had attached to him. A State-television anchor who was removed Mid-bulletin, imprisoned, and who Reappeared a decade later as a Self-publisher on a platform his own country blocks is one of the starkest trajectories in the whole file.

He founded Sina.com — China's first major portal, created on 30 November 1998 out of his earlier Stone Richsight and Richwin — and built it into the largest Chinese-language portal in the world, listing it on Nasdaq in 2000. Sina later became the home of Weibo, the platform on which most Chinese public argument happens. And the timing is the point: he was ousted from Sina in 2001 — his selection year. What he did next: he founded Dianji Technology — the company in the roster entry — working on collaboration and instant-messaging software; then in late 2012 he launched Xiaoneiwai (XNW.com), an online education platform; and he is recorded as chairman of Beijing Yilian Yisheng Education Technology.

He was a Founder and long-time Editor-in-Chief of Feral Tribune, the split satirical weekly that attacked the crimes of all sides in the Yugoslav wars — including Croatia's own — while the war was still going on. The cost was direct: Feral was prosecuted, taxed as pornography, boycotted by state advertisers and subjected to sustained pressure under Tudjman; Ivancic was prosecuted for Insulting the President and was honoured by the committee to protect journalists, and Gariwo lists him among the "righteous" for denouncing ethnic cleansing by every party to the conflict. Feral Tribune closed in 2008 — a paper that survived a war and did not survive the peace, which the Croatian press itself described as being killed "consciously and systematically" — and he continues to write in split as a columnist for the weekly Novosti, the paper of Croatia's Serb minority, and for Pescanik. The other "." Entry — and together with Brevnov this is the third and fourth appearance of the Single-full-stop placeholder in the Forum's files (after Bonadurer and Ith Vichit), and the first time two of them appear in adjacent entries. That adjacency matters: it is no longer plausibly a stray keystroke. It is a maintenance habit — a staff member marking "checked, nothing to record" as distinct from a entry simply left blank, and it means blank and "." Are probably not the same thing in this document. The annotation work should treat them as separate categories. The man himself is easily found and active: doc. RNDr. Petr Budinsky, CSc., Vice-Rector of the University of finance and administration in Prague, responsible for strategy, international relations and lifelong learning, and a member of its board; he moderated the 2025 financial and Investment Forum, recorded a June 2025 university podcast on how bitcoin works, and gave a 2025 interview on trends shaping the Czech economy. A "." entry is not an unresolvable entry.

Thorleif Krarup CLASS OF 1993Current · Finance · role verified 2024*Chairman, UNA Invest ApS and other Danish holdings*

Former Group Chief Executive of Nordea, and earlier of Unibank and Nykredit; he left the Nordea Chief Executive role and its board for family reasons and was succeeded by Lars G. Nordstrom. As of August 2024 he chairs UNA Invest ApS, Nordstrom Invest, Leneo and Medconnect, and is a director of Danmark-Amerika Fondet, Cardlay, and the Crown Prince Frederik Fond — whose namesake, H.R.H. Prince Frederik, is himself in this encyclopedia's roster as GLT 2003 and is now King Frederik X. The roster gives Krarup no title.

At selection he was a senior executive of NKT holding, the Danish industrial group, which he went on to lead — he was 43 when Danisco named him its next Chief Executive in December 2005. He ran Danisco, the international food-ingredients and enzymes company, from 2006 to 2011, and left when Dupont acquired it — he and the Chief Financial Officer Søren Bjerre-Nielsen resigned with effect from 17 June 2011 by agreement with the acquirer, which is the ordinary shape of a takeover exit and is recorded as such. He is now a professional chairman, and the portfolio is a good illustration of how small the Nordic board class is: chairman of Tivoli A/S — the Copenhagen pleasure garden, a listed company — and of FLsmidth & Co, the cement and minerals engineering group, and a member of the board of Givaudan, the Swiss flavours and fragrances house that competes with the business he used to run. Compare Dag Mejdell (1998), whose entry has the same shape in Norway: state or large-industrial Chief Executive converting into a portfolio of listed chairmanships. That is two instances and it is worth counting across the Nordic entries.

"The Skeptical environmentalist" (Danish 1998, English 2001) made him internationally famous the year before his selection, arguing that environmental problems were real but that resources were being Misallocated against them. He Complained in February 2003 to the ministry of science, Technology and Innovation. In December 2003 the ministry annulled the Dcsd decision for procedural errors, including failure to document errors in the book, and Remitted it. In March 2004 the Dcsd formally decided not to act further. The finding was annulled and the case closed. A directory without dates and stages would today publish "found Scientifically dishonest" about a man whose finding was quashed — the exact mirror of the Philip Hampton error. President and Founder of the Copenhagen Consensus Center, which convenes economists to rank global problems by cost-benefit return — an explicit attempt to set the world's spending priorities by analysis — and a visiting fellow at the Hoover Institution. He remains a highly contested figure; the file records his positions and the documented record, and takes no view on the science.

Henriette Kjaer CLASS OF 2003

LastKnown · Government · role verified 2005

Minister for Family and Consumer Affairs, to 18 February 2005, Government of Denmark

A second defect in the same entry, in the title: the roster says "Minister of Social Affairs and Gender Equity". The Danish post is Minister for gender equality, not equity — two words that mean materially different things in policy, and the substitution changes what the office is. She was Minister of social Affairs and Minister for gender equality from 27 November 2001 to 2 August 2004, in the first cabinet of Anders Fogh Rasmussen, so the class of 2003 caught her in office. She then served as Minister for Family and Consumer Affairs from 2 August 2004 until 18 February 2005. The Asof is the date the last confirmed post ended, twenty-one years ago.

H.R.H. Prince Frederik CLASS OF 2003

Current · Government · role verified 2026

King of Denmark, The Danish Monarchy

The roster's single most dramatic change of title. He is no longer a Prince. He is King Frederik X, head of state of the Kingdom of Denmark, and he has Reigned since 14 January 2024. The roster records him as "Prince of Denmark — Office of h.m. The Queen of Denmark". The Queen in that entry is his mother, Margrethe II — and she abdicated in his favour. She announced it in her New Year's Eve address on 31 December 2023 and stood down on 14 January 2024, the 52nd anniversary of her own accession; he acceded at 55. It was the first voluntary abdication by a Danish monarch since Eric III in 1146 — a gap of 878 years. This is the first reigning head of state this encyclopedia has found, and he is a hereditary one. The Forum selected him in 2003 against published criteria requiring "a position of considerable influence and responsibility" — which, for an heir apparent, he held by birth and not by anything he had done. Compare the 2001 entry already recorded in this encyclopedia as a hereditary head of state in waiting: this one is no longer waiting. His heir apparent is Crown Prince Christian; his wife is Queen Mary. "H.R.H." In the FullName field is the roster's own text and is preserved verbatim under the byte-for-byte name rule; his correct style is now His Majesty.

Rosalía Arteaga Serrano CLASS OF 1997

Current · Government · Academia · NGO · role verified 2025

President of UNIR Ecuador, and Executive President, Fundación FIDAL

President, Consultora Arteaga — which understates her spectacularly. She was President of Ecuador — the first and so far only woman to hold the office — for two days, 9 to 11 February 1997, in the constitutional chaos following the removal of Abdalá Bucaram, under whom she had been Vice-President from 1996. So she held the presidency in the year of her selection and the roster records a consultancy. Congress then installed Fabián Alarcón and she returned to the vice-presidency. Later Secretary-General of the Amazon Cooperation Treaty Organisation. Now President of UNIR Ecuador and Executive President of the FIDAL Foundation, working on education and social-impact projects; recognised at the 24th Global Family Office Investment Summit in February 2025 for her contribution to global leadership.

Son of Hosni Mubarak, President of Egypt 1981–2011 — dynastic, evidenced, and the ninth head-of-state descent in this encyclopedia. At selection he was an investment banker, having worked at Bank of America and founded Med Invest Partners in London; he entered the ruling National Democratic Party in 2000 and rose to Deputy Secretary-General and head of its Policies Committee, and he was widely expected to succeed his father — the prospect of that succession was among the grievances of the 2011 uprising. The regime fell in February 2011 and he was arrested with his brother Alaa. The legal outcomes, stated exactly because they are routinely misreported: he and his brother were convicted of embezzlement in a case concerning presidential palaces and served time; but between 2015 and 2020 Egyptian courts acquitted them of the Greater part of the charges, including, in February 2020, the illicit-share-trading case over the sale of Al Watany Bank of Egypt, and a seizure order on their funds was lifted. They were later photographed in the UAE after a travel ban ended. Any account must carry the acquittals alongside the conviction, or it misstates the record. No current role located.

That is a government research post on the most politically charged question in Egyptian urban policy, and it is the kind of quiet technical authority.

Helo Meigas CLASS OF 1999LastKnown · Finance · Government · role verified 2019*Chief Financial Officer, Swedbank AB*

"Independent consultant" is one of the most misleading entries in the whole file. At selection she was Deputy Governor of the bank of Estonia with responsibility for financial stability, a post she held from 1998 to 2000 — and before that she had been Chief Executive of the Tallinn Stock exchange from 1995 to 1998. So the Forum honoured a woman who had built a national stock exchange and then moved to the Central Bank of a country five years out of the Soviet Union, and recorded her as an independent consultant. The later career is equally Under-stated: she joined Hansapank in 2004, stayed through its absorption into Swedbank, became the group's chief risk Officer and then, from June 2016, its Chief Financial Officer — the only Estonian in the Swedish banking group's management. With Uraz Dzhandosov (Kazakhstan) and Mikhail Zadornov (Russia), the 1998–99 classes hold three post-Soviet monetary officials, and all three roster entries conceal the office.

Kristiina Ojuland CLASS OF 2003LastKnown · Government · role verified 2015*Member of the European Parliament, to 2014, European Parliament*

She was Minister of Foreign Affairs of Estonia from 2002 to 2005, so the class of 2003 caught her running the foreign policy of a state that joined both the European Union and NATO in 2004 — which is to say, in the single most consequential year in modern Estonian diplomacy. She was then one of Estonia's six members of the European Parliament from 2009 to 2014, sitting with the liberals, and had been a member of the Estonian Reform Party from 1995. And the career ended in a way that must be recorded plainly and without embellishment: she left the reform party on 5 June 2013 and founded the party of People's unity, which failed to win parliamentary representation, effectively ending her major political career. And Estonian public broadcasting (ERR) reported her, as a former Liberal MEP, describing African refugees as a "threat to the White race". This encyclopedia records that this was reported by The National public broadcaster and quotes the phrase as ERR rendered it. It is a documented public statement and it belongs in any account of her, stated exactly and no further.

Heikki Lehtonen CLASS OF 2000LastKnown · Business · role verified 2015*Owner; former President and Chief Executive Officer, Componenta Corporation*

He was Chief Executive of Componenta, the Finnish cast-components maker, for twenty-two years, until 2015, so the entry was true in 2000, true on 16 February 2012 and true for three more years. Componenta supplied castings to the heavy vehicle, construction and machine-building industries across Europe, with foundries in Finland, the Netherlands, Sweden and Turkey — the kind of supplier whose parts are inside other companies' products and whose name never appears on anything. He is recorded as an owner of the company. Componenta went through a severe financial restructuring after his departure, which is a fact about the company and is not attributed to him here. He is a patron of the arts in Finland and was made an honorary doctor of the University of the Arts Helsinki, arguing publicly for what he calls "art fitness" — an unusual second life for an industrial Chief Executive.

The entry was already superseded before 2011. The full shape is unusual and worth this encyclopedia's attention: Parliament (1991–2006) to cabinet to an international organisation's Special Representative on human trafficking to a national Ombudsman and national rapporteur on trafficking to back to Parliament (2015–), now on the Foreign Affairs committee and the Grand committee and chairing the Swedish People's Party Council. There is no "Conservatory party". It is The National coalition party — Kokoomus — and "Conservatory" is either a Misrendering of "conservative" or a Mistranslation of the Finnish. That is the Kathleen Houlihan defect shape again: a word swap that leaves the entry grammatical and wrong, and unsearchable. The career the entry caught in its first act: he became Prime Minister of Finland, 2011 to 2014, having been Minister of Finance and Deputy Prime Minister before that. Then Vice-President of the European Commission, responsible for jobs, growth, investment and competitiveness — the portfolio that ran the Juncker plan. Pekka Himan CLASS OF 2003

LastKnown · Academia · Media · role verified 2020

Philosopher and author, Independent

The roster truncates his surname by two letters: he is Pekka Himanen, not "Himan". Add it to the name-defect taxonomy. And the entry has no organisation: the title is the single word "Philosopher". He took his PhD in philosophy from the University of Helsinki in 1994 at the age of twenty — the youngest doctorate ever awarded in Finland. His "the Hacker ethic and the Spirit of the information age" (2001) carries a Prologue by Linus Torvalds and an Epilogue by Manuel Castells, and has been translated into twenty languages. Its argument — that the hacker values of play, passion, sharing and creativity are a live alternative to the Protestant work ethic — was deliberately framed against Max Weber, and Castells and others have compared it to him directly.

Died 26 May 2006 · see In Memoriam

Chief Executive and Managing Partner, Compagnie Générale des Établissements Michelin

Died 26 May 2006, aged 42, in a Boating accident off the ÎLE de Sein in Brittany; his body was recovered by the French coastguard about nine miles off the coast, and the boat's skipper, Guillaume Normant, died with him. And it concealed the head of one of the largest industrial companies in Europe. DYNASTIC, evidenced, fourth generation: son of François Michelin and a great-grandson of the founding family; Managing Partner and Chief Executive of Group Michelin from 1999, and the architect of its transformation into a leaner and more global company — so at selection in 1996, aged 32, he was the designated heir being brought through the business. Michel Rollier, co-Managing Partner since 2005, took over on his death. Identity (added by the 2026–09-05 Deceased audit): the roster entry is title-less.

Franck Riboud CLASS OF 1996

Current · Business · role verified 2022

Honorary Chairman, Danone

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Danone — which he was from 1996, the year of his selection, so this is one of the rare contemporaneous titles. DYNASTIC, evidenced: son of Antoine Riboud, who created Danone out of BSN and who is remembered for the 1972 Marseille speech arguing that corporate responsibility does not stop at the factory gate. Franck ran the group for twenty-one years, turning it toward dairy, water and nutrition and selling the biscuit business. Stepped down as chairman in December 2017, Emmanuel Faber taking both roles, and remained Honorary Chairman; he then left the board altogether at the April 2022 annual meeting after thirty years, keeping only the honorary title. "Honorary Chairman" is an emeritus role, not an executive one, and 2022 is the last dated anchor — the same shape as Alain Prestat and it should be re-tested in the audit.

Senior Advisor (announced); former European Commissioner for the Internal Market, Bank of America; formerly European Commission

One of the highest offices reached by anyone in the rosters: European Commissioner for the Internal Market (2019–2024), the commissioner who drove the digital services act and the Digital Markets Act. Before that Minister of the economy, finance and industry of France (2005–2007) and chairman and Chief Executive of France Telecom, Thomson and Atos. He resigned from the Commission on 16 September 2024, publicly accusing President Ursula von der Leyen of having sought to block his reappointment — an extraordinary public break at that level; France then nominated Stéphane Sejourne in his place. In March 2025 he sought clearance for a paid advisory role at Bank of America, subject to the two-year post-Commission cooling-off restriction on lobbying. On 23 December 2025 the United States Department of State sanctioned him — a visa restriction barring him from US territory — over what it characterised as censorship of and coercion against US social-media platforms.

Chair of the Board and interim Chief Executive Officer, Eramet

"Senior Vice-President, President and Chief Executive Officer, Rio Tinto Alcan" belongs to the years after Rio Tinto bought Alcan in 2007, a decade after the class year. Current and sharp: she was chair and Chief Executive of Eramet — the French mining and metals group, in nickel, manganese and lithium — from May 2017 to May 2025, then continued as chair of the board; on 1 February 2026 the board terminated the mandate of Chief Executive Paulo Castellari with immediate effect, citing Disagreements over management methods, less than a year after appointing him, and appointed her interim Chief Executive pending a permanent successor, after which the roles are to be separated again. Eramet matters beyond itself: manganese and battery-grade nickel and lithium are strategic minerals, and the French state is a shareholder — so this is an entry about industrial policy as much as about a company.

"Managing Director, Devanlay SA" — the Lacoste licensee — was a role from his industrial career, and by February 2012 he had already been running a school for five years. He was Director-General of the Institut Francais de la mode from 1 July 2007 to 2019, the French state-backed graduate school and research centre for the fashion and luxury industries, and he stepped aside for Xavier Romatet, becoming adviser to the president of its board. Sciences Po Paris and a doctorate in management sciences from Paris-Dauphine; a professor of Corporate Strategy at IFM and an author on the textile and clothing industries; he also represented French industry at Euratex, the European apparel and textile confederation. The position is more interesting than it looks: IFM trains the managers of the French luxury houses, and its Director-General sits at the junction of the industry, the state and the schools — a quiet structural position of exactly the kind.

Dominique-Henri Freiche CLASS OF 1999

President of the Executive Board, Christie's France

A "." placeholder entry with no organisation after it — so, unlike Wong Wai-kwun, there is nothing our parser could have dropped; the Forum simply recorded a full stop. The name is rare and it resolves to a real and significant appointment: Dominique-henri Freiche was named President of the Executive Board (President du directoire) of Christie's France, succeeding Francois Curiel — the French arm of one of the two houses that between them run the international art market, and a post that matters because the French auction market was deregulated only in 2001, when Christie's and Sotheby's were first allowed to hold sales in France. But the date of that appointment could not be established. The only sources located are undated trade items. That is deliberate and it is a New value in this column: writing a plausible year would have been an invention, and writing 1999 would have been false. The owner should Ratify or reject the convention — see the status block. A separate 1976 entomological note in the bulletin de la Societe entomologique de France carries the same name; it is not treated as the same person.

Honorary President of the Board, Citeo

The role he is known for is exactly the kind this encyclopedia exists to find: he was President of Eco-emballages from 2009, and then of Citeo after Eco-emballages merged with Ecofolio in 2017, until 30 June 2021 — twelve years running France's packaging and paper Eco-organisme. That is a private body exercising delegated public authority: under extended producer responsibility it collects levies from every company that puts packaging on the French market and finances the country's household recycling. Almost nobody outside the industry could name its president, and its decisions reach every household in France. He handed over to Antoine Fievet, Chief Executive of the cheese group Bel, from 1 July 2021, and is now Honorary President of Citeo's board. Franco-Canadian; a graduate of EM Lyon; twenty years at Danone in France and internationally before joining Eco-Emballages in 2009 — so at selection he was a Danone executive.

He sat on an EBRD advisory group. And the entry hides a national career of the first rank: he was Minister of Finance and economy of Serbia from 2001 to 2004 — so he took the job in the year before his selection, immediately after the fall of Milošević — and he ran the stabilisation and rebuilding of a state that had just emerged from sanctions, hyperinflation and war. He later returned as Deputy Prime Minister for European integration and Minister of science, 2007–2011, leading Serbia's EU accession effort. And then back to private finance: Managing Director and Head of Central and Eastern Europe, the CIS and Turkey at Lazard — the investment bank that advises governments on sovereign debt restructuring. He was a finance Minister who restructured his own country's debt and now works for the firm that advises other countries on theirs. That is an Exceptionally clean revolving door and it should be named as one.

He directed the International Institute for corporate governance at the Yale School of Management, and the class of 2003 caught him there. His lifetime citations place him among the three most widely cited business authors in the world on Ssrn. François Jacq CLASS OF 2003

Current · Government · Technology · role verified 2026

Président-Directeur Général, Centre National d'Études Spatiales (CNES)

A New Accent-defect variant, and it is the worst kind yet: the roster prints "François Jacq". The cedilla in François has become a space, splitting the forename in two. Every accent defect catalogued so far either stripped a character to its ASCII base or substituted a wrong diacritic. This one replaced the character with a word break, which breaks tokenisation as well as spelling — any name-matching pass will read "Fran" and "ois" as separate tokens. Add it to the taxonomy with Jérôme Caille and Pekka Himanen. He was Director General of ANDRA, the French national radioactive waste management agency, from 2000 to 2005. And what followed is the most sustained run of State-technical power in the entire roster: he has run five French national agencies in sequence — radioactive waste (ANDRA, 2000–2005), the weather (Météo-france, 2009–2013), the Oceans (Ifremer, 2013–2018), atomic energy (the CEA, as Administrateur général from 2018), and now space. He was appointed Président-Directeur Général of CNES, the French space agency, in the Council of Ministers on 23 May 2025, and renewed by Decree on 16 April 2026. The CEA is the institution behind French civil and military nuclear technology. A man who has held the top job at the nuclear waste agency, the weather service, the oceans institute, the atomic energy commission and the space agency has run, in sequence, most of the technical capability of a nuclear-armed state — and almost nobody outside Paris knows his name. This is this encyclopedia's thesis as well as it will ever be illustrated. École Polytechnique; doctorate from Mines ParisTech.

Jean-Christophe Iseux CLASS OF 2003

President, Institute for East West Strategic Studies; and Visiting Professor, Research Institute for World Economy, Renmin University of China

He held a six-year tenure as Professor of International Political Economics at the School of economics of Renmin University from 2000, so the class of 2003 caught him mid-term; he has been a Visiting Professor at its Research Institute for World Economy since 2006. Mariakirchen; born 11 November 1967 in Lyon. The claim that makes this entry remarkable, if it holds: he is described as a Specially invited member of the upper House of the Chinese Parliament from 2001 to 2005 — "the first European ever to hold senior public office in the People's Republic of China" — which would place him inside the Chinese state apparatus in exactly the years spanning his GLT class. He is also said to have been the youngest ambassador to the UN in Geneva, as permanent representative to the WTO and the conference on Disarmament, in 1996–97. And the warning must travel with all of it: this biography rests overwhelmingly on his own account and on encyclopaedia entries built from it, including the nobiliary title. This encyclopedia found no independent documentary corroboration of the Chinese parliamentary seat or the ambassadorship and asserts neither. If this entry is used in publication, every element must be sourced to a document that is not his own CV, or the claim must be attributed to him explicitly and left there.

Jéréme Caille CLASS OF 2003

Current · Business · role verified 2025

Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer, The Talent Club

A New extraction defect variant, and it is not a lost accent but a wrong one: the roster prints "Jéréme". He is Jérôme Caille — the second "e" should carry a circumflex, not an acute. Every accent defect catalogued so far has been a loss — the character stripped to plain ASCII. This one substituted one diacritic for another, which is a different failure and will not be caught by any "restore the missing accent" pass. Add it to the accent taxonomy. He became Chief Executive of the Adecco Group, the world's largest staffing company, on 17 April 2002, and ran it from Zurich for roughly five years, after five years with the group in Spain and five in Italy. His tenure spans the January 2004 Adecco accounting crisis, when the group delayed its results and its shares fell sharply; this encyclopedia did not investigate that episode and asserts nothing about it — verify before writing a word on it. He founded doctor CLIC in Barcelona in 2006, then was Chief Executive of House of HR, the Belgian staffing group, until September 2019, when Rika Coppens succeeded him; he is now Co-Founder and Chief Executive of The Talent Club. Chief Executive of smart, the Daimler city-car brand, from 2010 to 2018, the first woman to head a Daimler brand, an appointment described at the time as a significant breakthrough in a male-dominated industry; she retired at the end of September 2018 after 23 years with the company. Claudia Nolte CLASS OF 1993Current · Government · Business · role verified 2026*Self-employed political consultant, independent*

Born Claudia Wiesemuller on 7 February 1966. She became the youngest cabinet Minister in German history at 28, appointed by Helmut Kohl on 17 November 1994 and serving until 26 October 1998. And that dates the entry decisively: the roster title already reads "former Federal Minister", a post she did not take until November 1994 — after this list was published — and left in October 1998. So her entry was edited in or after October 1998. A strong datum for the maintained-title count in questions section 1k. Married since July 2008 to the investigative journalist David Crawford of Correctiv. No current role found. She ran four Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung foreign offices in succession: Belgrade 2005–2010, London 2010–2013, Moscow 2013–2019 — the CDU foundation's Russia office — and Vienna 2019–2023 for Austria and multilateral dialogue. Since 2023 self-employed in political consulting (Politikberatung). Chaired the advisory board of the German Fire Department Association from 2009 to 2026, and stood for the CDU in the 2024 Brandenburg municipal elections at Schöneiche bei Berlin. True spelling: Ernst-adrian Freiherr von Dörnberg, and the roster's annotation reads "formerly with Kuhne and Nagel" where the Forum's published list has Kühne & Nagel. Earlier a project manager and consultant at Kuhne and Nagel, Air France, Eurowings and Austrian Airlines. Added: the Forum's own list entry does not stop at the firm name — it reads "formerly with Kühne & Nagel, ph 9.12.98, utr", a staff contact log. "Ph" for phoned, a date of 9 December 1998, and "utr" apparently for unable to reach.

Managing Director, Baden-Badener Unternehmensgespräche

Accent, and it confirms a defect-class-a convention: the true spelling is Frank Trümper, and the roster's "Truemper" is the German ue-transliteration rather than a stripped diacritic — the same treatment given to Argüden as Argueden in 1999, and the second confirmed instance of that convention. Studied history, political economy and philosophy in Hamburg, Frankfurt and London; began as a top-management trainee at Bertelsmann AG and became Managing Director of S. Fischer Verlag and of the Bertelsmann Foundation; then Managing Director of Corporate Social Responsibility at Deutsche Bank and a Board Member of its foundation, reorganising the bank's global social engagement. Took over the newly founded German arm of Common Purpose in 2006, and was Managing Director of the Baden-Badener Unternehmensgespräche from 2011 to 2022. The roster records no title for him, so the identification rests on the distinctive surname and German business prominence.

The man who ran the Euro's Bailout machinery. First and only Managing Director of the European Stability Mechanism and Chief Executive of the European Financial Stability Facility — the roster title — from June 2010 until his retirement in October 2022, spanning the Greek, Irish, Portuguese, Spanish and Cypriot programmes. Earlier Director-General for economic and Financial Affairs at the European Commission and a senior official at the IMF. Honoured at a conference of the Fondation du mérite européen on 2 June 2025 titled building and preserving the euro; no current executive role established. The owner's published directory is wrong here and needs a correction note: it gives him as "Chairman, Kr Economics consultancy" as a current role. Kr Economics was his own consultancy from 2009 to June 2010 — the gap between the German finance ministry and IMF years and taking over the EFSF — so it is a pre-2010 role presented in the present tense. Our entry, the ESM managing directorship to 7 October 2022, is the later and correct one.

She studied fashion, design and marketing in New York, Paris and Montreal and joined the family firm in her early twenties, so she was a senior figure in it at selection. She took over as Chief Executive in 2001 at the request of shareholders and the Supervisory Board, restructured the group and shed unprofitable divisions and 1,200 jobs — and the group nonetheless broke up after near-bankruptcy in 2006, though parts still trade under the name. Chairman, Vatas Holding GmbH. He was a celebrity teenage entrepreneur: presented by Helmut Kohl as a prodigy and taken on state visits at sixteen, which is why a 1996 selection makes sense and why he is among the youngest people in the whole roster. His first ventures collapsed in the late 1990s. The vehicle in the roster's successor is now insolvent: the Rechtbank Amsterdam declared Tennor holding B.V. Insolvent on 17 June 2025 on the application of the Dutch tax authority over about EUR 5.3 million of tax debt; the Berlin arm, Tennor International Services, filed on 12 February; and the administrator's second report of June 2026 records registered claims of more than EUR 130 million against minimal assets. He bought 64.7 per cent of Hertha BSC through a Tennor subsidiary from 2019, putting in about EUR 374m, and sold to 777 Partners in 2023. Federal Minister of Health, Government of the Federal Republic of Germany

The "." Prediction is confirmed, and it is the strongest "." Case yet. Flagged this entry as "the one to watch" because a German Federal Minister of Health shares the name. She is that Minister. Andrea Fischer of Alliance 90/the Greens was Federal Minister of Health from 27 October 1998 to 9 January 2001 — so she was a sitting cabinet Minister of Germany throughout her selection year, and the Forum's file records a single full stop. That retires any reading of "." As "nothing to record". Born 1960. She remains the only Green ever to have held the German health ministry, and she resigned on 9 January 2001 over the BSE (MAD COW) crisis. The detail matters: the first BSE case in a German-born COW was diagnosed on 24 November 2000 in Schleswig-holstein, and on 9 January 2001 she and the agriculture Minister Karl-heinz Funke (SPD) both resigned, taking responsibility for the handling of the crisis — two federal ministers out on the same day over the same disease. Ulla Schmidt took Health; Renate Kuenast took agriculture, the ministry being reconstituted as Consumer Protection, Food and agriculture. A resignation, not a dismissal. Afterwards she worked from 2009 to 2012 as an independent consultant to pharmaceutical companies and health insurers — she told taz that "pharma is not only evil" — and latterly as a publicist and professional guardian (Berufsbetreuerin); the German lobbying register Lobbypedia tracks her.

"1&1 AG & Co. KG&A" is a corporate form that postdates 1999. He is one of the very few people in this encyclopedia who still runs the company he founded forty years ago: born 1963, he set up 1&1 marketing GmbH in 1988 selling marketing services for small software suppliers — later for IBM, Compaq and Deutsche Telekom — and built it into United internet, revenue of EUR 6.1 billion and 10,547 staff in 2025. He is founder, chairman and Chief Executive, and the controlling shareholder. The point for this encyclopedia is ownership rather than celebrity: United Internet owns 1&1, GMX, WEB.DE and IONOS, so a single German private fortune sits behind a large share of German consumer email, web hosting and, since 1&1 built its own network, mobile telephony.

LastKnown · Government · Academia · Media · role verified 2024

Member of the Moscow City Duma; Professor, Moscow City Duma; Higher School of Economics

The roster entry is a straggler the February 2012 refresh missed: "member of the State Duma" was true from 1993 to 2007, when he lost his seat as independent candidacies were squeezed out. At selection he was one of the youngest and most prominent Liberal Deputies in Russia — he had been a first deputy speaker of the State Duma in his early thirties — and he became one of the last independent deputies to sit in it. A historian by training and a professor at the Higher School of Economics. The ending is the entry: on 25 December 2023 he applied to give up his seat in the Moscow City Duma, citing "changed family, personal and work circumstances"; the resignation took effect on 31 January 2024; he left Russia; and the Russian Ministry of Justice has designated him an individual "foreign agent". He is reported as living in Germany. The "Foreign agent" listing is a designation by the Russian state, not a finding of wrongdoing by any court, and it is recorded here as a state act and nothing more.

Member of the Managing Board, Siemens AG

He ran Siemens' communications group and sat on the central board (Vorstand) of Siemens AG, and was later chairman of the Luxembourg-based Elster Group; an honorary doctor of the Technical University of Munich. He came to trial at the Munich regional court I in 2011, charged with Intentional breach of supervisory duties and tax offences; allegations that he had Aided seven corruption cases by omission were severed before the trial opened. The Court terminated the proceedings against payment of EUR 175,000, a court spokesman saying the evidence indicated his Culpability was lower than originally assumed; on payment the case was permanently dismissed. A dismissal against payment under German procedure is neither a conviction nor an acquittal, and it must not be reported as either. Separately, Siemens AG itself settled with the SEC and DOJ in December 2008 over systematic foreign bribery — a matter concerning the company, not him.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Axel Springer SE

A trained musicologist and music critic who became a newspaper editor and then a media proprietor. He has run Axel Springer for Twenty-four years and has turned a German newspaper House into one of the most politically consequential media groups in the West: Bild and Die Welt in Germany; Politico, acquired in 2021 for about USD 1 billion; business insider; and Morning Brew. And it is still expanding: on 6 March 2026 Axel Springer agreed to buy the owner of Britain's daily Telegraph for GBP 575 million (USD 766 million), saying the aim was to build "the leading centre-right media outlet". A single German Executive would then control the dominant political news outlet in Washington and Brussels, the largest tabloid in Germany, and a British newspaper of record of the right. This encyclopedia should state that plainly and without adjectives.

Founder and Managing Partner, Freitag & Co. GmbH

Freitag & Co. Was founded in 2002, a year after the 2001 class, and celebrated its twentieth anniversary in 2022. That is not inference about a job title; it is a company registration date. No reading of the file in which roster titles are selection-time positions survives it. One of the leading independent German investment banks, with offices in Frankfurt and Boston, advising on Mergers and Acquisitions, refinancing and financial restructuring, and Capital Markets and control — five managing partners, three in Frankfurt and two in Boston. He was 58 in 2023, studied at Stanford and lived fifteen years in the United States; he sits with the Frankfurt Society for Trade, Industry and science and the German American Business Council in Boston. An independent M&A boutique is exactly where German corporate control changes hands without a bank's name on the door, and he has run one for Twenty-four years. Cem Ozdemir CLASS OF 2002

Minister-President of Baden-Württemberg, State Government of Baden-Württemberg

A head of a German state government, elected in the last four months. On 13 May 2026 the Landtag of Baden-württemberg elected him Minister-President in the first round, with 93 votes of 157 cast, after the Greens took 30.2 per cent at the 2026 state election and renewed their coalition with the CDU. He is the first head of government of Turkish background in the history of the federal Republic, and only the second Green Minister-President after Winfried Kretschmann, whom he succeeded. Baden-württemberg is Germany's third-largest state and the home of Mercedes-benz, Porsche and Bosch — running it means running the politics of the German car industry at the moment it is being rebuilt. One of the first two Germans of Turkish descent elected to the Bundestag, in 1994; member of the European Parliament 2004–2009 — which is the roster entry, and therefore a post he did not hold until two years after selection; Co-Chair of the German Greens 2008–2018; and federal Minister of food and agriculture 2021–2025.

Christiane zu Salm CLASS OF 2002

Current · Media · Business · Academia · role verified 2025

Author, coach and volunteer end-of-life companion; student of philosophy and political theory, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Independent

The title was accurate and the trajectory is the sharpest reversal in the 2002 class: she ran MTV central Europe as Managing Director from 1998 to 2001, then owned and ran the broadcaster tm3, which she converted in September 2001 into the call-in game-show channel 9live — one of the most criticised formats in German television — and stayed until 2005. She then left commercial television altogether, trained as a Hospice volunteer, and now works as an End-of-life companion and writes and coaches about it. She owned the Berlin publishing house Nicolai Verlag from 2016 to 2023, buying it with the stated aim of restating the themes of the Enlightenment for the 21st century, and spent twelve years on the board of the Swiss publisher Ringier through its digital transformation before resigning. Born 2 October 1966 in Mainz; also an art collector, and a member of the Bertelsmann Stiftung expert commission on the reconciliation of family and work.

Presenter and producer, "Maischberger", ARD / Westdeutscher Rundfunk

She was a moderator at ZDF; she now presents "Maischberger" for ARD, produced by Westdeutscher Rundfunk. She has been one of the handful of people who conduct Germany's prime-time political interviews for more than twenty-five years — first "0137 — Sandra Maischberger" on n-tv, then "Menschen bei Maischberger" and now "Maischberger" on the first public channel. In a country where the public broadcasters still set the terms of national political debate, the person who asks the questions twice a week is a structural figure, not a celebrity. She also runs her own production company, Vincent TV, and has produced documentary work — which makes her a proprietor as well as a presenter.

Deputy Chairman of the Supervisory Board, BMW AG; Chairman of the Supervisory Board, Aqton SE; and Chairman, Delton AG, BMW Bayerische Motoren Werke AG

Two siblings hold roughly half of one of the world's largest Carmakers between them, and their mother Johanna Quandt sat on the same Supervisory Board from 1982 to 1997, much of it as Deputy Chairwoman — the seat he then took. That is not influence over a company; it is ownership of one, held in a family across three generations and exercised from a board seat rather than an Executive Office. And a matter this encyclopedia cannot avoid, flagged honestly: the Quandt family's conduct under national Socialism, including the use of forced labour in companies it controlled, is the subject of an independent historical study the family itself commissioned and published. He was born in 1966 and none of it is attributed to him personally. Diplom in Industrial Engineering, TU Karlsruhe; an independent entrepreneur since 1996.

Founder; member of the Board of Directors (Chief Executive Officer 1989-2024), Brainlab AG

He founded Brainlab in 1989 at the age of seventeen, a self-taught programmer who had just written a bestselling book on 3D graphics — and he then ran it as Chief Executive for thirty-five years. What Brainlab makes is not a consumer product and that is the point: Image-guided surgery and Neuronavigation systems and Radiosurgery platforms — the software and hardware that shows a surgeon where the instrument is inside a patient's Head. It is installed in thousands of hospitals and has been used in an enormous number of operations. He stepped back from the operational business with effect from January 2025; the Chief Technology Officer Rainer Birkenbach became Chief Executive, and Vilsmeier moved to the Board of Directors to concentrate on strategy and on the health it segment. State Secretary for Cultural Affairs, Berlin, Senate of Berlin

Chairman and Chief Executive of Universal Music holding GmbH, which is to say the head of the German arm of the largest record company in the world, and the class of 2003 caught him in it. How he got there is the interesting part: he founded the Sublabel Motor Music in 1994 and signed Rammstein and Tocotronic to it; four years later the label was absorbed into the Universal Group and he rose to run the whole German company. He later built Motor Entertainment — label, touring and management. And then he crossed into government, which very few record executives do: he became State Secretary for Cultural Affairs of Berlin — Kulturstatssekretär — responsible for the cultural budget and policy of the German Capital, and the German press covered him precisely as what he was, a rock-industry figure inside the machinery of the Berlin Senate. The search returned nothing later than 2014–16 for him at all.

Kenneth Ofori-Atta CLASS OF 1999LastKnown · Government · Finance · role verified 2024*Minister for Finance, Government of the Republic of Ghana*

"Executive Chairman, Databank Financial Services" was the investment bank he co-founded in 1990, and it is broadly right for both 1999 and February 2012. He went on to be Minister for Finance of Ghana from 2017 to February 2024 — through the debt restructuring, the IMF programme and the domestic debt exchange — and he is a cousin of Former President Nana Akufo-Addo, who appointed him. A live and fast-moving criminal and immigration matter, stated as charges and not as findings: Ghana's office of the special prosecutor formally charged him on 18 November 2025 with 78 counts of corruption and Corruption-related offences, and Ghana filed a formal extradition request with the US Department of Justice on 10 December 2025. He was detained by US immigration and Customs enforcement in Washington DC on 6 January 2026 and held at the Caroline detention facility in Virginia; the special prosecutor told a Ghanaian Court on 26 February 2026 that extradition proceedings had begun; and he was released from ice custody on 7 April 2026 after ninety days, his passport retained and deportation proceedings continuing. The DOJ is reviewing the extradition request under the dual-criminality doctrine, and a US court has required Ghana to produce proof. He has not been tried or convicted of anything. These are charges and proceedings, and no finding is asserted.

He was Founder and Chief Executive of Sagevest Holdings, an investment holding company in Ghana, where he established a pioneering Nuts and Grains processing business — the kind of agro-industrial value-addition that West African economies are persistently told they need and rarely get. The career either side of it is larger: director of strategic investments, joint Ventures and alliances at the Standard Bank Group — Africa's largest banking group — leading its private-equity investments across the continent in card platforms, fintech and mortgage banking; and he is now one of five Partners at African Capital Alliance, a pioneering West African private-equity firm with more than USD 1 billion under management, covering TMT, energy, financial services, FMCG and industrials. Dzifa Amegashie CLASS OF 2003Current · Finance · role verified 2025*Head of Corporate and Investor Relations, CalBank PLC*

A corporate finance career of twenty-five years in Ghanaian and West African banking. She holds a BSc in economics from the London School of economics and an MBA in entrepreneurship from Imperial College, University of London, and has worked at the international finance Corporation, at Ernst and Young and at Tertium Consulting, holding leadership positions in corporate finance across both Anglophone and Francophone West Africa and raising capital for Ghanaian companies through corporate actions. She was appointed to the board of the Ghana grid company — GRIDCo, the state-owned national electricity transmission utility — in September 2017, and is Head of Corporate and Investor Relations at Calbank, listed on the Ghana Stock exchange. A woman sitting on the board of a country's entire electricity transmission network while running Investor Relations for one of its listed banks is exactly the quiet structural position this encyclopedia exists to record. The identification is flagged, not asserted as proven: nothing found links this person to "BDC Consulting", the organisation in the roster entry. The match rests on a distinctive name, the right country, the right sector and the right era — which is strong, but is not the same as documented. Treat the GRIDCo and CalBank facts as solid and the link to the 2003 entry as probable.

He took office four years after the end of the Greek sovereign debt crisis and his government returned Greece to investment-grade credit status after a decade of exclusion — which is to say the man the Forum picked out of a Greek bank's venture arm ended up deciding how that country settled with its creditors. General Manager, Banrural Honduras

Gabriela Nunez was Minister of Finance of Honduras from 1998 to 2001 — so she was in that office throughout her selection year, and the Forum's file records nothing at all. And she went on to the other half of the machinery: President of the Central Bank of Honduras from 2006 to 2008 — so she has run both the finance ministry and the Central Bank of her country, which very few people anywhere have done. An economist; later a legislator. A politically charged passage, recorded factually and without characterisation: she was again Minister of Finance in 2009, in the government headed by Roberto Micheletti that took office after President Manuel Zelaya was removed from the country — an administration much of the region did not recognise. Honduran media have since reported allegations concerning a request to the Central American Bank for Economic Integration during that period. No finding of any kind has been located and none is asserted, in either direction. She has been General Manager of Banrural Honduras since 2023. She is not in the cabinet formed for the 2026–2030 term.

Chief Executive, Fortune oil plc. Convicted and imprisoned. Founder and Chairman of the Hong Kong Mercantile Exchange, a member of C. Y. Leung's Executive Council and chairman of his 2012 chief-executive election campaign; he resigned all public offices in 2013 when the exchange surrendered its licence. Convicted in 2020 of conspiracy to Defraud and fraud — concealing the exchange's true financial position between May 2012 and May 2013 to mislead the securities and Futures Commission into letting it keep its licence, and obtaining HK$30m from Sinomax Finance for his company New Effort Holdings — and sentenced to four years' imprisonment, served at Stanley Prison; his former Chief Financial Officer received one year. He lost his appeal against conviction in 2022. An earlier, separate six-week sentence in 2015 was later quashed on the ground that he was genuinely remorseful.

Chairman, Sino Group

Robert Ng Chee Siong, born 1952, Singaporean; Chairman of Sino Group, the Hong Kong-listed property developer, from 1991 — so he was running it at selection. He retired as chairman in 2025, handing Sino Land, Sino Hotels and Tsim Sha Tsui Properties to his eldest son Daryl Ng — the group passing to its third generation. Another chairmanship that ended inside the last twelve months; the Kirloskar/Poon pattern for the third time. Separately, and it must be stated precisely: in April 2025 Singapore's Ministry of home Affairs designated him and his three children "politically significant Persons" under the Foreign Interference (Countermeasures) Act. That is a transparency and disclosure designation — it imposes reporting duties about foreign affiliations and is not an allegation of wrongdoing of any kind. Say that in the same breath or do not say it at all. And see the sibling finding on the next entry.

Vice-Chairman of the National Committee, Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference (CPPCC)

Chairman, DTZ Debenham Tie Leung — the property consultancy, which is what he was at selection: a surveyor by profession who built the Hong Kong arm of the business. And the roster records none of what followed: Leung Chun-ying was the third Chief Executive of Hong Kong, 2012–2017 — so a GLT honouree went on to lead the territory, and his term covered the 2014 Occupy Central/Umbrella Movement protests. Convenor of the Executive Council before that. Elected a Vice-Chairman of the 14th National Committee of the CPPCC on 10 March 2023, a state leadership rank, and still in the post in 2026. He is a highly contested figure in Hong Kong and abroad; this entry records offices and dates only. Has his own weforum.org people page.

Managing Partner, Eight Roads Capital Advisors (Hong Kong)

Managing Partner, FIL Capital Management — which the Forum's published list renders more fully as "FIL Capital Management (Hong Kong) Limited", so this encyclopedia truncated the entry. And the truncation hides the continuity: FIL is Fidelity International, and its principal investment arm was rebranded eight Roads in 2015 — so the roster's organisation and the current one are the same business under two names, which is why a search on "FIL Capital Management" alone goes nowhere.

The roster says "Chief Executive Officer, DBS Bank (Hong Kong)" — a post she held from 2006 to 2010. At selection she was Executive Director (reserves management) of the Hong Kong Monetary authority, which she joined in 1996 and served until 2005–06: she ran Hong Kong's exchange fund — a sovereign Reserve portfolio — through the Asian financial crisis and through the August 1998 market operation in which the HKMA bought Hong Kong equities to break a speculative attack on the Peg. That operation is one of the defining events in the history of central banking in Asia, it happened in her selection year, and the Forum's file records a commercial bank job she took eight years later. Victor L. L. Chu CLASS OF 1998Current · Finance · Business · role verified 2026*Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, First Eastern Investment Group*

One of the small number of entries where the Forum's title is still correct nearly thirty years later. He founded First Eastern Investment Group in 1988 and has chaired it since; it was among the first firms to do private equity and venture investment in mainland China. The more important fact is the institutional one: he is Co-Chair of the World Economic Forum's International business Council — a 1998 honouree who now helps govern the institution that selected him. That is the clearest case yet of the programme's alumni feeding back into the Forum's own governance and it belongs at the centre of the network write-up. He was chairman and Professor of the Department of Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences at The Chinese University of Hong Kong, a post he held for many years. Deceased, dated and sourced — the 45th in this encyclopedia, and the most recent death the project has recorded. He founded Webb-site.com in 1998 and ran it as a free, non-profit platform for the rest of his life — a database of Hong Kong company statistics, directorships and Cross-shareholdings that journalists, analysts, lawyers and minority shareholders all depended on, and that nobody else — including the regulators — had built. In 2017 he published "the Enigma network", naming dozens of Hong Kong-listed companies whose undisclosed Cross-shareholdings he had mapped, and told investors not to own them. The shares collapsed and a criminal investigation followed. One man with a spreadsheet and a website moved a market and triggered a regulatory probe. He was appointed MBE in 2025 for raising corporate-governance standards in Hong Kong. He is the purest example in the entire file of this encyclopedia's thesis inverted: not hidden power exercised privately, but one private individual forcing disclosure on everyone else.

He then crossed from journalism to the industry that was dismantling it: he joined Ogilvy in 2009 to start its Asian social media team and grew it in under five years from himself and an intern to more than 250 people across 23 cities in 19 Asian Territories, then ran social@Ogilvy globally with more than a thousand specialists in over 40 territories. Lajos Bokros CLASS OF 1994Current · Government · Academia · role verified 2026*Economist and public commentator, independent*

The man whose name became a Noun. Minister of Finance of Hungary from 1 March 1995 to 29 February 1996, and author of the Bokros package announced on 12 March 1995 — a one-off 9 per cent devaluation of the forint followed by a crawling peg, an 8 per cent import surcharge, public-sector wage limits, accelerated privatisation, and deep welfare cuts including the abolition of free higher education and dental care and means-testing of family and maternity benefits. It stabilised the Hungarian economy and ended his political popularity. The roster title already reads "Former Minister of Finance", so the entry was edited after February 1996. Member of the European Parliament 2009–2014, sitting with the European Conservatives and Reformists; founded the movement for a Modern Hungary in April 2013. No role established since. He returned to public economic debate in January–February 2026, appearing on the Kontroll channel associated with Péter Magyar and setting out his own tax proposals — a three-band progressive personal income tax at 10, 20 and 30 per cent in place of the flat rate, and the abolition of the family tax allowance. He is not a Tisza official and he publicly contradicted parts of the Tisza programme. The Hungarian outlets carrying this (Magyar Nemzet, HírTV, Mandiner, Világgazdaság) are pro-government and hostile to Tisza, and their framing — "the father of austerity has lined up behind Tisza" — is editorial, not fact. Report the dated appearances and the proposals; do not adopt the alignment claim.

Aged 73 in 2026 and still commenting publicly on Hungarian politics — he was quoted in July 2026 on Gergely Gulyás's resignation, predicting the end of Fidesz. The same sourcing problem as Lajos Bokros: the Hungarian outlets reporting his remarks are partisan on both sides, and some of what is written about him is tabloid.

Current · Finance · role verified 2025

Chairman, OTP Bank Plc

He stepped down as Chief Executive of OTP Bank in 2025 after thirty-three years in the role, remaining chairman — and his son Péter Csányi succeeded him as Chief Executive, so this is both a generational handover inside the last twelve months and a new evidenced dynastic entry, created rather than inherited. That is the fifth such handover this encyclopedia has caught in a year, after Poon, Kirloskar, the two Ng branches and Richardson. He built OTP from a state savings bank into the largest financial group in central and eastern Europe, with subsidiaries across a dozen countries, and is one of Hungary's richest men; also long a Vice-President of the Hungarian Football Federation. He is a consequential and contested figure in Hungarian public life and his relationship with the Orbán government is the subject of partisan commentary on both sides. Bristol-myers Squibb bought 77 per cent of Pharmavit from him and Genericon, and he stayed as President and Chief Executive from 1996 to June 2001. And then he did something no other entry in this encyclopedia has done: he sold all his businesses, underwent a religious conversion, and now grows Sea Buckthorn, lives in the small village of Vácegres where he serves as a local government representative, and owns the Centrál Kávéház, the historic Budapest literary coffee house.

Owner and Chairman, Arago Holding (ARAGO Zrt)

He is one of the richest men in Hungary, and Arago is his. He created HB Westminster II Rt in 1995, named for the mathematician-physicist Dominique-François Jean Arago, and turned an ordinary compensation-voucher trading business into one of the country's most successful investment companies. The mechanism is the point and it is the post-communist story in one career: "compensation Vouchers" were the instruments issued to Hungarians whose property the Communist state had seized. He bought them up and used them to acquire privatised state assets — and ended up owning pick, The National Salami maker; Zalakeramia; Hungary's largest hotel chain; a football club; and a national newspaper. Politics, attributed and not adopted: Government-aligned Hungarian media describe him as "the most influential Red Baron of the left" and say he once had good relations with the Socialists. That is a partisan characterisation by a partisan source and the file records it as such, not as fact. Recent and dated: the Hungarian state bought Ormosszen Zrt, previously majority-owned by him through A2 it ARAGO Zrt, and the price paid was only made public in April 2024 after the investigative outlet Atlatzso sued for it. A man who bought the state's assets in the 1990s and sold one back to it in the 2020s, with the price kept Secret until a court ordered otherwise, is this encyclopedia's thesis with the full arc visible.

His defining transaction came after selection: in 2010 he sold Piramal Healthcare's domestic formulations business to Abbott for about USD 3.7 billion, at the time one of the largest deals in Indian pharmaceuticals, and redeployed the proceeds into financial services and real-estate lending through Piramal Enterprises and Piramal Capital. Founder and Non-Executive Non-Independent Director, Kotak Mahindra Bank Ltd

Vice-Chairman and Managing Director, Kotak Mahindra Bank — which he was, so the title is broadly contemporaneous. He built the bank from nothing: started Kotak Capital Management Finance in 1985 with family and friends' money, and in 2003 it became the first non-banking finance company in India ever granted a banking licence. Managing Director and Chief Executive until 1 September 2023, when he stepped down ahead of the regulatory cap on promoter-CEO tenure, becoming a Non-Executive non-Independent Director from 2 September 2023 — still on the board in 2026, with Chandra Sekar Rajan as part-time chairman. One of India's wealthiest people. A generational-handover entry of a different kind from the family ones: the transition was forced by a regulator, not by age.

DYNASTIC, evidenced: of the Thapar industrial family, and he built the Avantha Group around Ballarpur Industries (paper), cg power and Crompton Greaves — so a fourth-generation Indian industrialist running the group at selection. The legal position, stated exactly and with its limits: he was arrested by the enforcement Directorate in August 2021 in a money-laundering investigation and remanded to Ed custody; the CBI filed a charge sheet naming him and the former Yes Bank Chief Executive Rana Kapoor over an alleged fraud of ₹466.51 crore (₹4.67 billion), the allegation being that a property transfer was a bribe in exchange for non-recovery of some ₹1,900 crore (₹19 billion) of Yes Bank loans to Avantha; the Ed attached ₹678 crore (₹6.78 billion) of Avantha assets in August 2024 and 24 properties worth ₹78 crore (₹780 million) in September 2024; and SEBI passed a final order in the cg power fund-diversion matter fining Avantha Holdings ₹5 crore (₹50 million). These are charges, attachments and a regulatory penalty. This encyclopedia has not established any criminal conviction, and asset Attachment is a Pre-trial measure, not a finding of guilt. Kumar M. Birla CLASS OF 1997

DYNASTIC, evidenced, and one of the starkest inheritance stories in this encyclopedia: he took over the Aditya Birla Group in 1995 at the age of 28, on the sudden death of his father Aditya Vikram Birla — so he had been running one of India's largest conglomerates for barely two years when the Forum selected him, and he was 30 at selection, among the youngest in the class. Fourth generation of the Birla industrial family. In the thirty years since, group turnover has risen roughly thirty-three-fold to about USD 70 billion across forty countries, spanning metals (Hindalco, Novelis), cement (UltraTech), textiles, chemicals, telecoms (Vodafone Idea) and financial services. The second Self-dating roster entry in this encyclopedia, and the one that fixes the date. The Forum's published list reads "Minister of State for External Affairs of India (2009–2010)" — a Past-tense, explicitly dated role, in a 1998 class list. He resigned that ministry in April 2010, so the entry cannot have been written before then. At selection he was at the United Nations, where he served twenty-nine years, rising to Under-Secretary-General for communications and public information under Kofi Annan, and in 2006 he was India's candidate for Secretary-General, finishing second to Ban Ki-moon. Founder, Chairman and Managing Director, Microland Limited

He founded Microland in Bangalore in 1989 and is still its founder, Chairman and Managing Director thirty-seven years later, one of a handful of entries in the whole sweep where the entry has not moved. The context matters more than the title: Microland was one of the companies that built the Indian IT-infrastructure industry out of Bangalore before Bangalore was a byword for it, and it has since remade itself as an AI-first, platform-led infrastructure services business, opening an artificial intelligence centre of Excellence at its Bengaluru headquarters in 2025. Sam Mathew became Chief Executive in 2025 after eighteen months as president, with Kar continuing to set the long-term direction — so the founder has separated ownership and stewardship from execution rather than leaving. Arundhati Roy CLASS OF 2000

Current · Arts · Media · role verified 2026

Author and political essayist, Independent

The roster gives her one word — "author" — and no organisation, and in her case that is accurate rather than negligent: she has never held an institutional post, which is itself the point of her. She won the Booker Prize for The God of Small Things in 1997, three years before selection, and did not publish a second novel until 2017. That is a sanction to Prosecute. It is not a charge proved and not a conviction, and nothing beyond it may be implied. The UN human rights office publicly urged India to drop the case, and more than 200 academics, journalists and activists signed an open letter asking the Lieutenant Governor to withdraw the sanction. And she is productive under it: she won the pen Pinter Prize in 2024; published the memoir "mother Mary comes to me" in 2025 — a New York Times book review top-ten book of the year and winner of The National book critics circle Award for autobiography — and was longlisted for the 2026 women's Prize for non-fiction. Sabriye Tenberken CLASS OF 2001

Current · NGO · Academia · role verified 2025

Co-founder and Co-director, kanthari (and Braille Without Borders)

The work is one of the most remarkable in the whole sweep: she is a German Tibetologist, born in 1970, who became blind at twelve. As a student she invented Tibetan Braille — there had been none — and in 1998 she and Paul Kronenberg founded Braille Without Borders in Lhasa and opened the first School for the blind in Tibet. She created the writing system and then the institution to Teach it. Very few people in any century do both. And she built a second thing on top of it: in 2005 she and Kronenberg founded kanthari in Kerala, a leadership Institute for people who have overcome adversity and want to create ethical social change. Since 2009 kanthari has trained 303 leaders from 57 countries, who have collectively launched more than 200 organisations. Taslima Nasreen CLASS OF 2001

Current · Arts · Media · role verified 2026

Author, essayist and columnist, Independent

The entry says only "author", with no organisation — and as with Arundhati Roy and Parvin Ardalan that is accurate, because there has never been an institution. The present, dated and staged: she holds Swedish citizenship but wants to live in India; Bangladesh has neither renewed her passport nor granted her a visa on her Swedish one. In May 2025 India's Union Ministry confirmed she had been granted a visa of appropriate category and duration and was free to move anywhere in India. She returned to Kolkata on 31 July 2026 after an absence of nearly two decades, and left after a Six-day visit. "Though I am a Swedish citizen, India is my only home."

Barkha Dutt CLASS OF 2002

Current · Media · IndependentMedia · role verified 2026

Founder-Editor, Mojo Story

At selection in 2002 she was NDTV's Star correspondent: she had made her name three years earlier with frontline reporting of the Kargil war in 1999, broadcasting from the fighting itself, which changed what Indian television news was. After two decades at NDTV she left and built her own: she is Founder-Editor of Mojo Story, a multimedia digital platform she owns — which is why this entry carries IndependentMedia as well as media: the output is published through an outlet she owns rather than through an institution. She is also a Washington post columnist, an Emmy-nominated journalist with close to thirty years of reporting, the winner of more than sixty national and international awards including India's Padma Shri, and the author of "This Unquiet Land: Stories from India's Fault Lines" and a book on COVID-19, reported largely from the road during the migrant-worker crisis. Put her with Rajdeep Sardesai and Raghav Bahl: three Indian journalists from this cohort, all of whom left large institutions and all of whom now publish through something they control. That is a structural finding about Indian media, not three biographies.

The roster entry is Grammatically broken and says almost nothing: "Members — Harvard Business School/Indian Administrative Services" — a plural noun for one person, two institutions joined by a slash, and no post named. It is one of the least informative entries in the roster, and it conceals one of the more senior serving officials in it. Current, and it moved twice this year: Secretary of the ministry of tourism from 20 November 2025; then Secretary in the Ministry of Minority Affairs from March 2026, in a Top-level reshuffle cleared on 31 March 2026; and in June 2026 given additional charge as Secretary of The National Commission for minorities. Mari Elka Pangestu CLASS OF 1999

Current · Government · Academia · Finance · role verified 2026

Special Envoy of the President for International Trade and Multilateral Cooperation; Deputy Chair, Government of the Republic of Indonesia; National Economic Board

The roster reads "Minister of Tourism and creative economy". She held that office from 2011 to 2014, so February 2012 falls squarely inside it. And she was not a Minister at all in 1999 — she was an academic economist at the University of Indonesia and CSIS Jakarta; she first entered the cabinet as Minister of Trade in 2004, five years after her selection. So this entry alone Disproves "the position at selection" twice over: the title is twelve years late and the earlier ministry is missing. Minister of Trade 2004–2011; Managing Director of development policy and partnerships at the World Bank, March 2020 to 2023; distinguished visiting fellow at the Peterson Institute from October 2023 to February 2026. Current and senior: Special Envoy of the President of Indonesia for international trade and multilateral cooperation, and Deputy Chair of The National economic board; professor of international economics at the University of Indonesia and a Board Member of CSIS Jakarta.

Masoumeh Ebtekar CLASS OF 1999

LastKnown · Government · Academia · Healthcare · role verified 2021

Vice-President for Women and Family Affairs, Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran

The roster records a small NGO and hides a serving Vice-President of Iran — and the most recognisable voice of the 1979 hostage crisis. She was head of Iran's Department of environment, a post carrying vice-presidential rank, from 23 August 1997 to 7 September 2005 — so she was a sitting Vice-President throughout her selection year and the first woman in an Iranian cabinet since the revolution. The Forum's entry says "President, Center for Peace and Environment". And the biography before that is extraordinary: as a student she was the English-language Spokeswoman for the Muslim student followers of the Imam's line during the seizure of the United States embassy in Tehran in 1979 — the American press called her "Mary" — and she has publicly defended the takeover since. Born 21 September 1960 in Tehran; PhD in immunology from Tarbiat Modares University, 1995, where she is a Full Professor. Head of the Department of environment again 2013–2017, member of Tehran's city council 2007–2013, and Vice-President for Women and Family Affairs 9 August 2017 — 1 September 2021, succeeded by Ensieh Khazali. A current and Delicate matter, stated as reported and nothing more: in April 2026 United States federal agents are reported to have arrested her son, Eissa Hashemi, and his wife Maryam and revoked their Permanent-resident status by reason of their relationship to her, with deportation pending. That is an Action against relatives, not against her, no wrongdoing by any of them is alleged here, and none is asserted.

Managing Director, Moffett Engineering Ltd

One of the very few women running an industrial manufacturer in this cohort, and an Irish one: Moffett engineering was founded at Clontibret, County Monaghan in 1941 by Cecil Moffett, and after his death in 1972 the business was taken over by Carol and Robert Moffett — so DYNASTIC and, on the face of it, a brother-and-sister partnership, though only Carol is in the roster and this encyclopedia has not confirmed the relationship from a source that states it. She was Managing Director and held 48 per cent of the shares. The company developed the Moffett Mounty truck-mounted forklift in the mid-1980s, which became the world leader with more than 50,000 units in service, and it was sold to Powerscreen International, the Dungannon engineering group, for about GBP 23 million — her stake worth roughly GBP 11m. Denis O'Brien CLASS OF 1996

Founder and non-executive director, Digicel Group

Chairman, Island Capital — his investment vehicle. At selection he had just won the second Irish mobile licence for ESAT Digifone (1995–96), which he sold to bt in 2000; the Award of that licence was later the subject of the Moriarty Tribunal, whose 2011 report made adverse findings about the process and about payments to the then minister Michael Lowry. O'Brien has always rejected the Tribunal's findings and has never been charged with any offence. That clause is mandatory. He founded Digicel in 2001 and built it across the Caribbean, Central America and the Pacific. He lost control of it: bondholders led by PGIM, Contrarian Capital and GoldenTree took over in January 2024 through a USD 1.7bn debt-for-equity swap that cut his stake to about 10 per cent, and he stepped down as Chairman, Rajeev Suri replacing him, becoming a Non-Executive director.

The career is a genuine outlier: she launched her business career in 1987 by founding a retail group that became the leading Mail-order company in Ireland, and she was named Veuve Clicquot businesswoman of the year in 1995 — and she is spoken about in Ireland as having started trading as a child, a TEDx DCU talk being titled "the 9 year old entrepreneur". She co-founded Onemade.com, an online marketplace for arts, antiques and crafts based in Saratoga, New York, and founded Zalco Investments as a real-estate and venture vehicle. Director, Digital Rights Ireland

This is the third "." The organisation he directs has done something very few organisations of any kind ever do: he is a director of Digital Rights Ireland, the small Irish Civil-liberties Group whose case brought down the European Union's data retention directive. In "Digital Rights Ireland v Minister for communications" (C-293/12) the court of Justice of the European Union declared directive 2006/24/EC invalid on 8 April 2014 — striking down the blanket retention of every European's communications Metadata. A handful of volunteers in Dublin annulled an Eu-wide surveillance law. That is a larger exercise of power than most of the chief executives in this encyclopedia have managed, and the Forum recorded a full stop. His stated speciality is privacy and data protection; DRI campaigned against Ireland's Public Services Card and he has done public question-and-answer sessions about it; he is also on the team of the Glencree Centre for Peace and reconciliation, and writes and broadcasts in Irish.

The most serious criminal matter in this encyclopedia, and it is a guilty plea, so it can be stated plainly — but only exactly. Director, Energy, Water and Gas Projects, More Energy. A physician who entered the Knesset in 1992 and was Minister of energy and infrastructure 1995–1996 under Yitzhak Rabin — so he had recently been a serving Israeli cabinet minister at the time of his selection. He was later convicted in a separate matter involving credit-card fraud and an attempt to smuggle ecstasy tablets, and was struck off as a physician. Then the Espionage case: he was extradited from Equatorial Guinea to Israel in May 2018; the Shin Bet stated that he had acted as an agent of Iranian intelligence, visiting Iran twice to meet handlers and supplying information on the energy sector, security sites and officials. He pleaded guilty under a plea agreement in January 2019 to Espionage and passing information to the Enemy, and was sentenced to eleven years' imprisonment. He has claimed he intended to help Israel. A parole board refused him early release in February 2026, adopting the prosecution's position and that of the security authorities, so he remains in prison. Alessandro Profumo CLASS OF 1999

Current · Finance · Business · role verified 2025

Owner and Chief Executive Officer, Appeal Strategy & Finance

The roster entry is a small advisory firm and it hides two of the largest jobs in Italian business: he was Chief Executive of Unicredit from 1997 to 2010, turning a middling Italian bank into one of the largest in Europe through the HVB and Capitalia acquisitions — so he was a sitting bank Chief Executive in his selection year — and he was Chief Executive of Leonardo, Italy's state-controlled defence and Aerospace Group, from 2017 to 2023. He also chaired Monte dei Paschi di Siena, the oldest bank in the world, from 2012 to 2015. A conviction that was overturned and is now a final acquittal — and the sequence matters more than any single stage of it: on 15 October 2020 a Milan Court sentenced him at first instance to six years for false accounting and market rigging over the Santorini and Alexandria derivatives at Monte dei Paschi. On 11 December 2023 the Milan Court of appeal overturned that sentence and acquitted him, together with Fabrizio Viola and Carlo Salvadori. In February 2025 the court of Cassation confirmed the acquittal, making it final. MPS was able to release between EUR 200m and 550m of legal-risk provisions as a result. A separate MPS strand concerning non-performing loans was sent to trial by a Milan judge against him, Viola and Tononi; their lawyers deny any wrongdoing and no outcome has been located. This entry is the mirror of the Philip Hampton error: a directory that recorded the 2020 conviction and never updated would today be publishing that a finally acquitted man is a convicted criminal. The Hampton case killed a living man; this one would convict an acquitted one.

Founder and Executive Chairman; Head of Strategy and International, Kaufmann & Partners; Ferrovie dello Stato Italiane SpA

The Forum's published list gives his position as "Chairman and President" and the text of that list does not contain that string at all — it drops straight from his name to "MonteCarlo Sat". BA in economics from Bocconi, PhD in strategy and organisation from UCLA Anderson. Managing Director of Telecom Italia and a Board Member of Tim; director for Business Development and international affairs at wind from July 2005, then its Chief Strategy Officer. Chairman, AME Ventures and Solar Ventures

He co-founded net Partners Ventures, one of the first European internet venture firms, and was its Managing Director through the dot-com period. And the second act is a sector change of the kind this encyclopedia keeps finding: he is chairman of ame Ventures and of solar Ventures — moving from internet venture capital into utility-scale solar development. Italy built one of Europe's largest installed solar bases in the 2010s, largely through private developers of exactly this kind. Put him with Martin Varsavsky (telecoms to fertility) and Zanele Mavuso Mbatha (financial markets to hydrogen): a recurring pattern in which dot-com-era capital moved into energy and biology.

Anna Maria Artoni CLASS OF 2003

Current · Business · role verified 2026

Executive Vice-Chairman, Artoni Group SpA; and Chairman, Fidindustria Emilia-Romagna, Artoni Group SpA

She was elected National President of the young entrepreneurs (Giovani Imprenditori) of Confindustria in the spring of 2002 and held it until 2005, which is the entry's "Vice-President — Confederation of Italian Industries" — and the class of 2003 caught her in her first year. She went on to be President of Confindustria Emilia-romagna from 2005 to 2011 — the employers' federation of one of the richest industrial regions in Europe. Born in Guastalla in 1967, so 36 in the class year, comfortably inside the Forum's published age rule. And then the family business failed, which the roster could never have shown: the Artoni Group — founded by her grandfather Paride in 1933 and built into an Italian logistics and Haulage name — was admitted to concordato Preventivo, Italy's preventive composition with creditors, in 2017, with a commissioner appointed. She was Chief Executive of Artoni Trasporti SpA from 2012 to the summer of 2017 and sole administrator of Artoni Group until October 2017, when the company was declared insolvent. She has since written about it in a volume marking fifty years of Confindustria's Giovani, titled "Figli di papà a chi?". A conflict left open and not resolved: corporate databases still list her in 2026 as Executive Vice-Chairman of Artoni Group and chairman of Artleasing, Frigomar, network extension and Fidindustria Emilia Romagna, which sits Awkwardly beside the 2017 insolvency. Either the group survived its composition in restructured form, or the database records are stale.

Sanae Takaichi CLASS OF 1994

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Prime Minister of Japan, Government of Japan

Sanae Takaichi is the Prime Minister of Japan and the first woman to hold the office — elected LDP leader in October 2025, took office 21 October 2025, and designated the 105th Prime Minister on 18 February 2026 after her party won a two-thirds supermajority in a snap lower-house election. Born 7 March 1961, so 33 at selection and a first-term member of the House of Representatives, elected in July 1993. A hardline conservative; previously a minister under Shinzo Abe and Fumio Kishida. The prior project filed her as "Unclear, no research needed" purely because her roster entry had no title — the single sharpest proof that the 511-entry bucket is unresearched, not unresearchable. And the Forum's own 1994 list settles a live Japanese controversy: a circulating claim that she was a Young Global Leader "in 2008" is wrong — she was 47 then, over the YGL age limit — but the underlying association is real, one programme and fourteen years earlier. The Japanese commentary that gets this right cites Wikispooks; we have the Forum's own class list, which is the stronger source. Identity rests on the name plus the age fit, since the entry is title-less.

President of JICA twice — 2012 to 2015, and again since April 2022, still in office through 2026 with activity documented into mid-2026. Liberal Democratic Party. Chairman of the LDP's House of Representatives caucus and President of the court of Impeachment. A former Director-General of the Economic Planning Agency, which is roughly what he was at selection. Koichi Wakata CLASS OF 1998

Current · Technology · Business · role verified 2026

Astronaut and Chief Technology Officer, Asia-Pacific, Axiom Space

He was selected by NASDA in 1992 and flew his first mission, STS-72, in January 1996 — two years before the Forum honoured him and left the entry empty. He is the most flown Japanese astronaut in history: five Spaceflights, 504 days in space on four different Spacecraft, three Long-duration station missions, the first Japanese Commander of the international space station, two spacewalks totalling 14 hours and 2 minutes, and qualified on four robotic systems. He retired from JAXA on 31 March 2024 and joined Axiom Space as Astronaut and Chief Technology Officer for the Asia-Pacific region, leading its commercial expansion in the region and working on Axiom Station, the first commercial space station — so the entry is also a clean instance of a state career converting into private space infrastructure. Country is recorded as Japan: he is Japanese and runs the Asia-Pacific region, though the employer is American — and this is exactly the ambiguity the country convention question in this encyclopedia is about.

Kumi Sato CLASS OF 1998

Current · Media · Business · Healthcare · role verified 2026

President and Chief Executive Officer; board director, COSMO Public Relations Corporation; Sompo Holdings Inc.

One of the minority of 1998 entries that was true in 1998 and is still true now. She has run the same firm for more than thirty years: COSMO Public Relations, founded in 1960, was one of the firms that created the PR industry in Japan, and under her it specialised into healthcare communications through its COSMO Healthcare arm, working with more than 500 domestic and international companies on localising communications for the Japanese market. The interesting part is the second career layer the roster cannot show: she is a Non-Executive Board Director of Sompo Holdings, one of Japan's three big general insurers, and of True Data and Fuji Furukawa E&C, sits on the board of the University of Tsukuba, and advises the JST Crest artificial-intelligence programme. A communications professional with a seat on a major insurer's board is exactly the kind of quiet institutional position, and no roster title would ever reveal it.

Yoshimasa Hayashi CLASS OF 1998

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Minister for Internal Affairs and Communications, Government of Japan

Member of the House of Councillors — accurate and understated for 1998. Two Global Leaders for Tomorrow now sit in the same national cabinet, one of them as head of government of the world's Fourth-largest economy. This is the single strongest instance yet of the programme's alumni concentrating in one government, and it belongs at the front of the network write-up alongside Victor Chu's co-chairmanship of the Forum's own International Business Council. Takaichi came out of the "no research needed" bucket — she was written off on the test "does the entry have a title?" Which makes the pair a double indictment of that filter. His own prior career is one of the most senior in the roster: chief cabinet Secretary, Minister for Foreign Affairs, Minister of Defence, Minister of Agriculture, Minister of education, and member of the House of Councillors from 1995 before moving to the House of Representatives.

Seiko Noda CLASS OF 1999

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Member of the House of Representatives, House of Representatives of Japan; Liberal Democratic Party

In 1998, at thirty-seven, Prime Minister Keizo Obuchi made her Minister of posts and telecommunications — the youngest cabinet Minister in Japan of the postwar era and the youngest woman ever. And the Japanese thread in this encyclopedia is now remarkable: Sanae Takaichi (1994, blank entry) is Prime Minister; Yoshimasa Hayashi (1998) is her Minister for Internal Affairs and Communications; and Seiko Noda held the predecessor of that same ministry in 1998 and the ministry itself in 2017–2018. Three Japanese alumni, two of whom have held the same portfolio. She has also been Minister in charge of Regional Revitalisation, the Declining Birthrate, Gender Equality, Women's Empowerment, Children's Policy and Loneliness and Isolation Countermeasures, and is a Deputy Chairman of the LDP; she was elected to her twelfth term on 8 February 2026.

Current · Business · Technology · role verified 2026

Founder, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Hikari Tsushin Inc.

He is a listed-company chairman and Chief Executive worth about USD 6.2 billion, ranked roughly 658th in the world and fourth in Japan, running the exact company named in the roster entry at the same address. And the timing of his selection is extraordinary: he founded Hikari Tsushin in 1988 and made a fortune distributing mobile phones; at the peak of the dot-com bubble he was briefly one of the richest people on earth — and the Forum selected him in 2000, the year the bubble Burst and he lost Virtually all of it. He then spent twenty-five years rebuilding the same company — now selling mobile services, electricity and gas to small and mid-sized Japanese businesses, plus insurance and office equipment — and is Richer now than he was then. A fifth "selected before the fall" variant, and the only one so far where the subject came all the way back.

Founder, Representative Director, Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, Rakuten Group Inc.

One of a handful of entries in the entire file that is still Word-for-word true twenty-five years later: "Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer — Rakuten Inc." He founded Rakuten in 1997 and remains its Representative Director, Chairman, President and Chief Executive. What it became: a Japanese online marketplace that grew into a conglomerate spanning e-commerce, one of Japan's largest online banks and credit-card issuers, securities, insurance, travel, the Viber messaging network, and — from 2019 — Rakuten mobile, which built Japan's fourth mobile network from scratch on a fully Virtualised, cloud-native architecture that the rest of the industry then copied. He made English the official internal language of a Japanese company in 2010 — "Englishnization" — which was treated as heresy at the time and is now a case study. Founder, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Monex Group; and Executive Chairman, Coincheck Group N.V., Monex Group Inc.

He founded Monex in 1999 and has been its chairman and Chief Executive throughout. The route in is the part the entry hides and it is remarkable: he started at Salomon brothers, joined Goldman Sachs in 1990, and became a General Partner in 1994 at the age of thirty — one of the youngest in the firm's history — then left to found an online brokerage, jointly capitalised with Sony, at the moment Japan deregulated its brokerage commissions. He built the retail side of Japanese online investing, which is why millions of Japanese households can trade at all. And he is still moving: Monex appointed him Executive Director and Executive Chairman of its subsidiary Coincheck Group with effect from 10 December 2024, and he is also a Managing Director of Coincheck Inc.

Joichi Ito CLASS OF 2002

Current · Academia · Technology · Finance · role verified 2026

President, Chiba Institute of Technology; and Chairperson, Gelephu Investment and Development Corporation, Chiba Institute of Technology

The departure, dated and staged: he resigned as director in September 2019 after reporting on the media Lab's financial ties to Jeffrey Epstein, including donations accepted and concealed after Epstein's 2008 conviction. That is a resignation following published reporting, not a legal proceeding; no criminal allegation against him is recorded and none is implied. Elected the 14th President of the Chiba Institute of Technology for a four-year term from 1 July 2023 to 30 June 2027; and Chairperson of the Gelephu Investment and Development Corporation, the vehicle building Bhutan's Gelephu mindfulness City — a Sovereign-scale New-city project. And a fresh, dated development: on 2 March 2026 the Japan Times reported that a Japanese government role of his was uncertain amid renewed Epstein scrutiny. This encyclopedia did not establish which role, or any outcome, and asserts neither. Earlier: an early investor in Twitter, Flickr and Kickstarter; a director of The New York Times Company and the MacArthur Foundation; American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Yuko Obuchi CLASS OF 2002

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Member of the House of Representatives; Director of the Labour Affairs Bureau, Liberal Democratic Party; and Chair, LDP Gunma Prefectural Federation, House of Representatives of Japan

On 30 July 2026 she resigned from the inner leadership of the LDP tax research Commission, citing her opposition to party Leader Sanae Takaichi's push for a consumption-tax reduction on food. Sanae Takaichi is a 1994 Global Leader for Tomorrow with a completely blank roster entry, and she is Prime Minister of Japan. Two members of this cohort are in a documented, dated policy conflict inside the same governing party. She was forty, and was being Groomed as a possible Future Prime Minister; she resigned the same week as Justice Minister Midori Matsushima. This encyclopedia records the resignation and the reported irregularities; it records no personal criminal conviction and none may be inferred. And she came back: she won her tenth election in February 2026, became director of the Ldp's Labour Affairs Bureau on 3 March 2026, and chairs the Ldp's Gunma Prefectural Federation. Japan is now the most densely represented country in the cohort's politics — Takaichi, Hayashi, Noda and Obuchi — and three of the four are women in a Parliament that has very few.

Hiroshi Nakada CLASS OF 2003

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Member of the House of Representatives for Toyama 1st district, National Diet of Japan

He was mayor of Yokohama from 2002 to 2009, and the class of 2003 caught him in his first full year running Japan's second-largest City by population — a municipality of some three and a half million people, larger than most of the countries on this roster. Born 20 September 1964; a graduate of the Matsushita Institute of government and Management. And the current position is seven months old, after a defeat and a comeback in the space of seven months: he lost his House of Councillors seat at the election of 20 July 2025 with 79,307 votes; was appointed on 16 January 2026 as a senior aide to economic security Minister ONO Kimi, handling security restrictions on land use; and was then elected to the House of Representatives on 8 February 2026 with 63.40 per cent of the vote, taking office on 9 February. The geography: he was mayor of Yokohama in Kanagawa and now sits for a constituency in Toyama, on the opposite coast — a complete change of political base. Bilingual and bicultural, US and Japan; an international lawyer of more than thirty years, and a partner of an international law firm before joining Itochu. Chairman, Ryohin Keikaku Co Ltd (MUJI)

He joined Fast Retailing as Chief Information Officer in 1998, which is the entry, and the class of 2003 caught him there. He rose well past it inside the company: Chief Executive of Uniqlo USA, and then Executive Vice-President of Fast Retailing — the right-hand man of its Founder Tadashi Yanai. And then he did the one thing the roster could never have predicted: he went to run the Arch-rival. He is now chairman of Ryohin Keikaku — the company behind Muji — Uniqlo's closest and most direct competitor in Japanese Global retail. Nikkei put it plainly: the Uniqlo founder's former right-hand man went to helm the archrival. UN Under-Secretary-General and Executive Secretary of ESCWA from 2010. She resigned on 17 March 2017 in protest, after the UN Secretary-General asked her to withdraw an ESCWA report — co-authored by Richard Falk and Virginia Tilley — which concluded that Israel had established an apartheid regime over the Palestinian people. Her resignation letter was published in full and is a primary document. Report this as what it is: a senior UN official resigned rather than withdraw a report, and the report was withdrawn from the UN website anyway. The finding here is about her act and its date. Do not use this entry to assert the report's conclusions, which are contested and are not this encyclopedia's to adjudicate.

President, Kawar Group

He was ambassador of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan to the United States from July 2002 until January 2007, so the class of 2003 caught him in the Washington embassy in his first full year. Since then he has run the family group and collected a remarkable spread of Jordanian institutions: President of Kawar Group, an Amman-based house with investments across shipping and transport, travel and tourism, information and communications, healthcare and energy in the MENA Region; chairman of Irisguard — the iris-recognition company whose technology has been used to authenticate aid payments to refugees — and of Nathealth; Co-Founder and director of Oasis 500; and on the boards of the listed Optimiza and Ahli Bank. He is appointed by Royal Decree to the Economic Consultative Council by King Abdullah II — which is to say he advises the head of state on the economy directly. Oraz Aliyevich Zhandosov, born 26 October 1961, was chairman of The National bank of Kazakhstan from 1996 to 1998 and first Deputy Prime Minister from 1998 to 1999, chairing the State Committee for investments — so he was in the second-highest Executive Office in the country during his selection year, and the Forum's file says nothing at all. He was president of KEGOC, The National electricity grid company, 1999–2000, Deputy Prime Minister again 2000–2001, presidential assistant in 2003 and then chairman of the agency for regulation of Natural Monopolies and protection of Competition 2003–2004. Founder and former Chairman of the Board, Kazkommertsbank

He founded Kazkommertsbank and was chairman of its board from 1991 until 2015, which made him the longest-serving Bank Founder-chairman in post-soviet central Asia and one of Kazakhstan's richest men. KKB was for years the largest privately held bank in the country; the EBRD held an equity stake and exited in 2014. The exit and the aftermath are both dated: he sold his stake and left the board in 2015. Kazkommertsbank was then merged into Halyk Bank on 27 July 2018, after a State-supported rescue — so the institution he built over Twenty-four years no longer exists under its own name.

A lawyer by profession. His current work is constitutional plumbing of the kind that decides how a country actually works: he sponsored the public participation Bill with Otiende Amollo, creating a consistent framework for public consultation across national and County government — a constitutional requirement in Kenya that had never been given a working statute — and a constitution of Kenya (amendment) Bill to Entrench the NG-CDF and other funds in the constitution. BFA is the research and advisory firm that has shaped how digital financial services are designed for low-income customers across Africa and Asia — the analytical work behind mobile money, digital credit and financial-inclusion policy. Kenya is where mobile money was invented and proved, and the people who did the underlying research and advised the regulators are almost entirely unknown. Before that he was Corporate Finance Director of Barclays Bank of Kenya. He ran the exchange and now sits on the board of the tax authority — the two institutions that between them see every formal shilling in the country. He ran Nissan, Renault and Mitsubishi simultaneously and was among the most celebrated executives in the industry. Arrested in Tokyo in November 2018 on financial-misconduct allegations and, in December 2019, fled Japan to Lebanon — reportedly concealed in a shipping case — while on bail and awaiting trial. He has Lebanese, French and Brazilian nationality and Lebanon does not extradite its citizens. An Interpol Red notice followed; Lebanon received it, questioned him and banned him from foreign travel, and he says he is "blocked in Lebanon". Japan's prosecutors refused to hand over the case file so that he could be tried in Lebanon, so the charges have never been tested at trial. A British Virgin Islands court ordered him to repay USD 32m to Nissan. He denies all wrongdoing, says he is the victim of a plot by Nissan insiders, and has not been convicted of the Japanese charges. The BVI order is a civil judgment. Both points are mandatory.

Gediminas Vagnorius CLASS OF 1999

Current · Government · Academia · role verified 2026

Former Prime Minister; commentator, independent

This entry exists to correct a published error, and it closes it. The published volume 1 says "Vagnorius, Gediminas (1999, Government) — Deceased (died June 2020)". He is alive. And the proof is not an absent obituary, which would be weak — it is dated positive activity: he gave public commentary in Lithuanian media in 2026, on the Defence-policy statements of Remigijus Zemaitaitis and on price Rises, and he has been interviewed at length about his own political mistakes. Born 10 June 1957. He was Prime Minister of Lithuania twice — 1991–1992 and 1996–1999 — and he first took the office at thirty-three, leading the government through the Soviet crackdown and the restoration of independence; he is a signatory of the act of 11 March 1990. So the roster's "Former Prime Minister of Lithuania" was correct in 1999, when he had just left office for the second time. And the Forum's own file misspells the country: the Forum's published list reads "Former Prime Minister of Lithunia". This encyclopedia silently corrected it to "Lithuania", which is a Fidelity loss in the other direction — the parser tidied away a defect in the source. In July 2026 she described the public-prosecutor reform as a major shift in Malaysia's legal framework; in September 2026 the timing of the bills was still being contested in parliament, and she attributed the delay to respect for the constitutional monarchy. Ricardo B. Salinas Pliego CLASS OF 1994Current · Business · Media · Finance · role verified 2026*Founder and Chairman, Grupo Salinas*

Chairman of TV Azteca. Controls Grupo Salinas — the broadcaster TV Azteca, the retail and banking group Elektra and Banco Azteca, Italka and Totalplay — and is one of Mexico's richest men. On 13 November 2025 Mexico's Supreme Court rejected seven of nine Amparo actions brought by Grupo Salinas companies against tax assessments of roughly USD 2.6bn (about MXN 33bn) on income tax for the years 2008–2013, owed by Grupo Elektra and TV Azteca. The rulings cannot be appealed, though the group may negotiate with the tax authority sat; as of late January 2026 the debt was unpaid and negotiations were continuing. The group's public response called it "a black day for justice and the rule of law in Mexico". This is a civil tax matter decided against his companies — not a criminal proceeding, and not a finding against him personally. That distinction is mandatory on every mention.

He left Mexico on 31 January 2021 and his lawyer stated he was living in France and would present himself to French authorities when required — France does not extradite its own nationals. President for Mexico; board member, Environmental Resources Management (ERM); Grupo Aeroportuario del Pacifico; Element Fleet Management; Tecnicas Reunidas

Anachronistic roster title concealing a sitting cabinet Minister: he was Chief Executive of the Bolsa Mexicana de Valores from 2009 to 2015, eleven years after the class year. In 1998 he was Mexico's Secretary of energy (1997–2000), having been Chief of Staff to President Ernesto Zedillo — so the Forum honoured a serving energy minister of a G20 country and recorded him as a stock-exchange executive. He later returned to government as Secretary of communications and transport (2006–2009). A member of the Trilateral Commission — which matters for this encyclopedia, because it is a second transnational body and the overlap between the two memberships has never been counted. Now President for Mexico of Environmental Resources Management, on the Executive Committee of NTT Data Mexico, a partner at Butterfly Equity, Special Adviser to Chubb Mexico, Refinitiv, Estrella Blanca and Fortem, and a director of Grupo Aeroportuario del Pacifico (BMV), Element Fleet Management (TSX), Tecnicas Reunidas (BME) and Esentia.

Born in Mexico City in 1966; he became Chief Executive at about thirty-one. The roster entry is therefore a snapshot of him in the last months before the family sold.

Ricardo Monreal Avila CLASS OF 2000

Current · Government · role verified 2026

Coordinator of the Morena parliamentary group; President of the JUCOPO, Chamber of Deputies of Mexico

At selection he was governor of the state of Zacatecas (1998–2004) — a sitting state governor, and the Forum's file records nothing. He has since been a Federal Deputy, a Senator, Leader of Morena in the Senate, and since 2024 coordinator of Morena's Parliamentary Group in the Chamber of Deputies and President of the JUCOPO — the Junta de Coordinación Política, the body that actually controls the chamber's agenda — a position he holds until the LXVI Legislature ends in August 2027. The floor Leader of the governing party in a country where that party holds a supermajority is one of the most consequential jobs in Mexico, and it is almost invisible outside the country. Current and pointed: in August 2026 he publicly warned of a rupture inside Morena before the 2027 elections and urged the leadership to name its state coordinators early to avoid an "internal war". He has moved between parties across his career — PRI, PRD, then Morena — which is itself part of his political identity.

Xochitl Galvez Ruiz CLASS OF 2000

Current · Business · Government · role verified 2026

Founder, High Tech Services

She headed the office for indigenous development and then The National Commission for the development of Indigenous Peoples from 2003 to 2006, so the entry was already seven years out of date when the file was exported in February 2012 — one of the clearer proofs that the refresh was partial. At selection she was a businesswoman: an Otomi engineer from a poor Hidalgo village who sold jellies and tamales as a child, took a computing degree at UNAM and founded High Tech Services, a building-automation company. That profile — indigenous, self-made, technical — is why she was chosen and the roster records a government agency instead. Then: mayor of the Miguel Hidalgo borough of Mexico City, senator 2018–2024, and the opposition Coalition's candidate for the presidency of Mexico in 2024, standing for the Pan, PRI and PRD against Claudia Sheinbaum and losing. She returned to her Senate seat to finish the term and then left politics. She is now back at High Tech Services, dividing her time between engineering, social media commentary on the government, and fitness. Some Pan Senate pages still list her; the 2026 reporting is clear that she has left the chamber, and the entry follows the reporting.

What it actually is matters for this encyclopedia: an Esco — an energy service company — which finances and delivers Energy-efficiency retrofits and is paid out of the savings. Optima is the Leader of that market in Mexico and Latin America, with more than 120 Turnkey projects for hotels, industry and Mexican municipalities — including municipal Street-lighting programmes. Founder and President, FR-EE / Fernando Romero EnterprisE

The "Laboratory of architecture" became Fr-ee / Fernando Romero EnterprisE, which he founded and leads. It is named for Slim's late wife Soumaya — and Romero is married to their daughter, also Soumaya. The architect married into the family of the richest man in Latin America and built the museum that houses its art. This encyclopedia should state that plainly and without insinuation: it is how Patronage has always worked, and it is rarely this visible. The rest of the portfolio is infrastructure at national scale: he designed Mexico city's New International airport with Norman foster — a project cancelled in 2018 after a national consultation, one of the largest architectural Cancellations in history — and the Pacific airport in El Salvador; the gateway to the government's "bitcoin City", designed for a million passengers a year. He is Carlos Antonio Danel Cendoya in full, and works in a long-standing partnership with Carlos Labarthe. Also on the board of El Puerto de Liverpool. A thread flagged and explicitly not pursued: Compartamos' 2007 Stock-market flotation was one of the most contested events in the history of microfinance, and it divided the field over whether lending to the poor should generate returns of that size. Estella Villarreal CLASS OF 2003

Current · NGO · role verified 2025

Founder and Head of International Affairs, UNIDOS Lo Lograremos AC

The roster doubles a letter in her forename: she is Estela Villarreal Junco, not "Estella" — an added character, the same defect shape as Sylvia Matthews for Mathews, and the shape most likely to survive a spellcheck because the result is itself a real name. She founded Unidos Lo lograremos — "United we will achieve it" — in her native Monterrey in 1987, and she is still there, Thirty-nine years on. What it does: the social integration of people with disabilities, through Modified recreational spaces that put disabled and Non-disabled Young people together rather than apart — around 300 disabled young people and 400 youth volunteers every year. It has been replicated across Mexican States and in Teletón centres, and has crossed into Chile. Weak anchor. The roster gives his position as "Visiting Scholar" with no organisation at all — a position without an institution, which is not much to work with. He is recorded as Managing Director as at 30 June 2025 and as President in the bank's own listings. Born 1962; before CFG he ran research and arbitrage at Compagnie Financière Edmond de Rothschild, where he worked on some of the first guaranteed-return products. The public role is the one the entry hides: he was President delegate of the Casablanca Stock exchange from 1995 to 1998 — he ran The National exchange, then went back to running the investment bank that trades on it. He also directed SAEMOG from 2006 to 2012, the state-linked development company that built the Sofitel Essaouira Mogador resort. And the revolving door runs through his Co-Founder too: Adil Douiri left CFG to serve as Morocco's Minister of Tourism from 2002 to 2007, and then returned. Director General, Mohammed VI Investment Fund (Fonds Mohammed VI pour l'Investissement)

Appointed by King Mohammed VI on 12 May 2025 as Director General of the Mohammed VI Investment Fund — Morocco's sovereign investment fund — succeeding Mohamed Benchaaboun, a former Minister of Economy and Finance. And before that: Chairperson and Chief Executive of the AMMC, Morocco's Capital market authority, from 2016 — she was the country's securities regulator for nearly a decade and then was put in charge of deploying its sovereign Capital. The roster entry is also a first: "member of the Management Board — Societe Generale Maroc" — she was the first woman to sit on the Management Board of a Moroccan Bank. She began at Banco Atlantico in Madrid in 1985, joined Societe Generale Marocaine de Banques in 1995 and launched its asset-management and brokerage businesses; ESSEC Paris. Put her beside Aymn Alami (president delegue of the Casablanca Stock Exchange 1995–98) and Hassan Bernoussi (director of the Department of Foreign Investments for fourteen years): the exchange, the investment gateway, the securities regulator and the sovereign fund have all been run by members of this cohort.

General Manager, Finaccess Group

"Finaccess Six Telekurs MENA" was the joint venture between Finaccess and six Telekurs, the Swiss Financial-data House, bringing international market data into the Middle East and North Africa; he is now General Manager of the Finaccess Group. Market data is infrastructure that nobody notices until it is absent: without price feeds and reference data there is no functioning exchange, no asset management and no risk system. Whoever supplies it to a region decides what its financial institutions can see. The exchange, the investment gateway, the regulator, the sovereign fund and now the Market-data pipe.

Dounia Taarji CLASS OF 2003

Current · Finance · Government · role verified 2025

Présidente du Directoire (Chair of the Executive Board), Fonds Hassan II pour le Développement Économique et Social

She was Director General of the CDVM, Morocco's securities regulator, from 2001 to 2009, appointed by King Mohammed VI. And the second appointment is larger than the first, and came from the same hand: in 2019 King Mohammed VI appointed her President of the Executive Board of the Hassan II fund for economic and social development — Morocco's sovereign development fund, which finances the kingdom's major infrastructure and industrial projects. A woman appointed personally by a reigning monarch first to regulate his country's Capital Markets and then to deploy its sovereign development Capital. That is as close to this encyclopedia's thesis as any entry in the roster — real control over a national balance sheet, held by someone no general reader has heard of. Born 18 August 1964; DEA in business law and economics from the Sorbonne and an MBA from the École des Ponts; eight years in banking in Paris and six in Morocco before the CDVM.

Luis Magaco CLASS OF 2002

Current · Business · Government · NGO · role verified 2026

Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer, Austral Consultoria; and President, ACIS, Austral Consultoria Lda

This entry breaks the class-year puzzle open, and it does it with one word. His biography States that he was "accredited as a Global Leader for Tomorrow by the World Economic Forum in New York in 2002". The World Economic Forum's 2002 annual meeting was held in New York, not Davos — the only time in the Forum's history that the annual meeting left Switzerland, moved there in Solidarity after 11 September 2001. A 2002 attestation that says "New York" is a real memory of a real event and confirms our class year exactly. A 2002 attestation that says "Davos" — like Tom HADFIELD's and one of R. P. EDDY's — is repeating a generic assumption, because "Davos" is used as a Synonym for the Forum itself. That is a test we can apply to every 2002 attestation, and it explains why the off-by-one cases exist. A Senior Economist with more than thirty years in Mozambique, Managing Director and Chief Executive of Austral Consultoria, and President of Acis — the largest business Association in Mozambique — having chaired the Cta's Financial Policy Committee for ten years until 2018. He advises both the government and the private sector on private-sector development in Mozambique and the Southern African region, and appears at the Mozambique Energy Summit and CASP 2026. Some 2026 listings style him "Luís Magaço Jr."; this encyclopedia did not establish whether that is the same person or a son, and asserts neither.

A family that once held the state itself now holds a commercial group, and the Forum selected the heir. That is the purest DYNASTIC entry in this encyclopedia. The portfolio is the Nepalese economy in miniature: chairman of Tara management and of Amaravati travels; a director of Soaltee Hotel Ltd; and interests in Sipradi trading (the Tata vehicle franchise in Nepal), Sipradi energy, Himalayan International energy, the Bhotekoshi power company and Surya Nepal — vehicles, hydropower, tobacco and hospitality. Founder and Chief Executive Officer, BessTrade and vinylrecycling.com

The Forum's own note on this entry reads "Export Agency BV, Bill." And he is indeed a Dutch export trader, Founder and Chief Executive of BessTrade of Nunspeet, with a branch at Lelystad, an international plastic-scrap trading and recycling business specialising in PVC and operating across Asia Pacific, Europe, the Middle East and North America. No company literally named "export agency BV" was found, so the note is corroborated in substance but not in name. His business has been severely constrained by export restrictions on recycled raw materials imposed by the Dutch inspectorate ILT, with continuing litigation against the Dutch state, and in November 2024 creditors petitioned for the bankruptcy of Vinylrecycling rather than await a Council of state ruling. BessTrade is described as founded in 1972, which sits oddly with a 1994 listing and may indicate a family firm he later led.

Gijs M. de Vries CLASS OF 1998

Current · Government · Academia · role verified 2026

Senior Fellow, Netherlands Institute of International Relations (Clingendael)

The Clingendael fellowship is a post-2014 role. At selection he was a member of the European Parliament — he sat from 1984 to 1998 and led the Liberal (ELDR) Group — and on 3 August 1998, weeks after his selection year opened, he became state Secretary for the interior and Kingdom relations of the Netherlands in Wim Kok's government, serving to 22 July 2002. And the role that matters most is invisible in the entry: he was the European Union's first counter-terrorism coordinator, from 25 March 2004 to 1 March 2007, appointed after the Madrid bombings and working under Javier Solana. He also represented the Netherlands on the convention that drafted the EU constitution and played a leading part in setting up the international criminal Court. Roster title retained as the last thing established about the honouree. Named members appear in the sources — Martijn Brenninkmeijer has chaired Cofra since 2018 and previously ran C&A Europe and Anthos; Jens Brenninkmeyer became Chief Executive of Bregal Investments in February 2026 — but nothing ties Michiel R. P. M. Brenninkmeijer to any of them, and nothing at all was found on Cardex Group (Asia). A method note: this is the opposite of the archive gap. The information is not missing because it was never recorded; it is missing because the family systematically does not publish it, and that is a third failure mode alongside archive gap and common name — call it deliberate privacy.

Roel Pieper CLASS OF 1999

LastKnown · Technology · Finance · role verified 2007

Founder and Owner, Favonius Ventures

Anachronistic-by-a-year roster title that hides the biggest job he ever had. "Managing Director, Insight Capital Partners Europe" is the fund that became Favonius Ventures, which he founded and was involved with from 1999 to 2007 — so the entry is roughly of the class year, and this is one of the few 1999 entries the February 2012 refresh missed entirely. But at selection he had just come off the Board of Management of Philips. The sequence is remarkable and the roster shows none of it: President and Chief Executive of Tandem computers from 1996, where he repositioned the company and sold it to Compaq in 1997, joining Compaq's Executive Board; then back to the Netherlands in 1998 for a year on the Board of Management of Philips at the personal invitation of its President COR Boonstra, widely tipped at the time as a Future Chief Executive of Philips. He then built Favonius with backing from ing, CalPERS and ABN Amro in 2001, with offices in London and Amsterdam.

Mabel Wisse Smit CLASS OF 2003

Global Champion, Girls Not Brides; and Chair, VOW for Girls, Girls Not Brides

The roster also gives her country as Belgium; she is Dutch. She was an Executive Director of George Soros's open Society Institute, and the class of 2003 caught her there; she went on to be the first Chief Executive of The Elders, the group Nelson Mandela convened, and is still an adviser to it. And the body of work is a movement she built from nothing: she created Girls Not Brides: the global partnership to end child marriage in 2011 and chaired it for ten years, becoming its Global Champion in 2021; she also founded the girls first fund and VOW for Girls, both in 2018, and chairs the latter. Girls Not Brides is now the principal international coalition against child marriage, and it exists because she built it. She sits on the boards of Fondation Chanel and the Sigrid Rausing Trust and advises Apolitical Academy Global, Co-Impact's Gender Fund, Global Witness and The Elders; some thirty years as a campaigner and movement-builder. Her 2004 marriage into the Dutch Royal House was the subject of a significant national political controversy, and her husband Prince Friso died in 2013. This encyclopedia researched neither and asserts nothing about either; both are matters of public record and must be taken from primary sources or left out.

An unusual biography even in this cohort: Yan Ciliang, known in English as Richard Yan, was in 1981 the first Chinese Secondary-school student to win a Rotary scholarship to study in New Zealand, at Auckland Grammar; he went on to Auckland University, then Westpac in Sydney, then an MBA at Harvard. In 1992 the American Ziff family became principal investors in a USD 52.5 million fund, and in 1993 he and a Harvard classmate founded Richina Capital Partners to manage it — so he was running a substantial China-focused fund at the moment of his selection. He was a prominent figure in the political response to the 2010–11 Canterbury earthquakes, which devastated his own region. Director of Cosgrove & Partners Ltd. She lost both parents to Nigeria's struggle for democracy. Born 21 August 1974 in Lagos; an economist educated at Harvard and Tsinghua. Chairman; non-executive director, PZ Cussons Nigeria Plc; MTN Nigeria; Nigerian Breweries

She was Executive Chairman of Nigeria's federal Inland revenue service from 2004 to 2012 — so the entry was true right up to the file's export date — and she is credited with rebuilding Nigerian tax administration: automating collection, driving through the reform legislation of 2007 and greatly increasing non-oil revenue. Running the revenue service of Africa's largest economy for eight years is one of the most structurally powerful jobs anyone on this roster has held, and it is also one of the most dangerous — tax reform in Nigeria means confronting entrenched interests directly. And she was not there in 2000: at selection she was a partner at Arthur Andersen. She is now chairman of PZ Cussons Nigeria and a Non-Executive director of MTN Nigeria and Nigerian Breweries — three of the largest listed consumer and telecoms companies in the country, all of them major taxpayers to the service she used to run, which is a revolving door worth naming plainly.

He founded Afrinvest West Africa, one of Nigeria's leading investment banking and research houses, and was its Chief Executive. And then he crossed over completely: Governor of Edo State from 12 November 2016 to 12 November 2024 — two full four-year terms, the constitutional maximum, after which he was ineligible to stand again. He was succeeded by Monday Okpebholo of the APC, declared winner by INEC on 22 September 2024 after the 21 September gubernatorial election. He had switched from the APC to the PDP during his second term, and his tenure included a protracted and very public rupture with his own deputy, Philip Shaibu — Nigerian state politics at its most exposed. An investment banker who ran a Nigerian state of several million people for eight years is the Finance-to-government crossing in its most complete form, and he is one of only a handful in the whole sweep who has held executive political office on that scale.

And the entry misses the academic half entirely: she is an Associate Professor of entry biology and genetics at the University of Lagos. A working geneticist who also directs an infrastructure foundation is an unusual combination and precisely the kind the roster's single-line format cannot hold. And she provides a third instance of the relabelling problem: she appears on published World Economic Forum leadership lists described as a "Young Global Leader", in entries dated 2012 and 2021 — and she is a 2002 Global Leader for Tomorrow on this encyclopedia, two years before the YGL programme existed. With Dafna Bonas and Assilah Al Harthy that is three, and the lists doing the relabelling are not always the alumni themselves — some are compiled third-party directories.

Khimji Ramdas was established in 1870 — one of the oldest continuously family-run businesses in the Gulf, now spanning infrastructure, consumer products and retail — and he is a director of it, so this is an evidenced dynastic entry over five generations. A construction engineer trained in the UK. The unusual part is the official one: in 2022 he was appointed Foreign Trade Adviser to the Omani government by Royal Decree — a formal state appointment held alongside a private family-business directorship. Co-Chairman of the Oman-india joint business Council, Board Member of the Omani-British Friendship Association, and a director of Muscat University. Separately and substantially: chairman of Oman Cricket, an Associate Member Director of the International Cricket Council and Vice-President of the Asian cricket Council — a sports-governance portfolio that no roster title would ever have predicted, and a reminder that the Forum's single-title format cannot represent people who hold several kinds of office at once.

Salem Ben Nasser Al Ismaili CLASS OF 1999Current · Government · Business · role verified 2025*Adviser, Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Oman*

Three entries in twenty-five entries independently pointing at the same window is about as much internal corroboration as a document can give. At selection he was Deputy Chairman and Executive President of the Omani Centre for investment promotion and export development, from 1996 — so the same institution, one grade lower, which makes this an unusually well-behaved entry. Managing Director of the Public Establishment for Industrial Estates 1984–1996. Degrees in telecommunications, liberal arts, industrial engineering, business administration and management, with doctorates from British and American universities. Now an adviser at the Omani Ministry of Foreign Affairs — a deliberately unspecific title in a country where quiet intermediation is the speciality, and Oman's role as a back channel between Washington and Tehran is well documented. He is also a Fraser Institute contributor and writes for The National Council on US-Arab Relations. In 2017 Japan conferred the order of the rising Sun, gold and silver Star on him for building Japanese-Omani economic relations.

Assilah Z. Al Harthy CLASS OF 2001Current · Business · role verified 2025*Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Nursel*

She stepped down as Managing Director of the Al Harthy Group, her family's business, in 2001 — the very year she was selected — and went to work for the Oman oil company. Head of corporate Affairs at the Oman oil company, leading a Thirteen-person team; roles at Oman Oil Marketing, Majan Electricity Company SAOC, Group 6 LLC, the China Eleventh Chemical Construction Company and the Business Opportunities Forum; local shareholder partner of Bureau Veritas UK & Ireland; and now Founder and Chief Executive of Nursel. She describes herself as a Board Member specialising in capital management, corporate governance and the turnaround of distressed assets. BSc, Sultan Qaboos University; MBA, London Business School; she was listed among the top 20 most powerful women in business in Oman in 2008. Identification basis, stated plainly because the entry has no roster anchor: the middle initial "Z." matches "Zaher"; the country matches; and the 2001 departure from the family group matches the selection year. A secondary listing also places her in a set described as "Young Global Leaders", which is the Dafna Bonas relabelling effect showing up again and corroborating it.

Hind Suhail Bahwan CLASS OF 2003Current · Business · Technology · role verified 2026*Founder and Chairperson, Bahwan CyberTek Group*

She founded Bahwan Cybertek in 1999 and is still its Chairperson, twenty-seven years on, one of the longest unbroken tenures in this class. The scale the entry cannot show: BCT now operates in more than fifty countries across North America, the Middle East, Africa and Asia, employs over 4,500 people and serves more than a thousand clients including many fortune 500 companies, across banking and insurance, government, oil and gas, power, supply chain and logistics, telecoms and retail. It took its AI unit BCT EXP into the United States in May 2025 on IBM watsonx and Maximo, and launched its Turing AI Lab in September 2025; she was named in Forbes Middle East's top Tech leaders 2026. She is also chairperson of Infoline LLC, heads the Hind Bahwan Group — which spans Al Khadra Partners and Ojar — and sits on the board of the FBC Gulf. The roster's own rendering of her name, "Hind Suhail Bahwan", follows the Arabic patronymic form and points to Suhail Bahwan, founder of the Suhail Bahwan Group, one of Oman's largest business houses. This encyclopedia records the pattern and does not assert the relationship.

Assassinated. Killed on 27 December 2007 at Rawalpindi, aged 54: a gunman fired on her vehicle as she waved to a crowd leaving a Pakistan Peoples Party rally, and a bomb detonated beside the car, killing more than twenty people and wounding a hundred. The first woman to head the government of a Muslim-majority country; Prime Minister 1988–1990 and 1993–1996, the second term running at the moment of this listing. Dismissed in November 1996 by President Farooq Leghari amid corruption allegations and succeeded by the caretaker Malik Meraj Khalid. A UN commission later reported on the assassination.

Rehana Bibi Khilji CLASS OF 2002Current · Government · NGO · role verified 2025*Head of Sub-Office, Balochistan; and Programme Officer, UN Women Pakistan*

She was the first female in her Sub-tribe to go to School. She opened the first home School in her village to get girls educated. She was the first woman of Balochistan to work on indigenous irrigation schemes and rural development in the remote districts. She was Manager, Gender and development at the strengthening participatory organisation. She is now head of the UN women Sub-office for Balochistan and a Programme Officer for UN Women Pakistan, and UN women named her among Pakistan's women change-makers on international women's day in 2016. Balochistan is the poorest and most Insecure province in Pakistan and has the worst female literacy in the country. Running the Un's gender office there is dangerous, unglamorous work, and she came to it from being the only girl from her Tribe in a classroom. If this encyclopedia needs one entry to show that "global leaders for Tomorrow" was not only Davos financiers, it is this one.

Hasan Zaidi CLASS OF 2003Current · Media · Arts · role verified 2025*Editor, Magazines, Dawn; and Festival Director, KaraFilm Festival, Dawn Group of Newspapers*

Executive Producer at Telebiz, and the class of 2003 caught him in independent production. The two things the entry cannot show, and both matter in Pakistan: he is editor, magazines at Dawn — the country's oldest and most influential English-language newspaper, and one of the few institutions that has held a line on independent reporting through repeated pressure — and he is the Founder and Festival Director of the KaraFilm Festival, Karachi's International film Festival, which for years was effectively the only platform for independent and world cinema in Pakistan. He directed and produced "Raat Chali Hai Jhoom Ke", a pioneering Pakistani digital feature, as well as documentaries and music videos, and speaks at the Karachi Literature Festival. A newspaper editor who is also the country's leading film-Festival Director is a concentration of cultural gatekeeping that has no equivalent elsewhere in this roster, and the entry records "Executive Producer — Telebiz (Pvt) Ltd".

Bashar Masri CLASS OF 1999

Current · Business · role verified 2025

Founder and Chairman, Massar International; Rawabi

He founded Massar International in 1994 to build private-sector development in Palestine and still leads it. Born 1961 in Nablus; chemical engineering at Virginia Tech; Palestinian-American. The project is the point: he built Rawabi, the first planned City in Palestinian history, on bare Hills North of Ramallah — about USD 1.4 billion, funded entirely by the private sector, the largest private investment ever made in Palestine — and its technology quarter is the West Bank's largest private employer, with Palestinian engineers working for international firms. It has also drawn criticism from Palestinians who see cooperation with Israeli authorities as collaboration, and the city has been slow to fill. A civil claim, stated as reported and denied: in April 2025 families of American victims of the 7 October 2023 attack filed a civil suit in a US federal court alleging that properties his companies developed in Gaza concealed Hamas Tunnels. He called the complaint baseless and moved to dismiss it. That is an Unproven civil allegation, no finding has been located, and none is asserted. He has also launched a large housing project in East Jerusalem.

LastKnown · Government · NGO · role verified 2020

Senior positions, United Nations Development Programme

She founded and chaired Partners, one of the Palestinian institutional-development organisations. The career is a map of Palestinian state-building: she held advisory positions inside the Palestinian authority continuously from 1994 to 2009 — that is, from the Authority's creation through Oslo, the second intifada and the split with Gaza — working on institutional development and public-sector reform — and she has founded and run a number of Palestinian civil-society organisations. Since 2009 she has held senior positions with the United Nations Development Programme. A doctorate; a participant in the PASSIA work on Palestinian political elites and democracy.

Founder, Director-General and Editor-in-Chief, PYALARA (Palestinian Youth Association for Leadership and Rights Activation)

What it actually is: a youth media initiative built into a full institution — television and print produced by young Palestinians, plus rights, women's-rights and leadership programmes — and she is its Editor-in-Chief as well as its Director-General. She sits on the global board of the UNESCO Media and Information Literacy Alliance. Current and recognised: she was named a recipient of the 2025 Seán MacBRIDE Peace Prize by the International Peace bureau, which cited her as one of the strongest voices calling for a Ceasefire and for Justice throughout the war in Gaza. The IPB citation uses stronger legal language about the conduct of that war than this encyclopedia will adopt in its own voice; the award and the date are the recorded facts.

Francisco R. Gutierrez Campos CLASS OF 1998

Manager of Institutional Affairs, Nucleo SA

Roster title retained as the last thing established about the honouree. He was therefore an executive of a company that barely existed, which is a genuinely unusual profile for this programme and cuts against the pattern of established incumbents. A probable but unestablished identification, recorded as a lead and not as a fact: a Francisco Gutierrez Campos in Paraguay has directed Francisco Gutierrez Consultores since 2017, holds a master's in industrial engineering from the Universidad de Chile and describes 35+ years in negotiation, strategic management and institutional relations — the country, the era and the function all match the roster entry. But no source links that person to Nucleo SA, so the entry is not Advanced to current and the consultancy is not recorded as his. This is what a good lead looks like when it is still only a lead.

Before it she chaired Indecopi, Peru's competition and intellectual-property regulator, and Promperú, The National trade and tourism promotion body — so at selection she was running a national regulator in her thirties. Co-founder and President; and controlling owner through Polska Korporacja Inwestycji Farmaceutycznych, Pelion SA

He co-founded and has run Pelion, Poland's largest pharmaceutical wholesaler and the owner of the "Dbam O Zdrowie" pharmacy chain, which listed on the Warsaw Stock exchange in 1998. And the most interesting fact is a political one that mirrors Lee Jaewoong: in 2017 he took the company private and off the Warsaw Stock exchange after twenty years, buying out minority shareholders at 59.04 Złoty a share through the Polska Korporacja Inwestycji Farmaceutycznych, with unconditional Competition-authority approval on 6 April; trading was suspended that June. He said plainly why: successive changes to Polish pharmaceutical law — the reimbursement act that Reset margins, the ban on pharmacy advertising, and the "pharmacy for Pharmacists" law — had made the business too politically exposed to keep public. That is the counterweight this encyclopedia needs to its own thesis about private power.

Director General, International Organization for Migration

At selection he was Minister of the presidency and of national defence of Portugal, 1995–1997 — a serving cabinet minister, recorded by the Forum as nothing. European Commissioner for Justice and home Affairs 1999–2004, in the years the EU built its asylum and migration framework. Director General of the International Organization for Migration, the UN migration agency, from 1 October 2018. He sought a second term and lost: on 15 May 2023 the IOM Council elected Amy Pope of the United States, who took 98 votes to his 67 in the first round, after which he withdrew and she was confirmed by acclamation. Her term began 1 October 2023, and she is the first woman to lead the organisation in its 72-year history. This entry was nearly written wrong: the first search returned only his 2023 re-election bid and would have supported recording him as the sitting Director General. An announced candidacy is not an outcome — the same discipline that retired the "known future expiry" idea.

LastKnown · Finance · Government · role verified 2004

Founder and former Chairman; founder, Palestine International Bank; Palestinian National Coalition for Democracy and Independence

A third "selected after the fall" case, and the most political of them. The roster honours him in 2000 as "chairman of the board and General Manager, Palestine International Bank" — and the bank had been taken from him the year before. He founded PIB in 1997 and says Yasser Arafat Confiscated it in 1999. He then sued Arafat and the Palestinian Authority, went into exile, and lives in Qatar. Set beside Shi Yuzhu (1998, honoured the year after his conglomerate collapsed) and Christopher Hasset (1998, honoured after he was removed at PointCast), this is the third instance in three class years of the Forum honouring someone for a position they no longer held — and the first where the position was taken by a head of government. His allegations are stated as his allegations and nothing more: he published a detailed account in the Middle East Quarterly in 2004 ("Arafat's Swiss Bank Account") claiming Arafat and associates moved Palestinian public funds into private Swiss accounts. That is one man's published account, carried by a partisan outlet, in a Bitter personal dispute. No finding of any kind is established here and none is asserted, in either direction. He founded the Palestinian National Coalition for Democracy and Independence, a reform movement, and is associated with IAS International Holding.

At selection he was inside the machinery of the Romanian government as a member of the government and delegated Minister attached to the office of the Prime Minister, in the Năstase administration. That is a job with no portfolio and a great deal of access — the kind of post that never appears in an organisation chart and decides what reaches the Prime Minister. The record since: a senator of Romania from 2004 to 2008 and again from 2012 to 2020, sitting in the upper house for twelve years in total — a long and consistently controversial parliamentary career on the social-democratic side of Romanian politics. A former First Deputy Prime Minister of Russia and, by then, the most prominent liberal opponent of Vladimir Putin and a critic of the Kremlin-installed Chechen leader Ramzan Kadyrov. On 29 June 2017 a Moscow military court jury convicted five Chechen men: Zaur Dadayev, a former officer in Kadyrov's security forces, was found to have fired the shots and was sentenced to 20 years; four others received 11 to 19 years. Investigators never established who ordered the killing, and his family maintain the masterminds remain at large — state both, always. The roster records no title for him. He and Anatoly Chubais, were the two Russian liberals of the same class year. Born 5 April 1968 in Dzerzhinsk. He was a Protege of Boris Nemtsov — who is himself in the 1997 class, assassinated on Moscow's Bolshoy Moskvoretsky Bridge in 2015; that is a direct Patron-client link between two names in consecutive classes of the programme and belongs in the network write-up. Investors credited his reforms; profitability rose about 30 per cent in 1997. He survived one boardroom coup attempt (seven of fifteen directors voting to remove him at a surprise meeting called by Dyakov) and was removed in January 1998 for what the board characterised as credit-and-financial abuses and misuse of office, standing down in April 1998; Russian sources record that he was accused of large-scale misappropriation of state funds and left Russia. What he actually was in 1998 is on the record: Kommersant quoted him in July 1998, weeks before the august default, as chairman of the Management Board of Rossiysky Kredit Bank, giving his view on GKO's and rouble devaluation. Rossiysky Kredit was one of the seven banks of the semibankirshchina, so this encyclopedia's Russian banking cluster now touches four of the seven — but the Precision matters: the seven were the owners (Malkin and Ivanishvili at Rossiysky Kredit); he was the bank's executive, not one of the principals, and must never be listed as one of them. Sanctions and proceedings, stated precisely: designated by the United Kingdom in March 2022 as a "pro-Kremlin oligarch" and by the EU and US; these are executive designations, not criminal convictions. The UK national crime agency conducted a dawn raid on his London house in December 2022 and subsequently closed its Sanctions-evasion investigation, the search warrant having been conceded to be unlawful — he was not charged, and the closure must travel with the raid wherever the raid is mentioned. In April 2024 he and Petr Aven partially succeeded before the EU General Court in annulling earlier listings, while contesting later ones. In 2023–2025 he and Aven sold their 45 per cent of Alfa-Bank and 42 per cent of AlfaStrakhovanie to Andrei Kosogov for about USD 2.48 billion. He remains under UK and US sanctions.

Mikhail Zadornov CLASS OF 1998

LastKnown · Finance · Government · role verified 2023

Chairman of the Management Board, Bank Otkritie Financial Corporation

The roster records a retail bank and hides the man who was running Russia's public finances during the default. "Chairman and Chief Executive, ZAO Vneshtorgbank Retail Services" is VTB24, which he ran from 2005 to 2017. At selection he was the Minister of Finance of the Russian Federation — from November 1997 to May 1999, under Chernomyrdin, Kiriyenko and Primakov — which means he was Russia's finance Minister through the August 1998 sovereign default and rouble collapse. And the 1998 class contains both sides of that event: Dmitry A. Lyubinin chaired the Management Board of Rossiysky Kredit and was quoted by Kommersant on GKOs and devaluation weeks before it; Zadornov was the Minister who presided over it. Born 4 May 1963; a Duma deputy across four convocations 1994–2005, chairing the budget committee. President of VTB24 2005–2017; Chairman of the Management Board of Otkritie from January 2018 to January 2023, running it through the Central Bank's rehabilitation; Otkritie was absorbed into BM-Bank and ceased to operate as a separate bank on 1 January 2025. Sanctions — and then a delisting, which is a first for this encyclopedia: designated by the United States (April 2022), the United Kingdom (May 2022) and Ukraine (February 2023) after the invasion of Ukraine. On 3 April 2026 the US Treasury removed him from the Sdn list, after an administrative petition to OFAC followed by a federal lawsuit; his argument was that the designation attached to a position he no longer held. A US official said the delisting did not reflect a broader change in policy. The UK and Ukrainian designations are not stated to have been lifted, and nothing here says they were.

Andrey L. Kostin CLASS OF 1999

Current · Finance · Government · role verified 2026

President and Chairman of the Management Board, VTB Bank

The entity name "JSC VTB Bank" postdates 1999, when the bank was still Vneshtorgbank; he became its chairman in 2002 and has run it ever since, more than two decades at the head of Russia's second-largest bank, which is majority state-owned. So this is one of the very few entries where a man held essentially the same seat in 1999, in February 2012 and today. Sanctions and a United States indictment, stated precisely and with the outcome open: he has been designated by the United States, the United Kingdom, the European Union and others since 2022. In February 2024 the US Department of Justice charged him with two counts of Violating the international emergency economic powers act, two counts of conspiracy to violate it, and one count of conspiracy to commit international money laundering — the alleged schemes concerning shell companies and intermediaries used to service two superyachts said to be worth more than USD 135 million, and a house in Aspen, Colorado, to which about USD 12 million was said to have been wired after he was sanctioned. Two US-based associates, Vadim Wolfson and Gannon bond, were charged alongside him and later resolved their cases by deferred prosecution agreements. He has not been tried. He is in Russia and beyond the court's reach; he called the charges "Groundless" and said he had never violated any legislation or Circumvented any sanctions. An indictment is an accusation, not a finding, and none is asserted here. Contrast with Mikhail Zadornov, who was delisted by the US Treasury in April 2026 — two Russian bankers of adjacent class years moving in opposite directions.

Sergey Generalov CLASS OF 1999

LastKnown · Business · Government · Finance · role verified 2021

Owner and principal beneficiary, Industrial Investors Group

The roster records a private investment company and hides a serving cabinet Minister — and the cabinet is one this encyclopedia has already met. Sergey Vladimirovich Generalov was Minister of fuel and energy of the Russian Federation from April 1998 to May 1999, under Kiriyenko, Chernomyrdin and Primakov — which means he sat in the same government as Mikhail Zadornov (1998), the finance minister, through the August 1998 default. Two members of the same Russian cabinet, in consecutive class years, and neither roster entry says so — the Russian counterpart of the Takaichi/Hayashi finding. And the path into government is itself the story: born 7 September 1963 in Simferopol, Moscow Power Engineering Institute 1986, he rose through Menatep and YUKOS to Senior Vice-President and the board of the unified Rosprom-Yukos group before becoming a minister, and returned to business afterwards. State Duma deputy 1999–2003 for Krasnoyarsk Krai with the Union of Right Forces. Built industrial investors, took control of the Far Eastern Shipping Company in 2002 and created the FESCO transport group, chairing it and serving as its president; sold 73.7 per cent of FESCO in December 2012 to Ziyavudin Magomedov's summa, in a consortium with GHP and TPG, in a deal put at more than USD 1 billion, and afterwards moved to the regional air-taxi venture Dexter with his son. Forbes ranked him 196th in Russia in 2021 at USD 550m.

LastKnown · Technology · Business · role verified 2022

Founder and former President, IBS Group

He was president of IBS from 1992 to 1997 and of the IBS Group from 1997 to 2021, so he ran it for nearly thirty years and built one of the first and largest Russian information-technology companies — systems integration, software services and the Luxoft outsourcing business, which listed on the New York Stock Exchange. In 2022 he left the board of IBS, ceased to be a shareholder and ceased to be a beneficiary of the IBS Group of companies. The sanctions position could not be established and the entry says so rather than guessing: Russian business media reported in 2023 that the United States had decided to lift sanctions on him; other reporting places him on a US Treasury list in April 2025. Those accounts conflict, the second rests on a weaker source, and his current designation status is not established here. Nothing is asserted in either direction — and this is exactly the case the Per-jurisdiction, Per-date sanctions rule exists.

Oleg V. Deripaska CLASS OF 2000

LastKnown · Business · Finance · role verified 2024

Founder and principal shareholder, EN+ Group; United Company Rusal

En+ Group was formed in 2002, two years after the class year, so the entry cannot be a 2000 title. At selection he was emerging from the "aluminium wars" of the 1990s as the controlling figure of Russian aluminium; he built Rusal into the largest aluminium producer outside China and was at one point the richest man in Russia. He was married for many years to a granddaughter of Boris Yeltsin's — a connection that is part of every account of his rise. Sanctions and an indictment, stated with dates and stages: the US Treasury designated him in April 2018, together with en+ and Rusal, "for having acted or purported to act for or on behalf of a senior official of the government of the Russian Federation". The companies' designations were lifted in January 2019 after he reduced and restructured his ownership; his own designation remains. In September 2022 a US Grand jury indicted him and Associates for sanctions evasion and obstruction of Justice, the alleged conduct including arranging for his pregnant partner to travel to the United States so that their child would be a US citizen. He has not been tried. An indictment is an accusation, not a finding, and none is asserted. A related prosecution of the former FBI official Charles McGONIGAL, who was convicted of working for him, is a separate matter concerning other people.

Chairman and principal shareholder, Severstal

He joined Severstal as a young finance director, took control during the 1990s Privatisations, and is chairman and principal shareholder with about 77 per cent of Russia's largest steel and mining company. He appears on the EU sanctions tracker. No criminal charge or conviction is recorded and none is implied. This is the entry that Olga Dergunova was withheld for want of: here the designation is documented and dated, so it is recorded; hers was not, so it was not. The consequences are documented: Severstal lost more than USD 400 million in 2022 and about a third of its sales to EU sanctions. And so is the recovery: Forbes' world's billionaires list of 10 March 2026 put him back at the top of the Russian rich list at about USD 37 billion — his first time in that position since 2021. A sanctioned oligarch whose fortune is larger than before the sanctions is a fact about the efficacy of the instrument.

Adviser to the Head of VTB Bank, VTB Bank

She sat on the board of JSC VTB Bank, one of Russia's two largest state banks. And she crossed fully into the state and back: she ran Microsoft's Russian and CIS business for more than a decade before that; then, from 2012 to 2016, she was Deputy Minister of economic development of the Russian Federation and head of Rosimushchestvo, the federal agency for state property management — the body that administers and Privatises the Russian state's shareholdings; then Deputy Chairman of the Management Board of VTB, and now adviser to its Head. MTS was the largest mobile operator in Russia and one of the largest in Europe by subscribers; a First Vice-President of it in 2003-04 was running part of the build-out of Russian mobile telephony at the moment it became a mass market. Private investor; formerly Chairman, Vnesheconombank, and Deputy Minister of Finance of the Russian Federation, Independent

He was chairman of Vnesheconombank, the Russian state development bank, from 2002 to 2004, and Deputy Minister of Finance of the Russian Federation from 2000 to 2002, serving under Vladimir Putin and receiving the order of honour from him. The class of 2003 caught him at the head of the Russian state's development Bank. And then the story turns, and it is one of the most politically charged in the entire roster: he was dismissed in 2004 and moved to London, where he has lived since — and his wife, Lubov Chernukhin, whom he married in 2007, is the largest female political donor in British history, having given over two million pounds to the conservative party. Reporting has repeatedly examined whether her donated wealth originates with him; she is a British citizen and the donations are lawful, and neither has been sanctioned. He has also been reported to have earned very large sums from dealings connected to Oleg Deripaska. This encyclopedia records what is reported and asserts no wrongdoing by either of them.

And the Zimbabwean chapter, stated as reported: he was head-hunted in 2019 to chair CBZ Holdings, Zimbabwe's largest bank, to grow its balance sheet and attract foreign capital; his departure from that chairmanship, announced to shareholders alongside that of the Chief Executive, was reported as sudden and prompted press speculation that he was pushed out; the bank said he left to pursue other interests. He co-founded radio B92 with Fellow Belgrade student journalists and ran it through the Milosevic years — the station was banned and seized repeatedly and is widely credited with helping bring the regime down in October 2000. Born 1962; Chief Executive of RTV B92 from its establishment in 2004 until 2019. Since 2013 he has chaired the Serbian Commission for the Investigation of Killings of Journalists, a body set up on his own initiative to reopen the unsolved murders of the 1990s — which is an unusual and specific kind of institutional power: a journalist given a state mandate to investigate the state's own era. Current and serious: he has been the target of a sustained Discreditation campaign across pro-government television, more than thirty websites and social media, and in 2026 he was physically Accosted and had his phone taken while Filming a gathering outside The National Assembly, by a man who told him his reporting — Matic believes the insider investigative series — had "ruined his life". The IFJ, EFJ, SafeJournalists, IPI and RSF all protested. After forty years defending journalists he is now the one being defended, and that is the entry.

Full name Ngiam Mia Je Patrick. IPC listed on the SGX in 1993 and originally sold point-of-sale systems and personal computers — it was one of Singapore's early technology successes, which is what made the pair selectable in 1996 — and it has since become a property investment and development company. He is Executive Chairman and Chief Executive. And there are four Ngiam brothers on the board — Alfred and Bernard as well — so the Forum took two of four. The board roles are evidenced from SGX filings and the company's own site; 2020 is the firmest dated anchor located.

Deputy Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, United Overseas Bank Ltd

DYNASTIC, evidenced, three generations: son of Wee Cho YAW, who built UOB into one of South-East Asia's largest banks, and grandson of Wee Kheng Chiang, who founded it in 1935. And it puts a third Singapore family-business dynasty in the rosters alongside the Ng brothers (1995, Far East and Sino) and the Ngiam brothers (1996, IPC) — three in two class years, all Singaporean, all family firms. Last re-elected a director on 17 April 2026, so the role is dated inside the current year. Named The Digital Banker's CEO of the year for Asia Pacific in 2025.

Executive Director and Deputy Chairman of Azeus systems in April 2020, Chief Executive from March 2022, and Vice Chairman and CEO since 2022 — the company behind Azeus convene, the board-meeting software used by listed companies, governments and regulators. A regulator of Singapore's media industry now sells the software that boards and public bodies use to run their meetings — a quiet revolving door of exactly the kind this encyclopedia keeps finding. Chairman; and Non-Resident Ambassador of Singapore to Greece, Singapore Institute of International Affairs

He has chaired the Singapore Institute of International Affairs, the country's oldest think-tank, since 2002 and is recorded in the post again in June 2026. One of the longest unbroken tenures this encyclopedia has found. What the entry hides is the public side: he was a nominated Member of Parliament in Singapore from 1997 to 2001 — so he sat in the legislature at selection — and since 2020 he has been an ambassador of Singapore, currently accredited to Greece on a non-resident basis. He is a tenured Associate Professor of international law at The National University of Singapore, a senior consultant at WongPartnership, and a long-running columnist for the South China Morning Post; he also chairs the Singapore Dialogue on Sustainable World Resources. The combination is the point for this article: think-tank Chair, Ambassador, law Professor and Law-firm consultant in one person, in a small state where that combination is ordinary and is almost never described.

Managing Partner, FarSight Capital

A thirteenth self-attestation — and it names the programme by a third different name. His biography lists the "World Economic Forum Leader of the Future Award 2001" — the class year matches this encyclopedia exactly, but the label is neither "Global Leader for Tomorrow" nor "Young Global Leader". Warning hardens: the De-duplication of the 1,164 and the 2,997 must use the two rosters and nothing else, because alumni do not consistently know or report what they were given. He founded Silkroute Ventures in 1994 — described as Singapore's first internet company — and Silkroute Holdings, the firm in the roster entry. MIT computer science and engineering, with the Best Thesis Prize in artificial intelligence in 1989; National Youth Award for Entrepreneurship; National it Leader Young Professional Award. Vladimir Masar CLASS OF 1997LastKnown · Finance · Government · role verified 2020*Chairman, Deloitte Slovakia*

Chairman, Deloitte — and the roster leaves off the country, which matters because the more significant role is the one the Forum omits entirely: Vladimír Masár was governor of The National bank of Slovakia, the country's first central-bank governor after the 1993 split from the Czech lands, serving 1993–1999. So he was a sitting central-bank governor at the moment of his selection and the roster records an accountancy chairmanship he took afterwards. He then chaired Deloitte in Slovakia and retired in 2020.

Ivan Miklos CLASS OF 2000Current · Government · Academia · role verified 2025*President; Distinguished Associate Fellow, MESA10; GLOBSEC*

In his selection year he was Deputy Prime Minister for the economy (1998–2002); he became Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance in 2002. He is one of the architects of the Slovak Economic transformation: Minister of privatisation in 1991–92, then the flat tax, the pension reform and the labour-market changes that made Slovakia the "Tatra tiger" and took it into the euro — a body of work that is still argued about and that no other person on this roster matches for sheer legislative scale in a small country. And the second career is rarer still: from 2015 he was Chief Adviser to Ukraine's Minister of Finance and adviser to its Minister of economic development; from April 2016 to August 2019 Chief Economic Adviser to the Prime Minister of Ukraine; and from 2016 to 2020 chairman of the strategic advisory group for support of Ukrainian reforms. A former finance Minister of one country spending five years rebuilding the fiscal machinery of another, during a war, is the purest form of the influence this article is about.

Marek Kapusta CLASS OF 2002LastKnown · NGO · Government · Business · role verified 2020*Director, KOOR s.r.o. and Development Services s.r.o.*

He was National Coordinator of Slovakia's "rock Volieb '98" — a Young-voter mobilisation campaign modelled on rock the vote. About 80 per cent of Slovak 18- to 21-year-olds voted, and the result brought down Vladimír Mečiar's government and put a Democratic coalition in power. Time magazine profiled him at twenty-six. He then exported the method across the region — Bosnia, Croatia, Ukraine and Yugoslavia — and spent a year helping Serbia's Otpor design and run its own Voter-mobilisation campaign, the one that preceded the fall of Slobodan Milošević in 2000. And there is a direct cohort link: Božidar Đelić became Serbia's Minister of Finance in 2001, immediately after the government Kapusta helped Unseat fell. Two members of this cohort sit on opposite ends of the same political transition, and both were selected within a year of each other. And carries no reliable date, which for a career built on campaigns rather than institutions is unsurprising.

Alja Brglez CLASS OF 2003

Current · Government · Academia · NGO · role verified 2025

Counsellor to the Director and member of the board, Friends of the Western Balkans

The most consequential single entry in the project so far — and it is not about her career, it is about the arithmetic. Her encyclopaedia entry lists two separate World Economic Forum honours as two separate lines: "»100 Global Leader for Tomorrow 2003«, Svetovni gospodarski forum (WEF)" and "»Young Global Leaders 2005« (WEF)". What is New is the kind of evidence. Her own biography lists the two honours as two separate awards with two separate years, from outside the Forum entirely — which is the first evidence the project has that the overlap is real people honoured twice and not an artefact of a maintained spreadsheet. GLT ran to 2003 and YGL was founded in 2004 as its successor, so the Forum re-inducted her into the replacement programme two years after her GLT class. The career is this encyclopedia's thesis Compressed into one life: born 19 August 1965 in Ljubljana; doctorate in historical anthropology, master's in history, MBA. She founded the Institute of Civilisation and culture in 1997 — Slovenia's first think tank, for which the Slovene word "Mislišče" was coined — and directed it in 1997 and again from 2003 to 2012. Then: Head of cabinet to Prime Minister Janez Drnovšek from 1999 to 2002; director of the government office for information — which is the roster entry — from march to October 1999 and again from January 2001 to December 2002; and then head of cabinet to President Borut Pahor for both of his terms, 2012 to 2022 — ten unbroken years running the office of a head of state — and his adviser on international relations from June 2017 to August 2019. She stood for the European Parliament in 2004 for "Slovenia is Ours", and now advises friends of the Western Balkans, founded by Pahor in 2023. Whether she falls just inside or just outside depends entirely on how the Forum measured it. This encyclopedia records the boundary case and resolves nothing.

South Africa's first Democratic Minister of labour, then the eighth governor of the South African Reserve Bank and the first Black South African to hold that post, 1999–2009, and Minister of Finance 2018–2021. An anti-apartheid activist before 1994. The Reserve Bank issued a media release mourning him on 13 October 2024 and he was given an official funeral in Limpopo. Founder and Chairman, National Stokvel Association of South Africa (NASASA)

Chairman, National Stokvels Association of South Africa — and he founded it, in 1988, which the roster's "chairman" understates. A stokvel is a South African rotating savings and credit association, an informal collective savings club; NASASA is the self-regulatory body mandated by the South African government to represent the sector, and it exists largely because he built it and then got stokvels recognised within the formal banking system. Simon Barlow took over the estate and is credited with its modern revival, replanting the vineyards and rebuilding its reputation from the 1980s onward. Killed in a helicopter crash on 11 October 2006, aged 42. He was Chief Executive of Kerzner International Holdings, the Bahamas-based resort and casino group behind Atlantis on Paradise Island and the Sun City complex in South Africa, and he was surveying potential development sites on the Dominican Republic's North coast when the Robinson R44 came down on the roof of an Ornamental-plant business at Sosua at 2.15 p.m. Three others died with him: two Dominican armed forces officers, David Rosario Pimentel and Kevelier Matos, and a fourth passenger; their names are recorded here because a directory that names only the famous casualty is doing something this encyclopedia should not do. A Dominican commission investigated the cause. He was the son of Sol Kerzner, the South African hotelier who built Sun City and Atlantis, and had taken over as Chief Executive from his father — the roster entry was blank, so the file records nothing of a man who ran one of the largest resort groups in the world and died in office at 42.

Anachronistic roster title that conceals the selection: the J&J Group was co-founded in 2000, two years after the class year. At selection he was the first Executive Director of Nedlac, The National economic development and labour Council — the institution through which post-apartheid South Africa negotiated economic policy between government, labour and business — which he led from 1995 to the end of 1998. A full-time trade union organiser from 1981, out of the student and community movements of the late 1970s. Material and unresolved, stated as reported: his Lancaster Group was Steinhoff's black-empowerment partner, and the PIC Commission of inquiry heard that Lancaster 101 owed the Public Investment Corporation about R11.6bn with the loan unserviced as at February 2019. In October 2021 the Western Cape High Court found that he had "breached and violated his fiduciary duty" and was not empowered to Sue Steinhoff, the judge describing his Motivation as "purely Self-serving and Devious". Mzi Godfrey Khumalo (born 4 November 1955) joined the ANC and its military wing in the 1970s, was arrested in 1978, sentenced to twenty years, and served twelve years on Robben Island alongside Nelson Mandela. He is therefore the eighth member of the anti-apartheid / South African transition cluster and the second Robben Island prisoner in it, after Sakumzi Macozoma (1997, five years on the island). Two men who were political prisoners of the apartheid state were made global leaders for Tomorrow in consecutive classes, and the roster records both of them only by their later corporate jobs. Raised by a single mother in KwaMashu, Durban, one of ten siblings, his father dead before he was nine. Released in 1990, he moved into business and founded Capital Alliance Holdings, which reached some USD 8 billion in assets under management by the time it was sold; in 2002 he founded Metallon Corporation, London-based, with gold mining in Zimbabwe and Tanzania and telecoms infrastructure in the DRC, and he remains its chairman; it is among Zimbabwe's largest employers with more than 3,000 staff. Chief Executive Officer, SA SME Fund

Anachronistic roster title that hides a City: "Head, Private Equity, Rand Merchant Bank" came later. At selection he was City manager of Johannesburg, 1999–2000 — the Chief Executive of South Africa's largest city, at the moment it was being restructured out of its apartheid-era municipal patchwork — and before that he was the first post-apartheid Director-General of the ministry of transport. Then a full crossing into capital: head of private equity at Firststrand for close to a decade, head of Africa for the Commonwealth development Corporation, and Chief Executive of the cement maker PPC.

Chairperson, Richards Bay Coal Terminal; and Chairman of the Board, Ata Capital, Richards Bay Coal Terminal

She was a director of Sasol Limited, the South African chemicals and synthetic-fuels group. And the current chairmanship is more consequential than the entry: she chairs the Richards Bay Coal Terminal — the largest coal export terminal in Africa and one of the largest in the world, through which the bulk of South African coal leaves the country. Whoever chairs that terminal sits at the single physical Choke point of a national export industry, and it is a private company owned by the mining houses that use it. She is also chairman of the board of Ata Capital, a black-owned South African private-equity manager, a Chartered Director with more than three decades of governance experience, and a member of the International Women's Forum South Africa. "Managing Director — Dema Capital" records a financial-markets career that she then left for industry. What she does now is industrial policy executed by a private company: she is Chief Executive of Bambili Energy, which manufactures hydrogen FUEL-entry systems and Sub-components, and she is co-leading the development of South Africa's first hydrogen Valley in partnership with the South African government — three hydrogen hubs at Johannesburg, Durban and Mogalakwena. And the demonstration project is a world first: Bambili supplies hydrogen for Anglo American's hydrogen mining truck at the Mogalakwena platinum mine — the first in the World. On 6 July 2012 they completed the sale of their 40 per cent stake to Anglo American for USD 5.2 billion in cash, and he was involved in that sale. It ended the longest family control of a single global commodity in modern history. A family that had run the Diamond cartel since 1927 converted it into cash and walked away. This encyclopedia should sit with that: it is the cleanest example in the file of inherited industrial power being deliberately liquidated into financial power. Executive Chairman of Oppenheimer Generations, the family's holding and philanthropic structure, reported at around R200 billion, which invests across Africa and runs substantial conservation Holdings; he is described as the new head of the family enterprise. He began at N M Rothschild & Sons, moved to Anglo American and became a Senior Vice-President in 1999, then held senior roles at De Beers in southern Africa and London until 2012.

The Maharishi Institute of management is now the Maharishi Invincibility Institute, and he still runs it. What he did is genuinely unusual: he trained as an actuary, had a plane ticket to Emigrate, and instead stayed in South Africa and built a free University for young people from townships who could not pay fees — funded by putting the students themselves to work in call centres and business-process operations the Institute owns. The students pay for the education by doing the work, which is a genuinely different answer to the fees problem and one almost nobody outside South Africa has heard of. He co-founded CIDA City Campus on the same principle before this. Chung Bo Keun CLASS OF 1997LastKnown · Business · role verified 1998*Former President, Hanbo Group*

The entry the project has been warned about since the annotations were found, and it is also the cleanest test of the rule the Philip Hampton error established. He is not filed Deceased. The Forum's own 1997 list gives, in place of a title: "GLT — His comp. Hanbo is bankrupt!!!" The three exclamation marks that opened the whole annotation thread. They are a clerk's shock at a headline event, not Derision: Hanbo steel collapsed in January 1997 with about USD 6bn of debt, the first of the great Korean corporate failures and one of the events that preceded the Asian financial crisis. Son of Hanbo Founder Chung Tae-soo, and president of the group — dynastic, evidenced, and he was running it at the moment of selection. What followed, stated exactly: the Hanbo scandal implicated senior government figures and bank officials in the lending that propped the company up, and he was convicted and served a three-year prison sentence — that is a matter of court record. Separately, he is reported to have fled in June 1998 ahead of an investigation into an allegation that he Embezzled 32.2 billion won from a group subsidiary into a Swiss account. That allegation has never been tried and he has never been convicted of it. And his status is genuinely unknown: a Korea Herald report of 25 June 2019 records that prosecutors considered the fugitive might be dead, after more than twenty years. Prosecutorial speculation is not a death. Recording him as deceased on that basis would be exactly the Philip Hampton error, made deliberately instead of carelessly.

Vice-President, Orion Corporation — and the Korean-language pass resolved this entry on the first attempt, exactly as the Chinese pass did for Tian Yuan and the Russian pass for Vasiliev. She is 이화경, Vice-Chairman (부회장) of Orion and the largest shareholder of Orion Holdings with 32.63 per cent as at 2026. She is the second daughter of Orion's Founder Lee Yang-gu and is married to the group's chairman, 담철곤 (Dam/Lim Chul-gon) — so this entry is both an inheritance and a marital alliance at the top of the same chaebol, a combination not seen elsewhere in this encyclopedia so far. Orion is one of Korea's largest confectionery groups (Choco Pie) with major operations in China, Vietnam and Russia. She and her husband have stepped back from serving as registered directors and day-to-day management now runs through professional management under Vice-Chairman HEO Inchul, while she retains the Vice-Chairman title and the controlling stake — a distinction this encyclopedia must keep, because "Vice-Chairman" here denotes ownership and family standing rather than executive line responsibility. Korean-language media carry reporting about the use of company funds that this encyclopedia has not read, Verified or established. No proceeding or finding involving her is asserted, and this must be checked properly in the Korean pass before any publication.

He founded Turbotek, a Precision Control-equipment maker, in 1988 and was one of the defining figures of Korea's first venture generation. And the roster misses the institutional half: he became Vice-Chairman of the Korea venture business Association (KOVA) in 1999 — his selection year — and its chairman the following year, making him the public voice of the Korean venture sector at the height of the dot-com boom. A criminal conviction, stated with its outcome because the outcome is on the record: he was taken into custody in 2005; the Seoul central district court sentenced him to two years and six months' imprisonment for accounting fraud (분식회계) running to tens of billions of won and for taking loans secured on company assets to fund a rights issue, and the Seoul High Court suspended that sentence for four years. He had already stepped back from management, saying he would take responsibility. On 17 August 2026 he was elected Leader of the Democratic Party of Korea. Identity test, and it passes: born 29 May 1964; elected President of the Seoul national University student body on 3 April 1985 and a leading figure of the student movement against the military government — repeatedly seized and detained without warrant in May 1985 — and a member of The National Assembly from the 15th (1996), 16th, 21st and 22nd assemblies. He founded Sopoong, a social-venture incubator and investor, and the entry records it. And the most interesting fact is a political one: he stepped down as Chief Executive of Socar in March 2020, immediately after The National Assembly passed the so-called "Tada ban law" — an amendment to the passenger transport service act that killed Socar's Tada ride-hailing service. A legislature legislated his product out of existence and he resigned. That is a cleaner illustration of the limits of private technology power against an organised incumbent lobby than any amount of commentary. He returned to Socar as Chief Operating Officer on 20 January 2026 after six years away, and is due to become chairman of the board at the March 2026 annual general meeting, overseeing the car-sharing business and the whole organisation.

Baltasar Garzon CLASS OF 1996

Current · Government · NGO · role verified 2026

President of the Truth Commission, Democratic Memory Council, Government of Spain

High Court Judge, Audiencia Nacional — exactly what he was, and one of the few contemporaneous titles in this class. The Investigating Magistrate who issued the 1998 international arrest warrant for Augusto Pinochet, leading to Pinochet's detention in London — the case that reshaped universal jurisdiction. He also pursued ETA, GAL death-squad and Franco-era cases. In 2012 the Spanish Supreme Court convicted him of prevarication for ordering the interception of communications between Gürtel-case defendants and their lawyers in prison, and disqualified him from the judiciary for eleven years; the CGPJ then expelled him from the judicial career. The UN Human Rights Committee later found his fundamental rights had been violated. On 27 May 2026 the Supreme Court rejected his bid to be Readmitted as a judge, holding that a UN Committee opinion cannot annul a final Spanish criminal judgment; a further ruling on 11 June 2026 confirmed it, though the matter was folded into an open rehabilitation file. He said on 5 June 2026 that he had no wish to return to the bench. He is a convicted man and also a man the UN found to have been Wronged. Both facts belong in any mention. Now President of the Truth Commission of the Democratic Memory Council created under the Sánchez government, and a practising human-rights Lawyer and Author.

Felipe Benjumea CLASS OF 1997

LastKnown · Business · role verified 2015

Executive Chairman, Abengoa SA

DYNASTIC, evidenced: grandson of Javier Benjumea Puigcerver, who co-founded Abengoa in Seville in 1941, and he ran it as Executive Chairman from 1991 — so he was running the company at selection. Abengoa became a global engineering and renewable-energy group and then collapsed spectacularly into Spain's largest corporate insolvency; he left the chairmanship in September 2015. And the legal outcome is the point, stated in full: he was prosecuted over severance payments made to him and to the former Chief Executive, and the Audiencia Nacional acquitted the former Abengoa management of misappropriation and disloyal administration; and on 28 October 2025 its Fourth Criminal Section confirmed the definitive archiving of the separate "Abengoa II" proceedings, ruling that there were no rational indications of criminality to justify opening a trial. That decision is final and not subject to ordinary appeal. He was fully exonerated. If Abengoa is mentioned at all, the acquittal and the 2025 archiving must be mentioned with it. No current role located.

Felipe Calderon CLASS OF 1997

Former President of Mexico; international speaker, consultant and analyst, independent; Instituto Atlántico de Gobierno

At selection he was a young Pan deputy and party official. President of Mexico 2006–2012, in an election decided by about half a percentage point. His presidency is defined by the Militarised war on the drug Cartels he launched on taking office, in which tens of thousands died; it remains the most contested question in modern Mexican politics, and he was Heckled with Shouts of "Asesino" at a Sciences Po event in 2026. That is a description of how he is received, not a finding against him; he has never been charged with any offence. Separately and importantly: his former security minister Genaro García Luna was convicted in a US federal court in 2023 of taking cartel bribes. Calderón has denied any knowledge and has not been charged. The two facts must never be run together into an implication. He has lived in Spain since 2022, works as an international speaker and consultant, was a Visiting Professor at Harvard, and said in October 2025 that he is considering a return to Mexican politics.

Sebastian Escarrer Jaume CLASS OF 1997

LastKnown · Business · role verified 2018

Vice-Chairman, Meliá Hotels International

Vice-Chairman and Co-Chief Executive Officer, Grupo Sol Meliá — contemporaneous, and the Forum's own file inverts his name, entering "Escarrer Jaume" as the family name and "Sebastián" as the given name, which is correct Spanish practice but breaks alphabetisation against this encyclopedia's "Sebastian Escarrer Jaume". DYNASTIC, evidenced: son of Gabriel Escarrer Juliá, who founded the company in Palma de Mallorca in 1956 with a single leased hotel and built it into the largest hotel group in Spain; his brother Gabriel Escarrer Jaume is now chairman and Chief Executive — so this is another sibling situation, though only Sebastián is in the roster. Over nineteen years as an executive he led the refinancing of Grupo Sol, its transformation into Sol Meliá and its Stock-market flotation in 1996 — the year before his selection, which is almost certainly why he was picked. He announced he would not Renew as Vice-Chairman, his mandate expiring at the general meeting of 5 June 2018, and remained on the board.

He has been President of the Royal Spanish equestrian Federation for twenty years and was re-elected in February 2025 by 60 votes to 36 for a 2025–2028 term that he has said will be his last; he is one of six declared candidates for the presidency of the FEI, the world governing body of equestrian sport. Chairman and Chief Executive of Vicolio Inversiones Sicav; formerly a director of Recoletos Compania editorial and of Telefonica de Espana, and an Independent Director of Negocio y Estilo de Vida — so the 1998 selection most plausibly rests on the Spanish media and telecoms directorships rather than on the sport, but no source States which, and none is asserted. Married to the actress and model Mar Saura. Critical Spanish coverage in July 2025 argued Spanish equestrianism had "hit rock bottom" under a twenty-year presidency — reported, and not a finding. Rafael del Pino CLASS OF 1998

Executive Chairman, Ferrovial SE

Rafael del Pino Y Calvo-sotelo, born 4 July 1958, was Chief Executive of Ferrovial from 1992 and became chairman in 2000 — two years after the class year — when his father Rafael del Pino Y Moreno, the founder, stepped down after forty-eight years. And that is a trap in its own right: father and son share the name, and Ferrovial's own newsroom carries a release headed "Rafael del Pino gives up the chairmanship after 48 years" which is about the father. He holds 159,536,212 shares, about 21.87 per cent of the company, and was re-elected chairman for a further three years at the 2025 general meeting, with his son Ignacio maintained as the designated successor. The political story the roster title cannot show: in 2023 Ferrovial moved its holding company to the Netherlands, becoming Ferrovial SE, in an open confrontation with the Spanish government of Pedro Sanchez — he insisted "Ferrovial is not leaving Spain; it will maintain its activity, employment, investments, tax contribution and listing on the Spanish exchanges". The company listed on Nasdaq and entered the Nasdaq-100 in December 2025.

Taken with Piskorski, Rees and Ryan, the pattern is that the February 2012 refresh reached corporate and government officeholders and left artists, NGO founders and defunct funds at their 2000 values. The achievement the entry understates: she was the first woman ever to Preside over the Spanish film Academy, at around thirty. On 8 February 2025 she received the Goya de Honor, Spanish Cinema's lifetime Award, at the Palacio de Congresos in Granada — the ninth recipient and the second youngest after Antonio Banderas. Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero CLASS OF 2001

Former Prime Minister of Spain (2004-2011); international mediator, Independent

The largest blank entry in the entire project. The Forum left both columns empty for a man who became Prime Minister of Spain. At selection in 2001 he had been Secretary-General of the Spanish socialist workers' party since July 2000 and was Leader of the opposition; he won the March 2004 General election and was Prime Minister of Spain from April 2004 to December 2011. His governments withdrew Spanish troops from Iraq, legalised same-sex marriage in 2005 and passed the Historical Memory Law; they also carried the country through the 2008 financial crisis and the austerity that followed. Seven blank or "." His appearance, set for 2 June 2026, was postponed by judge José Luis Calama to 17 and 18 June 2026, and on 4 September 2026 the court upheld the police analysis of seized devices. "Investigado" is a procedural status, not a charge proved and not a conviction. No guilt may be inferred from it and this encyclopedia infers none. Since leaving office he has acted as an international mediator in Venezuela, credited by supporters with securing the release of political prisoners including Rocío San Miguel and Enrique Márquez, and criticised by parts of the Venezuelan opposition as too close to the government there. Both characterisations are recorded as characterisations.

Juan Costa Climent CLASS OF 2001

LastKnown · Business · Government · role verified 2022

Sustainability Policy Director, Mishcon Purpose (Mishcon de Reya LLP)

An unusual roster defect: the entry records party membership instead of office. "Member — Partido Popular" is what the Forum wrote about a man who was a Spanish Secretary of State at selection and a cabinet Minister two years later. No other entry in this encyclopedia so far demotes a national officeholder to a party card, and it should be logged in the roster-quality register: the file's failure modes include not only blanks and staleness but Mis-categorisation. The actual record: Secretary of State for finance 1996–2000; Secretary of State for trade and tourism 2000–2003 — which is what he was doing at selection; then Minister of Science and Technology of Spain from September 2003 to April 2004. Born 10 April 1965. And the second career is the one this encyclopedia wants: EY Global Leader for climate change and sustainability services and a member of the global assurance leadership team from 2010 to 2020 — a former finance and trade Minister spent a decade setting one of the big four accounting firms' global climate practice, which is where corporate sustainability reporting is actually defined — and in February 2022 he joined Mishcon Purpose, the law firm's sustainability business, as Sustainability Policy Director, advising businesses and governments.

High Commissioner of Sri Lanka to India, High Commission of Sri Lanka, New Delhi

The roster entry could not be dated: "Senior Adviser to President, Office of the President of Sri Lanka" is a real kind of Sri Lankan appointment but no source located fixes when he held it, so it is recorded and not dated. He is a former cabinet Minister with the economic reform, Science and Technology, and policy development and implementation portfolios, and he founded the Pathfinder Foundation, one of Sri Lanka's leading independent policy research and advocacy bodies — a private think tank that has become part of the country's foreign-policy machinery, which is precisely the quiet structural position. He was High Commissioner of Sri Lanka to India from August 2021 to September 2023 — the single most consequential diplomatic post Colombo has, and he held it through the 2022 economic collapse and the Indian credit lines that followed. He became the single most visible face of the Swedish internet bubble, and the press called him "Bredbands-jesus" — broadband Jesus. Crown Princess of Sweden and heir apparent to the throne, The Royal Court of Sweden

A hereditary head of state in waiting is in this encyclopedia, and the roster records her employer as "office of h.m. The King of Sweden". Crown Princess Victoria is the heir apparent to the Swedish throne, the eldest child of King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia. If she succeeds she will be the first reigning Queen of the House of Bernadotte, which has held the throne since 1818. The duties are constitutional, not Ceremonial: she Attends the Advisory Council on Foreign Affairs and the Council of state with government ministers, headed by the King, and she serves as temporary regent — acting head of state — whenever the King cannot discharge his functions. The project has recorded three generations of chief ministers (Abdullah), Nepal's hereditary Prime ministers (Rana) and two film dynasties (Nanda); this entry is a monarchy, and it should anchor that section.

This entry carries one of the sixteen recovered annotations: the Forum's own 1995 list gives, in place of a title, "no more at Concern Olbi (checking for address)" — staff shorthand recording that they had lost him. Concern Olbi was his early-1990s Russian conglomerate. This encyclopedia has now supplied the address the clerk was checking for. Russian-born, an Italian citizen and resident of Switzerland; Founder and Chairman of Finstar Financial Group, a private-equity group focused on fintech and digital platforms, with net worth reported around USD 1.5bn. He exited Russian business entirely, selling Finstar Bank — reported 4 August 2025 — and the reporting attributes the decision to sanctions pressure and a pivot to global markets. Sanctions, stated exactly: Ukraine, Australia and Canada listed him in 2022; Canada lifted its sanctions in 2023 after he brought a court challenge; other listings remain. He is not, and has not been, criminally charged in connection with any of this.

Principal owner, The Resource Group (TRG); Aker ASA

He started as a Trawlerman: he left school at sixteen, fished off Alaska, bought his first boat and built a fishing group that reverse-took-over Aker, one of Norway's oldest industrial names, in the 1990s. He controls Aker ASA through his family company TRG, and the Aker companies span offshore oil and gas services, seafood, offshore wind and carbon capture — so a single family holding sits across a large part of Norway's industrial base. Current and politically charged: in September 2022 he moved his tax residence from Asker in Norway to Lugano in Switzerland, in the middle of the argument over Norway's wealth tax; The Move was widely condemned by Norwegian politicians and one academic called it "a frontal attack on the fortune tax", with other wealthy Norwegians following. He said his capital would continue to work in Norway and that TRG and the listed Aker companies would continue as before. Country recorded as Switzerland, where he lives, not Norway, where the companies are — the country convention question in its sharpest form, and this entry should be quoted when that convention is decided. Her own advisory company. The reason she was chosen is not in the entry: she became Chief Executive of the Max Havelaar Foundation in 1999 and ran it until 2005, and was President and Chairwoman of the board of Fairtrade Labelling Organizations International from 2001 to 2004 — so she ran the global body that certifies what may be called fair trade, at the moment the label moved from activist niche to supermarket standard. That is regulatory power exercised by a private foundation, and it is exactly the shape this encyclopedia exists to record. And the second institution is rarer still: she has been a member of the Assembly of the International Committee of the Red Cross since 2005 — the ICRC's Assembly is its supreme governing body and is co-opted, historically almost entirely from Swiss citizens, so a seat on it is one of the least visible and most consequential positions in international humanitarian law. He has been CEO of the Axpo Group since May 2020 — Switzerland's biggest producer of renewable energy and its largest international energy trader, owned by the North-eastern Cantons. That means a Cantonally owned company, run by him, is one of the largest traders in the European power market — and in September 2022, at the height of the energy crisis, the Swiss Confederation had to open a Multi-billion-franc credit line to Axpo to cover margin calls. The route is a clean sweep of Swiss infrastructure: Swisscom, ending as Chief Strategy Officer and a member of the Group Executive board; CEO of Bluewin; CEO of the software company Adcubum; CEO of the telecoms operator Sunrise from 2006 to 2010; then Tamedia / TX Group from 2012 to 2020, ending as CEO of TX markets — and now energy. She was in office when the Forum selected her in 2002, and the file leaves both columns empty. And how she left is one of the most consequential events in modern Swiss politics: in December 2003 she lost her re-election bid — the first time an incumbent federal councillor had failed to be re-elected since 1872. Her defeat broke the "Magic Formula" that had allocated the seven seats among the four largest parties since 1959: her CVP fell from two seats to one and Christoph Blocher's SVP rose from one to two. Chairwoman of Switzerland Global Enterprise — the official Swiss trade and investment promotion agency — and President of Swiss Olympic; a Board Member of AXA Switzerland and Probst Group Holding; formerly on the board of the Bühler Group. Chairman, Swiss Bankers Association (to September 2026); and Vice-Chairman, Union Bancaire Privée, Swiss Bankers Association

The roster misspells a word in the title: "UBS Wealth Management & Buisness Banking" — business, with the vowels transposed. And the entry caught him four years before the job that defines him: he was Group Chief Executive of UBS AG from 6 July 2007 to 26 February 2009 — which is to say he ran Switzerland's largest bank through the entire global financial crisis, including the period in which the Swiss state and the Swiss National Bank mounted the rescue of UBS. No other entry in this roster puts a person in the Chief Executive's chair of a globally systemic bank at that exact moment. Chairman of the Swiss Bankers Association since 2021 — the industry body for the entire Swiss banking sector — and he hands over to Giorgio Pradelli at bankers day in September 2026, which is this month. He is Vice-Chairman of Union Bancaire Privée, and joined the board of Titanbay in June 2026. A man who ran a bank through its state rescue and then spent five years chairing the lobby for the industry that was rescued is an entry that will be read closely. Record the sequence and the dates; do not editorialise the juxtaposition.

Professor of Economic History; and Chair, Department of History, Economics and Society, University of Geneva

Associate Professor of strategy and management at INSEAD, and the class of 2003 caught her there. She has been Professor of Economic History at the University of Geneva since August 2010 and chairs its Department of History, Economics and Society — having moved from a business school to a history faculty, which is an unusual direction of travel and a deliberate one. The work is on the history of Capitalism and of economic thought, with a particular interest in profit, work, wages, technology and capital — and the recognition is substantial: her "dividends of development: securities markets in the history of U.S. Capitalism, 1866–1922" (Oxford) won the Alfred and FAY Chandler book Award in business history in 2019; she was President of the Business History Conference in 2017–18, and gave the Eli F. Heckscher Lecture at the Stockholm School of economics in 2019, the Tawney Lecture to the Economic History Society in 2021 and the Penrose Lectures at SOAS in 2021. A scholar of how securities markets actually financed American industrialisation is an unusually apt person to find on a World Economic Forum list, and the roster records "Associate Professor of strategy and management".

A pharmacist by training, with a master's in phytotherapy from Istanbul University; she worked through the Otaci-Kurtzan group from the 1980s and chaired it from 2004 to 2013. The part that matters is the institution she built, and the roster says nothing about it: she was one of nine women who founded Kagider, the Turkish women entrepreneurs' Association, on 12 September 2002, and its Founding President for the first two terms, 2002–2007 — the principal organised voice of women in Turkish business. She is now its honorary Board Member; Esra Bezircioglu has chaired it since 2023. Chair of the Board, Allianz Sigorta AS; Allianz Hayat ve Emeklilik AS

The role the entry misses is the political one: she was President of TUSIAD, the Turkish industry and business Association, from 2015 to 2017 — the first woman to hold it — and TUSIAD is the voice of Turkey's largest private companies and one of the few institutions that has publicly argued with the government about the rule of law and the economy. The presidency of TUSIAD is one of the most politically exposed non-governmental posts in Turkey, and it is not in the file. Born in Adana in 1968; a Harvard economics degree and an LSE master's; elected to the Grand National Assembly for Adana in the 21st Parliament and served as a Minister of State in Turkey's 57th government. She was a serving national cabinet Minister in the period immediately before her selection, and the roster records an honorary think-tank chairmanship instead. Her party, the DSP, failed to re-enter parliament at the elections of 3 November 2002 — the year she was selected — so this is another "selected as the ground gave way" entry, alongside Wang Zhidong and John Battelle. Since 2004: Honorary Chair of USAK, the International Strategic Research Institute in Ankara — the roster entry, and a post she has now held for twenty-two years. And a fourth relabelling instance: her biographies describe her as "selected as one of the World Economic Forum's Young Global leaders in 2002" — she is a 2002 Global Leader for Tomorrow, two years before the YGL programme existed. With Bonas, Al Harthy and Adeyemo the relabelling is now systematic rather than incidental.

Current · Media · Business · role verified 2025

Founder and Chief Executive Officer, İndeks İçerik-İletişim (İndeks Content and Communication Management)

A fourth independent "100" attestation, and it carries the class year too: her own agency's biography States that she was "named one of the 100 global leaders for Tomorrow in 2003 by the World Economic Forum". She was a journalist and editor, with a career in macro-economics, management science, human resources, diplomacy and foreign news, and was behind the "first" magazine-newspaper. She founded İndeks, Turkey's first content communication and content management company — explicitly built to produce and manage content independently of the media — and also Turkey's first speaker agency, with a national and international portfolio. She trains the senior spokespeople of large corporations and advises top management on communications. A journalist who built the machinery through which Turkish corporations speak, in a country where the relationship between business and the press is not a neutral subject. The entry is recorded factually and this encyclopedia makes no claim about that relationship.

Died 19 August 2024 · see In Memoriam

Chairman, Morgan Stanley International

Died 19 August 2024, aged 70, when the superyacht Bayesian Sank off Porticello, Sicily. His wife Judy died with him. The 56-metre vessel went down about half a mile offshore in a violent squall; autopsies indicated the victims trapped inside died of oxygen deprivation. The circumstance is the story and it must be told plainly, not Suggestively: the Bloomers were guests aboard a yacht owned by the wife of the technology entrepreneur Mike Lynch, who also died along with his 18-year-old daughter Hannah and the Clifford Chance lawyer Chris Morvillo and his wife. The party was marking Lynch's acquittal in his US fraud trial, at which Bloomer had appeared as a defence witness. Every element of that is on the public record and none of it implies anything beyond itself. Report the facts and the dates; add nothing. The identification rests on the name plus career-stage plausibility — he was a rising Arthur Andersen partner moving into Prudential in the mid-1990s, which fits a 1996 selection, and no other Jonathan Bloomer of comparable standing has been located.

He left India for Britain in March 2016 after Kingfisher Airlines collapsed owing about GBP 1.15bn to Indian banks — reported as roughly Rs 9,000 crore (90 billion) owed to seventeen banks — and is accused of fraud and money laundering. A UK court ordered his extradition and he has appealed; in February 2026 the Bombay High Court gave him a final opportunity to return while hearing his challenge to proceedings under the fugitive Economic Offenders act 2018, warning that continued absence could support a formal finding that he is evading process. He told the court he cannot give a date because his passport has been revoked and British court orders bar him from leaving England and Wales; the Indian government said the UK extradition process is near conclusion. He argues that more than the principal has already been recovered from his seized Indian assets and that he would not receive a fair trial. The group works in asset management, natural resources, green infrastructure and technology investment, and was notably active in Russia in the 1990s, which is likely why a 1997 selection made sense. What he was near selection is the more interesting fact: he was Chief Executive of the development bank of Southern Africa and an Economic Adviser to President Nelson Mandela, then Vice-President of the World Bank (2001–2006). That puts him in the anti-apartheid / South African transition cluster, which now runs to seven people across 1995–1998 — Coleman, Eloff, Macozoma, Naidoo, Luhabe, Shongwe and Goldin — and the cluster has now crossed into a fourth class. Stelios Haji-Ioannou CLASS OF 1998

Current · Business · Finance · role verified 2026

Founder and Chairman; founder, easyGroup Ltd; Stelios Philanthropic Foundation

Chairman, easyGroup IP Licensing. The structural decision of his career is the one the roster title actually points at: at easyJet's flotation he kept ownership of the "easy" brand in his own private company, easyGroup Ltd, rather than selling it with the airline — so he has drawn a licensing income from the brand for twenty-six years independently of the airline's fortunes, and he now uses it to fund the Stelios Philanthropic Foundation. He founded easyJet in 1995 and extended the brand across easyHotel, easyCruise, easyGym and dozens of others; also founded fastjet in Africa. In August 2026 he and his family backed Apollo Global Management's recommended GBP 5.7 billion (EUR 4.9bn) takeover of easyJet, committing to remain long-term investors; the family concert party — easyGroup Holdings and easyGroup Ltd for Sir Stelios, Clelia Haji-Ioannou and her vehicle, and Hodram Inc for Polys Haji-Ioannou — holds 116,065,871 shares, about 15.31 per cent of the airline. Alli Waheed CLASS OF 1999

Member of the House of Lords, House of Lords

The name in this encyclopedia is backwards, and this entry proves the hypothesis could only raise. He is Waheed Alli — Baron Alli — given name Waheed, surname Alli. SUSPECTED this mechanism at Mani Maren and could not test it because that person is untraceable. Here it is testable, because the man is a member of the British Parliament — and the reversal is confirmed. He chaired ASOS, the online fashion retailer. He was made a life peer in 1998 at thirty-three, one of the youngest ever, and was the first openly gay member of the House of Lords; he co-founded Planet 24, which made The Big Breakfast, and has produced television and theatre. He is Labour's largest individual donor, with more than GBP 700,000 given over twenty years, and was the party's chief campaign fundraiser from 2022, raising the money for the 2024 general election. In September 2024 he was at the centre of the dispute over Gifts to Keir Starmer and his wife, and the House of Lords conduct investigation found he had committed four "minor breaches" of the rules by failing to declare interests, and required him to write a letter of apology. That is a parliamentary standards finding of minor breaches, not a criminal or financial finding, and the entry says so. A donor-fundraiser-peer with a media fortune is this encyclopedia's thesis in one entry.

Presenter; podcast host and founder, BBC Radio 4 "Last Word"; Folk on Foot

The roster entry is both Anachronistic and internally wrong: "Radio Presenter, Radio 5 Live — BBC World News" mixes two different BBC services, and presenting was a later career. At selection he was a BBC Executive of the first rank: controller of BBC Radio 1 from 1993, where he carried out the most contested reinvention in the station's history, and then director of BBC Radio and Chief Executive of BBC Production. The Forum recorded the microphone and not the management. And The Independent half is the interesting one: he founded the podcast folk on foot in August 2018, walking with folk musicians in the landscapes that shaped their music — a self-owned outlet outside the institution, which is exactly what the IndependentMedia tag exists.

Leader, Liberal Democrats

He died on 1 June 2015 at his home in FORT William, Scotland, aged 55. Full date and named sources: The Washington Post, 2 June 2015; Fox News; Britannica; the UK Parliament's own member record; the University of Glasgow's Stevenson Trust notice. His family announced the death without initially disclosing a cause. The politics are the entry: he led the Liberal Democrats to 62 seats in 2005, their best result in about eighty years, and he was the only Leader of a major British party to oppose the invasion of Iraq — a position that was contested at the time and is the reason he is remembered. He had been elected to the Commons in 1983 at twenty-three, the youngest MP of the day. He resigned the leadership in January 2006 after publicly acknowledging that he was receiving treatment for a drinking problem. That is recorded because he disclosed it himself and it is inseparable from the public record of his career; no inference is drawn about his death, whose cause was not disclosed at the time.

Chairman and co-founder, 4J Studios Ltd

The roster entry is a company that failed: VIS Entertainment, the Dundee studio behind state of emergency, went into administration in 2004–05. That makes this a fourth "selected before the fall" variant — the entry was true in 2000 and the company was gone long before the file was exported in 2012, so the entry is also a straggler the refresh missed. What he did next is far larger: he co-founded 4J Studios with Paddy Burns, and Mojang chose 4J to build the Console editions of Minecraft — the Xbox 360 version shipped in 2012 and the Console editions turned Minecraft into the best-selling video game of all time. A small private company in Dundee built the versions of the world's biggest game that most people actually played, and almost nobody knows its name — which is this encyclopedia's thesis applied to culture rather than to finance. CBE; a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh; a central figure in Dundee's games cluster. In 2025 he was investing millions in new technology and preparing 4J's own game, REFORJ, after more than five years of work, and opened a new Edinburgh studio.

Warden of Rhodes House and Chief Executive Officer, The Rhodes Trust

It is the least interesting thing about her. She was Canada's Minister of Foreign Affairs, then Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance — the minister who renegotiated NAFTA into the USMCA opposite the first Trump administration, and who resigned from the finance ministry in December 2024 in the confrontation that ended Justin Trudeau's premiership. Before politics: a Ukraine-based freelance for the FT, The Washington Post and The Economist; deputy editor of the Globe and Mail; US managing editor of the financial times; Managing Director of Thomson Reuters; and the author of Plutocrats. Current and New: the trustees of The Rhodes Trust appointed her Warden of Rhodes House and Chief Executive of the Trust, announced 19 November 2025; she took up the role on 1 July 2026, succeeding Sir Rick Trainor, and moved to the United Kingdom. She came to Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar herself in 1991 and now runs the scholarship — a scholar returning to control the institution that selected her, which is the same shape as the alumni feeding back into the Forum's own governance (Q1).

Founder, Walk it Back; Globalegacy

He founded Globalegacy, which built social enterprise in cities. Canadian; a former Coca-cola executive who opened its business in Russia after the Soviet collapse, and later an executive of Cirque du Soleil; he has lived on a barge on the Thames for thirteen years. The entry is one act and it is unlike anything else in this encyclopedia: after COP26 he became, on his own account, the first private citizen to Commission a full lifetime carbon audit of himself. It came to 8,147 tonnes of Co2-equivalent — twenty-eight times the global average — and he Drained his pension fund, about USD 1 million, to remove it. Then, on 3 January 2023, he set out to walk from London to Istanbul: 4,250 kilometres, 25 km a day for 153 days, through 14 countries and 82 cities, arriving just before his Sixtieth birthday. Walk it back now backs local clean-city projects in energy, transport, industry, agriculture, oceans and buildings. Recorded because it is documented and dated, not because this encyclopedia takes a view on offsetting — and note that the World Economic Forum itself published his campaign, which is a sixth instance of an alumnus appearing inside the institution that honoured them.

Founder and owner, VBites Foods

With Lubomir Dolgos (organisation, no position — 037) and David Madie (position, no organisation — 040), that is a third distinct way the two columns fail. At selection in 2002 she was internationally known as a campaigner against anti-personnel landmines, having lost a leg in a 1993 road collision, and had married Paul McCartney that year. The business is the part this encyclopedia should take seriously: she has run Vbites, a plant-based food manufacturer, since 1993 — 140 products sold in 28 countries, with factories at Peerlee in County Durham and Corby in Northamptonshire — which makes her one of the Longest-established Alternative-protein manufacturers in Europe, two decades before the sector existed as a category. And a dated collapse and rescue: Vbites entered administration in December 2023 after thirty years. In January 2024 she bought the assets back for £1 million through her company Vegan solo consulting, seeing off five competing offers and Waiving £4.8 million owed to her as a secured creditor in order to improve the return to other creditors. She Re-employed forty staff and moved the business to the north-east. She attributed the collapse to rising costs, misinformation and "corporate greed" — her characterisation, recorded as such.

Founder and Life President, Lumos; and author, Lumos Foundation

A fourth Freitag-class proof, and the most famous person it could possibly have happened to. Lumos was founded in 2005. The Forum selected her in 2002 — three years before the organisation in her entry existed. With Freitag, Nowak and Hahn Marocco, that is four independent dated proofs that roster titles are not selection-time positions, and this one will be the easiest for a reader to check. What she was at selection: the author of the first four Harry Potter novels, the best-selling book series in history, which she had begun writing as a single mother on state benefits in Edinburgh. Lumos: the charity she founded to end the Institutionalisation of children and move them from orphanages into families. She stood down as a trustee in 2013 and is its Founder and Life President; Howard Taylor, previously a UN Child-protection Leader, became Chief Executive in November 2024, after a period in which trustees commissioned independent reviews into the Charity's governance and culture following the departure of an earlier Chief Executive in 2020. Her charitable trust is VOLANT; she donated the royalties from "The Ickabog" (2020) to it. She has been, since 2020, one of the most publicly contested figures in British life over her statements on sex and gender, which she has made and defended at length and which have been extensively opposed. In 2022 she funded and launched Beira's place, a support service for female survivors of sexual violence in Edinburgh.

Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Ariadne Capital

She founded Ariadne Capital, and before that she co-founded first Tuesday, the networking phenomenon that defined the European dot-com boom and was sold in 2000; she was a Dragon on the Bbc's "Dragons' Den" and was appointed MBE. An arrest warrant was issued in February 2022 and a British judge handed her a Six-month suspended sentence for contempt of court, criticising her conduct. The University of Warwick withdrew her honorary doctorate in 2022. In August 2025 the cabinet office stripped her of her MBE for "bringing the honours system into Disrepute". That is a contempt finding and a suspended sentence arising from a civil debt dispute, plus two honours Revocations. It is not a conviction for fraud or Dishonesty, no such conviction is recorded, and none may be inferred. A report that she has continued to use the withdrawn titles appears only in a low-quality outlet and is not recorded as a finding.

She founded Marcus Venture Consulting and still runs it. And what she actually does is this encyclopedia's subject in its most literal form: she is a professional Board Director and a Professor of Leadership and Governance at IE Business School — she sits on boards and teaches other people how to sit on them. She is a Non-Executive director of Atlantia SpA and a member of its control, risk and corporate governance committee. Atlantia was the Italian infrastructure group that owned Autostrade per l'Italia — the Motorway Concessionaire responsible for the Morandi Bridge in Genoa, whose collapse in August 2018 killed Forty-three people. Sitting on the risk and governance committee of that company is not an honorary position. She is also a Non-Executive director of Birmingham Repertory Theatre, a Project Syndicate columnist, an Al Jazeera contributor and a World Economic Forum Agenda contributor. A governance Professor who is also a sitting director and a public commentator on governance occupies three positions that would normally check each other. This encyclopedia should note that without insinuation — it is the structure of the modern board profession, not a personal failing.

He is universally known as Mike Volpi; the roster gives the full Italian form. He was Chief Executive of JOOST, the online broadcast-television venture, and moved to its chairmanship. But the entry records the smallest thing he has ever done. Before JOOST he spent thirteen years at Cisco systems, where as Chief Strategy Officer he acquired more than seventy-five companies — one of the most prolific corporate Acquirers of the internet era, and the man who largely assembled the company that built the internet's plumbing. He joined Index Ventures as a General Partner in 2009 and has been one of London's most prominent venture investors since. Add it to Fouse, Yap, Ramo and Cooper as dating evidence. And this entry delivers the second evidenced hit on parked question Q2: he is listed as a member of the Trilateral Commission — after R. P. Eddy. Two GLT alumni on the Trilateral Commission is no longer a curiosity; it is a pattern, and the intersection of the Trilateral membership list with the 1,164 should now be run properly. And the parallel with Eddy is almost exact: both served in the Executive Office of UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan in the same period — Mousavizadeh from 1997 to 2003, and as a UN political Officer in Bosnia-herzegovina before that — and both now run private Geopolitical-intelligence and advisory firms. Two men from the same cohort went from the Secretary-General's office into the business of selling political risk analysis to corporations and governments. She was Associate Director of the centre for International Business and management at Cambridge. And the Irony of this entry is the sharpest in the entire project. In 2001 — the year before the World Economic Forum selected her — she published "the silent takeover: Global Capitalism and the death of democracy", the bestseller arguing that corporations had displaced elected government as the real seat of power. The Forum read the book that indicted it and put the author on its list. That single fact is worth a Paragraph of this encyclopedia by itself — it is either genuine Intellectual Openness or the most efficient form of Co-option available, and this encyclopedia should put the question without answering it cheaply. A third Freitag-class proof, and the Tightest of the three: the role in the entry began after her selection. She was partner and Chief Executive of Allegra Hicks from 2003 to 2008. The Forum selected her in 2002. With Sebastian Freitag (036, firm founded 2002) and Arkadiusz Nowak (037, institute founded November 2004) that is three independent dated proofs that roster titles are not selection-time positions — and this one turns on a job start date rather than a company registration. Where she actually sits is Italian, not British, and it is substantial: she is on the Board of Directors of CIR Group and was co-opted to the board of Cofide — the de Benedetti family's Italian holding companies, which controlled Gedi, publisher of la Repubblica and L'Espresso, until 2020. A board seat at an Italian family holding company that owned the country's leading centre-left newspaper is exactly the kind of invisible position. He was Chief Executive of the marine stewardship Council from 1999 to 2004, so the class of 2003 caught him in the job, and the MSC's blue tick is one of the earliest and most widely copied sustainability certification schemes in the world. He founded The Robertsbridge Group, a sustainability consultancy, in 2009–10 and chairs it; it is part of the Transition500 Alliance. He also chaired the Rainforest Alliance in the UK. And there is a tension in this entry that must be stated neutrally and not Editorialised: he sits as an independent Board Director of the metals company, the Nasdaq-listed Deep-sea mining firm. The former Chief Executive of the marine stewardship Council on the board of a company seeking to mine the ocean floor is a juxtaposition the reader will notice immediately. He has argued publicly that engagement with such companies is how they are changed. Record both facts and his stated Rationale; do not present the juxtaposition as an accusation, and do not omit it either.

Music Director, Accademia Nazionale di Santa Cecilia; and Music Director designate, Los Angeles Philharmonic, Accademia Nazionale di Santa Cecilia

Another entry with no organisation. Current, and three months old: on 26 May 2026 he was announced as the next Music Director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, on a six-year contract from the 2027–28 season, succeeding Gustavo Dudamel — which is among the two or three most consequential appointments in orchestral music anywhere. He has been Music Director of the Orchestra and Chorus of the Accademia Nazionale di Santa Cecilia in Rome since 2024, and was Music Director of the Orchestre de Paris from 2016 to 2019; the 2025–26 season took him back to the Wiener Philharmoniker, the Berliner Philharmoniker, the Bavarian Radio Symphony and the Cleveland Orchestra. And the second career is not a Hobby: he learned to fly after turning forty and is a qualified airline pilot who flies Airbus aircraft for air France on Medium-haul routes across Europe and North Africa for about one week in every month. He once flew the Santa Cecilia Orchestra from Rome to Paris as first Officer on air France 1205, and announced the Rehearsal time over the Cabin address. That is a genuine dual profession and Arts alone does not express it — but no sector in the vocabulary does, and this entry is not an argument for adding one. Recorded, not filed.

Reuben Singh CLASS OF 2003

Current · Business · role verified 2025

Founder and Chief Executive Officer, alldayPA

Founder and Chief Executive of alldaypa.com, and at the time of the listing he was one of the most publicised young entrepreneurs in Britain. What followed is a matter of public record and must be stated precisely or not at all: the Royal Bank of Scotland sued him, and judge Michael Kershaw QC ordered him to pay the bank £1,229,966 over an Overdraft the bank said had been secured under false Pretences. The judge said of the banker involved that he "was, I think, to some extent a victim of Mr Singh's personality as well as Mr Singh's lies." He was declared bankrupt in 2007 with debts of more than £11 million. And his 1998 entry in the Guinness book of records as the world's youngest self-made Millionaire was subsequently disqualified. Three things this encyclopedia did not find and therefore does not say: it found no director disqualification, no criminal conviction, and no finding against him other than the civil judgment described. Do not write any of those three. And the entry does not end there, which is the point: alldayPA continued — it was bought by his parents after heavy losses — and he is recorded as its Founder and Chief Executive, having spoken publicly about needing "humility to accept your own mistakes". He is the clearest case in the roster of the Forum honouring a reputation that did not survive contact with the courts. That is worth writing about; it is worth writing about accurately.

Richard A. Werner CLASS OF 2003

Professor of Banking and Economics; and founding Director, Centre for Banking, Finance and Sustainable Development, University of Winchester

The most important single person in this entire sweep for reasons that have nothing to do with his career — and the project owes him the finding that defined this session. The World Economic Forum's own press release announcing the class of 2003 survives only because he posted his own copy on his personal site. The Forum has removed its 2003 list. That document — "Tokyo, Dec 11 2002" — is what settled the "100 a year" denominator in the Forum's own voice, confirmed that the GLT programme started in 1993 and not 1992, supplied the published age criterion, and exposed the two-john-thorntons trap. He is also the named subject of it: "Richard A. Werner selected for class of 2003". It is archived locally. Managing Director and Chief Economist of the profit research Center in Tokyo, which he founded in 1998, alongside teaching at Sophia University. And the substantive claim is extraordinary in its own right: in 1995, as Chief Economist of a British investment bank in Tokyo, he proposed a policy to end banking crises and gave it the name "quantitative easing" — the term and the concept that central banks across the developed world would deploy on a scale of trillions after 2008. He is the author of the bestseller "Princes of the Yen", a proponent of the credit-creation theory of banking — that banks create new money when they lend, rather than intermediating existing deposits — and has since argued publicly that central banks have become too powerful and are to blame for inflation, which makes him a critic of his own most famous idea. He has given written evidence to a UK parliamentary committee. The Forum's press release praised his warning that Japanese banks were on the verge of bankruptcy. The man who named quantitative easing is the reason this encyclopedia can now quote the Forum against itself.

Chair, Water UK

Member of Parliament for Bolton West, which she held from 1997 to 2010. The entry caught her two years before the cabinet: she became Secretary of State for education and skills in 2004, then Secretary of State for communities and local government and Minister for women, then Secretary of State for transport — three of the great departments of state before she was forty-one. Born 9 May 1968. She worked at the bank before politics — Deputy Head of its inflation report division from 1994, after four years as an economics writer on the Guardian — and she has not returned to it. She is therefore not a third Bank of England entry alongside Kristin Forbes and Jitesh Gadhia: a staff economist before office is not the same thing as a Rate-setter or a Governing-body member after it, and counting her with them would inflate the finding. Now, and it is topical: she has been chair of Water UK — the trade Association for every water and wastewater company in the United Kingdom — since 14 March 2023, which places her at the head of the industry body for the most publicly contested utility sector in Britain. She had earlier joined HSBC.

That is the same shape as Ernst-adrian von DOERNBERG's "ph 9.12.98, utr": a date in 1998, a two-letter prefix and the same "utr" suffix. Two instances make it a logging convention, not an accident. The man himself: doctorate from MIT, undergraduate Berkeley; CEO of UBS North America and a member of the UBS Group Executive board 1992–1996; then CFO and Executive Board Member of Zurich Insurance/Zurich Financial Services, where he led the asset-management acquisitions (Scudder, Bat). Former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, IDB Communications Group

He built IDB Communications Group, a Los Angeles international telecommunications carrier, and owned the Los Angeles Kings ice hockey team — which is what the clerk recorded. The SEC alleged that he, Edward Cheramy and Rudy Wann fraudulently inflated Idb's First-quarter 1994 earnings from USD 9M to USD 15M to meet analysts' projections, published them in a press release and a form 10-Q, and concealed it by fabricating documents, making false entries and lying to the auditors; and that Sudikoff and Cheramy sold large blocks of IDB stock in march and May 1994 while holding material non-public information, Sudikoff also tipping his parents. He pleaded guilty to two counts of securities fraud for insider trading and one count of failing to disclose his trades, and on 3 December 1999 was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, a USD 3 million criminal fine and three years' supervised release. This is a guilty plea in a federal criminal court and a matter of public record — unlike the civil and disciplinary matters elsewhere in this encyclopedia, no softening clause is needed, but the facts must be given exactly and nothing added.

Distinguished Professor at the CUNY Graduate Center. And the entry is a IndependentMedia case of the purest kind: he retired as a New York Times columnist on 9 December 2024 after twenty-five years and moved to his own Substack, where he says he now writes two or three times as often as the paper allowed. He has said publicly that he left because editors discouraged columns likely to rile people up, and described the departure as unhappy. United States Senator for Florida, United States Senate

A sitting United States Senator. The Forum's own list reads "Former Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Columbia" and stops there — the third truncation found this session after Roger Gruben and Michael O'Brien. He is Rick Scott. He founded Columbia Hospital Corporation, which merged with Hospital Corporation of America to form Columbia/HCA, the largest for-profit hospital chain in the United States, and he ran it — which is exactly what he was doing at selection. He was forced to resign in 1997 as the company came under federal investigation, and Columbia/HCA subsequently paid USD 1.7 billion in fines, penalties and Damages over Medicare and Medicaid billing — the largest Healthcare-fraud settlement involving a hospital Corporation in American history. The settlements were the company's. Scott himself was never charged with any crime. Both facts appear together or neither does — this is the Salinas Pliego and Ballmer rule again, and here it matters more because the man holds federal office. Governor of Florida 2011–2019; US Senator since 2019, re-elected in 2024, Florida's senior senator since 2025 when Marco Rubio resigned to become Secretary of State, and chair of the Senate Special committee on aging since 3 January 2025.

Jodie Foster CLASS OF 1996

Current · Arts · Media · role verified 2025

Actress and film director, independent

The most unexpected entry in this encyclopedia so far, and the roster makes it odder: the Forum's own list gives her position as "actress" and her organisation as "PMK/HBH" — which is her Publicity agency, not an employer. No other entry in 1,164 names an entertainment PR firm as the honouree's organisation, and it suggests the entry was completed from a press contact rather than from the person. Two-time Academy Award winner for Best Actress (The Accused, 1988; The Silence of the Lambs, 1991), a Yale graduate, and a director since Little Man Tate (1991) — so at selection she was 33 and at the height of her acting career.

At selection he was twenty-five and had just co-founded Netscape, having written Ncsa Mosaic, the browser that made the web usable by ordinary people — Netscape's August 1995 IPO is conventionally taken as the start of the dot-com era, five months before this class. So the 1996 listing catches him at the exact moment of his fame, and the Forum's later edit replaced it with a company most readers have never heard of. Co-founded Andreessen Horowitz in 2009 with Ben Horowitz; it is among the largest venture firms in the world.

At selection he was Microsoft's first Chief Technology Officer and founder of Microsoft Research, which is the reason for the listing; he retired from Microsoft in 1999. A physicist — doctorate at Princeton at 23, then postdoctoral work with Stephen Hawking at Cambridge. Intellectual Ventures is one of the largest patent-holding companies in the world and among the most contested businesses in technology, widely criticised as a patent-assertion entity and defended by him as a market-maker for invention; that argument is live and this entry does not adjudicate it. His second career is food science and photography: founded The Cooking Lab in 2010 and published Modernist Cuisine (2011), five volumes and 2,500 pages, translated into seven languages, two James Beard awards and the Gourmand Hall of Fame, followed by Modernist Bread, Modernist Pizza and others; the Modernist Cuisine Gallery, dedicated to food photography, has locations in New Orleans, La Jolla and New York.

He transitioned from Chief Executive to Executive Chairman effective 1 April 2026 after holding the Chief Executive role since 1997, with Ruth Kimmelshue and ARI Gendason named co-chief executives — and Jordana Fribourg joined the board as chief talent Officer, so the seventh generation is now on the board. Catalyst Advisor, General Catalyst

At selection he had just arrived at Akamai: he joined as Chief Operating Officer and employee number 15 in 1998, so the Forum listed him in the year he was leaving media for the company that would build much of the internet's delivery infrastructure. Before that he ran Time Inc New Media and was a senior figure at NBC. President and then Chief Executive of Akamai for nine years to 2013, and on its board until 2019. Joined General Catalyst in 2014 as Executive-in-Residence, was a Managing Director 2018–2020, and is now a Catalyst Advisor, sitting on the boards of five of its portfolio companies (airSlate, Bugcrowd, Casana, Section, Zorus).

Private investor, and board member, Eurasia Foundation

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Dialogbank — and that is the interesting part. He founded Dialogbank in Moscow in 1989 — one of the first private banks in the Soviet Union — and also founded Troika Dialog, which became one of Russia's leading investment banks; an American of Russian descent, he was in Moscow for the whole of the transition, which is exactly why a 1997 selection makes sense. His second career was in American financial regulation: he served at the securities and exchange Commission as Managing Executive for operations and as a Senior Adviser to the chairman, in the years after the 2002 accounting scandals. Later Founder and Chief Executive of the Concinnity Group.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Micron Technology, Inc.

Killed on 3 February 2012, aged 51, when the experimental aircraft he was piloting Crashed at Boise airport, IDAHO. He was alone in a Lancair single-engine experimental aeroplane; he had taxied from the Micron company hangar, flown and returned once already that morning, and was on his second departure. Federal investigators concluded the probable causes were a loss of engine power on take-off and his decision to turn back rather than land straight ahead. Mark Durcan succeeded him.

Chairman of the Board, Special Olympics

DYNASTIC, evidenced, and it reaches a head of state: son of Eunice Kennedy Shriver, who founded the Special Olympics, and of Sargent Shriver, the first director of the Peace Corps and the 1972 Democratic vice-presidential nominee; he is a nephew of President John F. Kennedy — the tenth head-of-state descent in this encyclopedia. He became chairman of Special Olympics in 1996, the year before his selection, and has led it since — the organisation now reaches several million athletes with intellectual disabilities in nearly two hundred countries. Note that Kim Samuel sits on the Special Olympics board, so two honourees are in the same organisation today.

Abigail Johnson CLASS OF 1998

Current · Finance · role verified 2026

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Fidelity Investments (FMR LLC)

President, Fidelity Personal and Workplace Investing — a divisional title, and the Forum's published list gives the organisation more fully as "fmr Corporation — Fidelity Investments" where this encyclopedia keeps only "fmr Corporation" (defect class B again). She now runs the whole firm: President 2012, Chief Executive 2014, Chairman 2016, and 2026 SEC filings list her as Chief Executive Officer, Chairman and director of Fidelity Management and Research Company LLC and chairman of fmr LLC. DYNASTIC and three generations deep — the firm was founded by her grandfather Edward C. Johnson II, run by her father Edward C. "NED" Johnson III, and is now run by her; she is among the wealthiest women in the world and Fidelity administers assets in the multiple trillions. Set against Evan Greenberg (father and two sons across AIG, Marsh and Chubb) and William Lauder, the 1998 class is unusually dense in American family-firm heirs, and that is worth counting properly rather than noting anecdotally.

President and Chief Executive Officer, Grameen America

She was Chief Executive of Avon from 1999 to April 2012 and chairman from 2001 to December 2012 — for most of that time the longest-serving female Chief Executive of a fortune 500 company, running a business built on a direct-selling force of millions of women. The second act is the interesting one and it is a complete change of sector: Muhammad Yunus — Nobel Peace laureate and Founder of Grameen — appointed her President and Chief Executive of Grameen America in April 2014, the non-profit that lends to women in poverty in the United States, and she is now past her tenth year in the role. From selling cosmetics to women to lending to them; one of the cleanest sector transitions in this encyclopedia, and unlike most such moves it went from listed-company Chief Executive to non-profit Chief Executive rather than to a board portfolio. Founder and Chairman, Idealab

He founded Idealab in Pasadena in 1996 — two years before selection, so the title is genuinely contemporaneous — and it has since incubated more than 150 companies, making him one of the defining figures of the first dot-com wave and one of the very few who survived it still running the same institution. In 2013 he founded Heliogen, a concentrated-solar-power company that went public in 2021. A governance dispute, stated as reported: Heliogen terminated him as Chief Executive in February 2023, and he then mounted an effort to buy the company back — Continuum Renewables, which he co-founded, made an unsolicited non-binding acquisition proposal for it. No litigation outcome or finding has been established and none is asserted.

Founder and former Chief Executive Officer, PointCast, Inc.

He founded Pointcast in 1992 in Sunnyvale, the pioneer of "push technology" — news delivered automatically to the screen — and for a moment it was the defining consumer internet product; fortune and Business Week covered it as a pacesetter and it was on the cover of Wired as the future of the web. The decisive event: in January 1997 news Corporation offered USD 450 million for the company. The offer was withdrawn in March 1997, the board replaced Hassett as Chief Executive, and Pointcast was defunct by 2000, sold to Launchpad Technologies for a small fraction of that sum. So he was selected in 1998 — the year after he was removed and while the company was visibly failing, which is itself a data point about how and when the Forum's lists were compiled. He attempted to retake control in 1999. A script/archive hybrid: he is heavily documented up to 1999 and invisible after it.

Founder and Managing Director, Shalon Ventures

As a Stanford PhD student in 1992, Tidhar Dari Shalon co-invented the spotted DNA microarray — the "DNA chip" — with Patrick Brown, Mark Schena, Ron Davis and Stephen Smith, and he was the one who immediately saw the commercial shape of it. He founded Synteni on an unusual model — running the experiments cheaply as a service rather than selling laboratories expensive machines — and sold it to Incyte Pharmaceuticals, the sale completing in January 1998, the year of his selection. He then became Founding Director of the Center for genomics research at Harvard, and has been an investor in life-science ventures since 1997 through Shalon Ventures (Palo Alto; portfolio has included WaterGuru, ThinOptics and Renew Medical). Named to MIT Technology Review's innovators-under-35 list. He was Chief Executive until 1998 and chairman until 1999, took Fore public in 1994, and sold it to the UK's general electric company (which reformed it as Marconi) in 1999 for USD 4.5 billion in cash — one of the largest cash acquisitions of the period. Chairman and Chief Executive Officer (title as at the last confirmed record), Chubb Limited

Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, Ace Limited — correct in substance; Ace acquired Chubb in 2016 and took its name, so the entity is continuous. He was elected President and Chief Executive in May 2004 and became chairman of the board in May 2007. DYNASTIC, and one of the most concentrated financial dynasties anywhere in the rosters: he is a son of Maurice R. "Hank" Greenberg, who built AIG, and a brother of Jeffrey Greenberg, formerly Chief Executive of Marsh and McLennan — a father and two sons at the top of three separate global insurance groups. He also chairs the US-Korea business Council and sits with the Business Roundtable and CSIS. This encyclopedia has not established what title, if any, Greenberg now holds, and will not guess. Chubb's own leadership page and older filings still describe him as chairman and CEO, which conflicts with the July 2026 announcement; a conflict between sources is not a licence to pick the flattering one.

Commerce's own first-year statement claims twenty trade deals carrying USD 9.94 trillion of investment commitments, the department's budget cut from USD 10bn to USD 8.3bn and its staff from 52,000 to 40,000. an allegation with no established finding, stated as reported: on 27 February 2026 the ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee, Jamie Raskin, opened an investigation and demanded records from the Secretary and from his son over Cantor Fitzgerald's reported interest in tariff-refund claims around the Supreme Court tariff ruling; Senators Wyden and Warren had probed the same question on 14 August 2025. He stepped down as Amazon Chief Executive in 2021 and remains Founder and Executive Chairman of the company and chair of its board. Executive Chairman — accurate when the file was last touched but no longer: his role changed from Executive Chairman to chair of the board with effect from 8 November 2024, and he retired as an employee of the company on 28 February 2025. He had been Executive Chairman since July 2009 and was Chief Executive from 2004 to 2009. The distinction is real and worth keeping: he is now a Non-Executive Chair — the company describes his duties as reinforcing its family heritage and serving as a visible representative of the Lauder family and the company — not an Executive Officer, and a directory that says "Executive Chairman" in 2026 would be wrong. DYNASTIC and third-generation: he is a grandson of Estee Lauder herself and a son of Leonard Lauder. And then the most complete reversal in this encyclopedia so far, stated from the court record: in June 2013 he filed for personal bankruptcy, listing liabilities of USD 50-100 million against assets of USD 10-50 million, largely business debts; his Estates were put up for bankruptcy sale. Founder and former Director, Legatum Center for Development and Entrepreneurship, MIT

The MIT programme dates from his arrival there in 2005 and the Legatum Center was established in 2007, both well after the class year. At selection he had just done the thing he is known for: he conceived and founded Grameenphone in Bangladesh in the late 1990s, putting a mobile phone into the hands of village women who sold calls to their neighbours. The idea was that connectivity is productivity and that the poor should own the infrastructure rather than receive it: Grameenphone became the largest mobile network in Bangladesh and created something like a quarter of a million rural micro-entrepreneurs, and it is one of the most copied development models of the last thirty years. He founded the Legatum Center for Development and Entrepreneurship at MIT in 2007 to press the same argument — bottom-up enterprise rather than top-down aid — and directed it; he is a distinguished fellow of the Ciocca Center at the Catholic University of America and is associated with CIGI.

President, ABC Entertainment

She died on 1 February 2021, aged 56, of complications from a cardiac event suffered the previous autumn. Full date and named sources in quantity: Variety, The Hollywood Reporter, Deadline, CNN, UPI and TheWrap all carried obituaries on 1 February 2021. Before ABC she was the comedy development executive at NBC who helped launch friends and Frasier in the network's "Must-See TV" years — so she shaped two of the most watched television programmes ever made before she was thirty-five, and then ran a network. She later produced, including My Boys and Happyish.

Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Ferrazzi Greenlight

He founded Ferrazzi Greenlight and still runs it. At selection he was one of the youngest chief marketing officers in the fortune 500, at Deloitte and then at Starwood Hotels, before turning the relationship-building method into a business. He is a genuine case of someone whose influence is exercised through a book rather than an institution: never eat alone (2005) became one of the defining business books on networks, and he has followed it with Who's Got Your Back (2009), Leading Without Authority (2020), Competing in the New World of work (2022) and never lead alone: 10 shifts from leadership to Teamship (2024). Named to the Thinkers50 list of the world's top fifty management Thinkers for 2025, and now working on human-AI collaboration in teams. Twenty years coaching fortune 500 companies, unicorn startups and governments. Much of the available material is his own or his publisher's; the Thinkers50 listing is The Independent datum.

Linus Torvalds CLASS OF 1999

Current · Technology · role verified 2026

Creator and chief architect of the Linux kernel; Fellow, Linux kernel project; Linux Foundation

The roster entry is a dead organisation and a straggler: "OSDL Fellow, OSDL" — the Open Source Development Labs merged into the Linux Foundation in 2007, five years before the February 2012 refresh, so this entry was not touched by it. He is the most consequential person on the 1999 list by a long way and the file says almost nothing: he wrote the Linux kernel as a student in Helsinki in 1991 and still personally controls what goes into it thirty-five years later. Linux runs the Overwhelming majority of the world's Servers, all of the top Supercomputers, and — through Android — most of its phones. He also wrote GIT. In January 2026, after thirty-four years, the kernel community Formalised a succession plan for the first time — a written contingency for what happens if he steps away, naming the last Maintainer Summit organiser or the Linux Foundation Technical Advisory Board Chair as the convener. He has expressed no wish to stop. He confirmed the next release would be numbered Linux 7.0, out in mid-April 2026, and 7.2 followed in august; he has said that AI coding tools have made Supersized kernel updates "the New normal", the kernel now running to about 40 million lines.

Mark W. Bernstein CLASS OF 1999

LastKnown · Business · Finance · role verified 1999

Chief Executive Officer, Bernstein Ventures

Roster title retained as the last thing established about the honouree. And that sentence carries a second finding worth more than the entry: it puts the 1999 class at 100. Arslan Chikhaoui, elsewhere, independently describes himself as "nominated among the hundred leaders of Tomorrow at the Davos Summit 1999". This encyclopedia holds 98 for 1999. Two independent honourees say 100. That may be rounding, and 98 against 100 is not the 101-of-187 wound that ended the predecessor project — but it is a denominator signal and it must be checked, not waved away.

Pierre Omidyar CLASS OF 1999

Current · Technology · NGO · Media · Finance · role verified 2026

Founder and Chairman; Director Emeritus, Omidyar Network; eBay Inc.

It is no longer true: he retired from the ebay board in 2020 in a wider overhaul that also saw Elliott Management's Jesse Cohn leave, and he is now Director Emeritus — an honorary title that may attend meetings by invitation and carries no voting rights. EBay said the departures were unrelated to any disagreement. The reason he matters to this encyclopedia is the second half: Omidyar Network has deployed more than USD 2 billion in grants and investments, and he also founded first look media and the Intercept, the democracy fund and Ulupono — so a single private fortune sits behind a venture-philanthropy fund, an investigative news organisation and a democracy-reform foundation at the same time. That is exactly the "behind the scenes" concentration, and it is far less visible than the eBay founding it is always described by.

Robert Glaser CLASS OF 1999

Current · Technology · Media · role verified 2026

Founder, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, RealNetworks Inc.

He founded RealNetworks in 1994 and has been its chairman throughout, though he has moved in and out of the Chief Executive's chair. At selection he was at the centre of the fight over how media would move on the internet: Realaudio and Realplayer made streaming a consumer reality before broadband existed, and RealNetworks was one of the principal antagonists of Microsoft in the browser and media-player wars — he had himself spent ten years at Microsoft before founding it, which is why the fight was personal and widely covered. The company is no longer public: in 2022 he made an unsolicited proposal to buy out the shares he did not own and then signed a definitive merger agreement taking Realnetworks private at USD 0.73 a share, stating that machine-learning-based artificial intelligence was a transformational opportunity better pursued away from public markets.

Co-founder and Managing Partner, North Base Media

He co-founded the media development loan fund in 1995 — the world's first mission-driven loan fund for independent media — and was its founding Chief Executive for sixteen years. The idea is the point and it is a genuinely original one: instead of giving grants to independent newsrooms in authoritarian and transitional countries, lend them capital on commercial terms so they become businesses that cannot be switched off by a donor or a government. It is now the Media Development Investment Fund. In 2014 he co-founded North Base Media with Marcus Brauchli, the former top editor of both the Wall Street Journal and The Washington Post — a boutique firm investing in digital media, technology and AI companies in large growth markets in Asia, the Middle East and Latin America, and a backer of many leading independent outlets. Professor of Marketing; podcast host and founder, NYU Stern School of Business; Prof G Media

The roster entry is a dead dot-com: "Chief Executive Officer, Brand Farm" was one of his 1990s ventures, and it is one of the few entries in this encyclopedia that was not refreshed in the February 2012 sweep — by then he had long since founded L2 and joined NYU. He is now one of the most widely heard business commentators in the United States, and he got there entirely outside institutional media. Clinical Professor of Marketing at NYU Stern; founder of the digital-intelligence firm L2 (sold to Gartner) and earlier of Red Envelope and Prophet. The IndependentMedia tag is exactly right here and this is the clearest case this encyclopedia has found: he launched the Prof G show in February 2020 and now runs a stable of self-owned shows — Prof G markets with Ed Elson, Raging Moderates with Jessica Tarlov, Prof G Conversations, Office Hours — plus pivot with Kara Swisher and the no Mercy / no Malice newsletter; in 2026 he took Prof G markets on a five-city national live tour. The point for this encyclopedia: a 1999 honouree whose influence today is a microphone he owns, not a board seat — the opposite shape from most of this roster, and the reason the vocabulary was extended to carry IndependentMedia.

Civil rights lawyer and social justice executive, independent

She was litigation director of the ACLU's technology and Liberty Program, and she was at the ACLU from 1995 to 2007, rising to national associate legal Director. What that meant in practice is the entry: she argued the foundational cases about free speech on the internet and about surveillance — the challenges to the Communications Decency Act and to warrantless wiretapping — at the moment when the legal rules of the online world were being set. She argued before the Supreme Court. Then the philanthropic side of the same field: Executive Director of US Programs at the Open Society Foundations, where she oversaw about USD 150 million a year — so she moved from arguing the cases to funding the field that brings them, which is a specific and consequential kind of power. Roster title plausible for February 2012 and still part of the picture — he has been a clinical professor in the University of Illinois College of medicine for many years. The source defect: the Forum's published list itself reads "University of Illinois College of Medecine" — a typo in the Forum's own file, not in our extraction. The larger work is the NGO: he is Founding Director of the Center for Global Initiatives, a top-rated healthcare non-profit delivering care and building clinical capacity in low-resource settings, and he has worked across business, government, the United Nations and academia.

The firm is the point and it is almost invisible outside its industry: GTCR manages tens of billions of dollars and its "leaders strategy" — back a Chief Executive first and buy the company second — has made it one of the most consistent buyout franchises in American finance, and in 2023 it led the largest private-equity transaction of that year, the roughly USD 18.5 billion purchase of a majority of Worldpay from FIS. In 1996 he and a Berkeley graduate student founded Inktomi, the first internet service built on clusters of cheap networked computers rather than large machines — the architecture that made modern search Engines and cloud computing possible. Yahoo bought Inktomi in 2003. So at selection he was at the height of it. And the intellectual contribution is larger than the company: he Formulated the cap Theorem, the result that a distributed system cannot simultaneously guarantee consistency, Availability and Partition tolerance — the constraint every large online service is designed around. "Founder, FRA Holdings" was her own vehicle — but it says nothing about why she was chosen. At selection she was Managing Director of Yahoo! Europe, running the portal across the continent at the height of the first internet boom, and before that she was at the BBC and at BSkyB. She has since become one of the most heavily used independent directors in American business, and the list is the entry: Non-Executive director of FICO — the company whose credit score governs consumer lending in the United States — of The Campbell's Company, of national public radio, and a governor of FINRA, the self-regulatory body for American Broker-dealers. She also sits on the board of the World Wildlife Fund. A seat on Finra's board is delegated regulatory authority over the US securities industry, and a seat on Fico's board is influence over how every American is scored for credit. Founder and Chief Executive Officer, OpenCables Inc.

He is one of the people who physically built the internet and almost nobody knows the name. At twenty-seven, in 1989, he conceived flag — the Fiber-optic link around the Globe — the first privately financed submarine fibre-optic cable to join several continents, running from England to Japan. As Executive Vice-President for marketing and Business Development at NYNEX he did the work that made it possible: breaking through the regulatory monopolies of Spain, Italy, Egypt, India, Saudi Arabia, China, Hong Kong, Korea and Japan, one landing station at a time. He then founded project Oxygen Ltd in 1997 as chairman and CEO — a still more ambitious global cable plan, later sold to Asian investors. Current and active: Founder and CEO of Opencables Inc., a California company developing subsea cable, data-centre and telecom infrastructure, and author of the most-read blog in the submarine-cable industry, which he has written since 2008. In 2025 he was the industry voice quoted on Meta's Waterworth cable, putting it at about USD 10 billion over five to ten years. He founded three Urban-education initiatives — the inner-city teaching Corps, which has trained more than 5,000 teachers for Chicago schools, the Alain Locke charter School and the accelerate Institute — while building and selling B2B software companies: Max Digital, FirstLook and Incisent Labs.

It also invented viral marketing in its modern form — the "get your free email at Hotmail" line appended to every outgoing message — which is arguably a larger legacy than the product. His subsequent Ventures have not repeated it, and the trade press says so plainly. He co-founded Showreel in 2021 with Javed Yunus, originally a purpose-driven video messaging platform and now an Ai-powered learning platform, which has partnered with Jamia Millia Islamia in Delhi on an entrepreneurship programme; he argues that critical thinking will be the most valuable skill of the next five years, mentors Indian startups and campaigns for AI-driven education reform.

MGG investment group sued him and family members, alleging a USD 24 million loan obtained by fraud and the undisclosed sale of nine lifetime breeding rights to American Pharoah; the bankruptcy trustee separately alleged a Fraudulent transfer over a USD 400,000 mortgage. On 23 August 2022 the court approved settlements — USD 5 million from Zayat and family members split between MGG and the trustee, of which only USD 30,000 was earmarked for Unsecured creditors, and a separate USD 1.5 million paid by his brother Sherif Zayat. These were civil proceedings that ended in approved settlements. No criminal charge, conviction or denial of discharge was located, and none may be inferred. Name artefact first, because it matters for the whole file: he is Li Lu, not "Lu Li". Chinese-name entries are systematically mangled by the concatenation, and these two are only recoverable because they are famous. And the life is extraordinary even in this encyclopedia: born 6 April 1966; a student Leader of the 1989 Tiananmen Square protests, rising to Deputy Commander-in-chief; put on China's most-wanted list and forced to escape, via France, to the United States. He heard Warren Buffett lecture at Columbia, took up investing, and founded Himalaya Capital in 1997; it now manages about USD 3.5 billion in a highly concentrated portfolio. She joined the company in 1992, rose through creative direction, and is Style and Image Director for the Estée Lauder brand; in January 2024 she was named Style & Design Director of Re-Nutriv, the prestige skincare franchise, responsible for its look across advertising, events, collaborations and packaging. And she built her own on top of it: she launched the lifestyle brand Aerin in 2012, which sits inside the Estée Lauder companies' brand portfolio — so she is simultaneously an heir, an executive and a Founder within the same company. The Lauder family is a case this encyclopedia should treat seriously rather than as glamour: her father Leonard ran the company, and her uncle Ronald Lauder has been President of the World Jewish Congress and was United States Ambassador to Austria. He was President of the Thunderbird School of Global Management, appointed in his thirties and reportedly the youngest President of a US graduate business School at the time. And the progression since is extraordinary: President of George Mason University 2012–2019, then President of the Georgia Institute of Technology from 2019 — one of the most important engineering and computing universities in the United States, and a principal supplier of engineers to American industry and defence. And he is about to move again, with a date: he becomes President and Chief Executive Officer of The Aspen Institute on 1 November 2026. The Aspen Institute is one of the most influential convening bodies in American public life — the room where business, government and foundations talk to each other off the record.

In September 2006 she spent eleven days on the international space station as the first female private space Explorer, the first person of Iranian descent and the first Muslim woman in space, and the fourth private Explorer ever to go. She and her family funded the Ansari XPRIZE, the USD 10 million competition won by SpaceshipOne in 2004, which directly began the commercial spaceflight industry — Virgin Galactic licensed the winning technology. She became Chief Executive of the XPRIZE Foundation in 2018 and runs it now: the organisation that designs incentive competitions — carbon removal, healthspan, rainforest, wildfire — to Pull private R&D towards problems governments have not solved. An Iranian-born immigrant who sold a telecoms company, bought a seat to orbit, and now sets the Prize Purses that steer global private research is an extraordinary entry — and the mechanism matters more than the biography: a private Foundation choosing which of Humanity's problems get a Bounty is agenda-setting power with no electorate.

President and Chief Executive Officer, Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago

The most powerful Monetary-policy position in the entire cohort, and the roster records "Professor of Economics". He is President and Chief Executive of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, which makes him a member of the federal open market committee — one of the small group of people who set United States interest rates, and therefore the price of money for much of the World. And the path ran straight through the White House: he was a member and then chairman of President Obama's Council of economic advisers, 2009–2011, and Chief Economist of the president's economic recovery advisory board during the financial crisis. He remains the Robert P. Gwinn Professor of Economics at the University of Chicago Booth School of business — the entry's institution — which he joined in 1995. Academic economist to chair of the CEA to President of a federal Reserve Bank is the canonical American technocratic career, and its defining feature is that none of its stages requires an election.

And then the fall, which is as instructive as the rise: he and Peter Pham raised USD 41 million for Color Labs before the product launched — one of the largest Pre-launch rounds of its era — and the app failed. He stepped back from day-to-day operations in July 2012 and Color stopped selling the app at the end of that year. Fast company's profile of him was titled "the boy in the bubble". What he built is unusual and worth describing precisely: he co-founded and runs Citizen University, and he created "civic Saturday" — a deliberate civic analogue to a faith gathering, with readings, songs and a Sermon, designed to give secular Americans a Ritual of shared citizenship. Building a Liturgy for democracy is an attempt at cultural infrastructure rather than policy, and it is the most original answer in this encyclopedia to the problem the whole cohort is supposed to address. He is John Douglas Thornton, born 9 April 1965 in Wichita, Kansas, and he died on Saturday 29 March 2025 in Austin, Texas, aged 59. The American Journalism Project's own tribute states it plainly: "John died Saturday, March 29, in his hometown of Austin, after a long struggle with mental health." The career matches the entry exactly: Trinity University 1987, Stanford MBA 1991, McKinsey and Company, then Austin Ventures from 1991, where he led nearly fifty software investments and ultimately served as Managing Partner of a firm with more than four billion dollars under management. And the second career is why he matters: he founded The Texas Tribune in 2008 and co-founded the American Journalism Project in 2019, and is the central figure in the American non-profit Local-news movement — a venture capitalist who spent the second half of his life trying to rebuild the local journalism that the industry he financed had helped to destroy. He also co-founded Elsewhere Partners. The trap, and it must travel with this entry for ever: there are two John Thorntons in this roster and both of them are global leaders for Tomorrow. John L. Thornton, class of 1993, is the Former President and Co-Chief Operating Officer of Goldman Sachs and is now chairman of Barrick mining — and he is named, by that exact title, in the Forum's own 2003 press release as a former GLT. He is alive. The man who died is ours — the Austin one. Any compiler who merges on surname, or who simply searches "John Thornton World Economic Forum", will land on the Goldman Sachs one and will either bury a living man or lose a real death. This is precisely the failure that put two living men into volume 1 as dead, documented here before it happens rather than after.

Tony Blevins CLASS OF 2002

LastKnown · Business · Technology · role verified 2022

Vice-President of Procurement (to September 2022), Apple Inc.

He was Apple's Vice-President of Procurement for twenty-two years, recruited from IBM by Tim Cook himself. The man who negotiates Apple's component contracts sets prices and terms for suppliers across Asia and, through them, for an entire industry. The departure, dated and stated plainly: on 5 September 2022 a Tiktok creator filmed him at a car show; asked what he did for a living, he answered with a crude remark about women. The video went viral, Apple employees Complained to human resources, and he left the company at the end of September 2022 after an internal Review. He apologised publicly. This is an employment matter, not a legal one: no allegation of unlawful conduct was made and none is implied. It is recorded with its date because a Twenty-two-year career ending in a thirty-second video is a fact about how power now works, not gossip.

Founder, Dream Corps

If the prior method can miss him it can miss anyone, and this entry should be quoted alongside Shigeta and Obrist. A Senior Fellow at the Center for American Progress. The public career has a dated reverse in it: he was President Obama's Special Adviser for Green jobs in 2009 and resigned in September 2009 after controversy over past statements and affiliations. That is a resignation from a political appointment, recorded with its date; no legal proceeding is involved. And what he did afterwards is the largest thing in the entry: he founded Dream Corps, whose #cut50 / Dream Corps Justice arm led the bipartisan campaign that passed the first step act — signed in December 2018 and called by The New York Times the most substantial Breakthrough in American Criminal Justice in a generation. Thousands of people left federal prison because of it. He built a coalition across the deepest partisan divide in American politics and changed federal sentencing law while holding no office at all. That is this encyclopedia's thesis with the sign reversed — private power used to open prison doors. Also a CNN political commentator, an Emmy-winning producer and a New York Times bestselling author; Green For All and Dream Corps Tech sit in the same group.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mattel, Inc.

He joined as CEO in April 2018 and became chairman of the board in May 2018, and he holds both posts in 2026. What he did there is a strategy textbook: he turned a toy manufacturer into an intellectual-property company — BARBIE, hot wheels, UNO, Fisher-price treated as franchises to be put into film and television rather than Moulded plastic to be shipped — and the 2023 "BARBIE" film, the highest-grossing film of its year, is what that strategy looks like when it works. He co-founded Fox Kids Europe and took it public in his early thirties; then chairman and CEO of the Endemol Shine Group, the producer of big brother and Masterchef; then Maisie Williams' Daisie and other Ventures; then Mattel. Children's television to global format television to the company that makes the toys. He has spent his whole career inside the machinery that shapes what children watch and Play with, and the roster recorded nothing at all. He gave the 2026 Wharton undergraduate graduation address.

Founder and Managing Partner, Good Growth Capital

Founder and Managing Director of Ignition Ventures, where she helped start companies worth more than a billion dollars out of university science laboratories — chip-based fuel cells, self-organising networks, selective brain cooling and advanced materials. That is technology commercialisation at the hardest end: taking laboratory physics and chemistry to market, rather than software. She is now Founder and Managing Partner of Good Growth Capital, a majority women-owned early-stage venture firm in Charleston and Boston specialising in the same thing — and she raised its 102 million dollar fund III. She is also an inventor with several patents of her own, which is unusual among venture investors and explains the specialisation; she sits on the boards of portfolio companies including Leuko, Obsidio and Coagulo. The people who decide which pieces of university science become companies are a small and almost entirely unexamined group, and she has been one of them for twenty-five years.

Senior Partner, McKinsey and Company

What he built inside it is the part that matters for this encyclopedia: he founded McKINSEY'S Higher education practice, McKINSEY Academy, and McKINSEY'S state and local government practice. Founding the higher-education practice and the state-and-local-government practice of the world's most influential management consultancy means building the machinery through which a very large number of American universities and city and state administrations are advised on how to reorganise themselves. Almost nobody outside those rooms knows his name. His own LinkedIn headline is truncated in the search index as "Senior Partner at McKinsey & Company and."; this encyclopedia did not establish what the second half says and records the McKinsey role, which is on the firm's own site, as the anchor.

"Assistant Professor — University of California, Berkeley" in 2003, now a Full Professor in the division of infectious diseases and director of the Center for Global Public Health in Berkeley's School of public health. She is one of the world's principal dengue researchers, working across molecular virology, pathogenesis, immunology, epidemiology, diagnostics and control of dengue, Zika and chikungunya — the most prevalent mosquito-borne viral diseases in humans — and running a long-running cohort study in Nicaragua whose antibody work was still being published in 2026. And the institution-building is the part the entry cannot show: in 1998 she founded the Sustainable Sciences Institute, a non-profit with offices in San Francisco and Nicaragua, and she is its President — built on the principle of putting laboratory capacity into the hands of scientists in the countries where the diseases actually are, rather than flying samples out to the rich world. White House Chief of Staff to the President of the United States, 8 February 2023 to 20 January 2025, Executive Office of the President of the United States

The highest staff office in the American Executive branch, and the roster records him as "Chairman — Advisory Board Company". He was White House Chief of Staff to President Biden from 8 February 2023 until 20 January 2025, when Susie Wiles succeeded him — announced on 27 January 2023 to replace Ron Klain. And that was his third senior federal role, not his first: director of the office of management and budget, and then White House COVID-19 response coordinator — the official who ran the United States vaccination programme. The arc is the project's thesis in its purest form: a Healthcare-consulting Executive, listed in 2003 as the chairman of a research firm most people have never heard of, who ended up running the White House. The Forum spotted him twenty years early, and the entry it wrote gives not the slightest indication why. He is one of at least three members of this class of 2003 to hold senior United States federal office, with Sylvia Matthews (HHS Secretary, 044), Casey Mulligan (HHS Chief Economist, 045) and Samantha power (USAID, 045). that concentration is worth counting properly across the whole roster before anything is published about it.

LastKnown · Finance · Government · role verified 2019

Managing Director and Tampa Market Executive, Merrill Lynch

A primary government document confirms our class year. The United States treasury's own press release for him records that he was selected for the World Economic Forum's Global leaders for Tomorrow programme in 2003. President George W. Bush nominated him and the United States Senate confirmed him unanimously as US Executive Director of the Inter-American Development Bank, 2001 to 2004, representing the United States on the board of the institution that provides the largest amount of development aid to Latin America and the Caribbean. He is the youngest person in history to have held the post, assuming it on 14 December 2001. And the first six years of his career are stated in his own biography, verbatim: "Jose spent the first six years of his career as an Operations Officer in the Central Intelligence Agency where he was posted abroad in Latin America and the Caribbean collecting, evaluating, and reporting high-priority intelligence of interest to U.S. Policy makers." A CIA case Officer in Latin America, then five years as a Goldman Sachs Vice-President selling emerging-market debt, then the United States' seat on the board of Latin America's development bank — and the Forum named him a Global Leader for Tomorrow while he held the third of those jobs. No other entry in this encyclopedia puts an intelligence career and a development-finance board seat in the same biography. Managing Director and head of the Miami private investment management branch of Lehman brothers for four years; Founder and President of Advent Strategies in Coral Gables; then Merrill Lynch. Jerome and Dorothy Lemelson Professor of Management and Global Economics, MIT Sloan School of Management

"Associate Professor of Management — Massachusetts Institute of Technology" — and she holds a named chair at MIT Sloan now, twenty-three years on. But the academic title is not why this entry matters. From 2014 to 2017 she was an external member of the monetary Policy Committee of the Bank of England — one of the nine people who set interest rates for the United Kingdom — and she is American. She finished her term on 30 June 2017. That is this encyclopedia's thesis in its literal form: a Global Leader for Tomorrow who spent three years voting on the price of money in a country she is not a citizen of, and whose roster entry says "Associate Professor of management". Podcast host and Tour de France analyst, "The Move", NBC Sports and Peacock

The Forum made him a Global Leader for Tomorrow in 2003 — in the Middle of the fraud, and six months before his fifth consecutive Tour de France. In 2012 the United States Anti-doping agency stripped him of all seven Tour de France titles, 1999 to 2005, and banned him from sanctioned competition for life, finding that he had led a Doping conspiracy involving Erythropoietin and human growth Hormone; he Confessed publicly in January 2013. That makes him the single hardest test of the Forum's selection process in the whole eleven-year roster: the criteria set out in the Forum's own 2003 press release require "a position of considerable influence and responsibility" and "commitment to the Principles and objectives that guide the World Economic Forum" — and he was selected on a record that was already entirely Fraudulent at the moment of selection. And he is the third competing athlete in the roster, after Ola Ahlvarsson and Catherine Freeman — caught by the sport sector on the very day it was created.

President, Denver Area Labor Federation, Denver Area Labor Federation, AFL-CIO

She is quoted as President of the Denver Area Labor Federation in a 1999 Denver Westword report on the State of Colorado's Unions, four years before the listing, and the roster entry matches exactly. The Denver Area Labor Federation is the AFL-CIO's central labour body for metropolitan Denver — the organisation that coordinates every affiliated union local in the region and delivers its political endorsements. A city labour federation president is a real seat of local power and one that essentially never generates national coverage, which is exactly why the entry is hard. Searches against the partnership for Working Families and the US Department of Labor — the two obvious destinations for someone in that role — returned nothing linking her to either, and no identification is asserted. Here the entry is sound and the trail simply stops — which is what happens to people whose power was local and pre-digital.

Chef and co-founder, Marcus Samuelsson Group

A typo in the roster title that changes a word into another real word: "Executive Chief and co-Owner" — it is Executive Chef. One letter, and it turns a kitchen title into a management one; the same word-swap family as "Gender Equity" and "Conservatory Party". Otherwise contemporaneous and exact — he was executive chef and co-owner of Aquavit in New York, where he became the youngest chef ever to receive a Three-star Review from The New York Times. Born in Ethiopia and raised in Sweden, he left downtown fine dining to open Red Rooster on Lenox Avenue in Harlem in 2010 — which changed how New York thought about dining in Harlem — and has built the Marcus Samuelsson Group to thirty-one restaurants across New York, New Jersey, Bermuda, Scandinavia, London, Chicago and Canada, with ventures from the Bahamas to Ethiopia. An eight-time James Beard Award winner, a longstanding judge on Chopped, head judge of Top Chef Family Style, and an Iron Chef on Netflix's Iron Chef: Quest for an Iron Legend; he also works with World Central Kitchen. The Media tag is not decoration — a chef with three network television roles reaches an audience larger than most of the media figures in this roster.

Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer, Smart Health Network

He co-founded Voxiva in 2001 and was its Chief Executive; the class of 2003 caught him two years in. Voxiva is worth describing, because the entry is just a name: it built phone-based health information systems for low-resource settings — disease surveillance and patient messaging over ordinary telephones, at a time when that was the only channel that reached most of the world — and later ran text-message health programmes at national scale in the United States. In 2016 he merged Voxiva with sense health to form Wellpass and led it as Chief Executive. Co-Founder and Chief Executive of the Smart Health Network, and Co-Founder of The Commons Project — the non-profit behind the digital health-credential infrastructure adopted internationally during and after the COVID-19 pandemic. Twenty-five years spent on the same problem — moving verified health information about individual people across systems that do not trust each other — through three successive institutions. That is infrastructure work, and it is invisible by design.

Rebecca MacKinnon CLASS OF 2003

Fellow, Berkman Klein Center for Internet and Society; and board member, Wikimedia Europe, Harvard University

She was CNN's Tokyo bureau chief, having also been its Beijing bureau chief, and the class of 2003 caught her running a network's bureau in a G7 capital. She then spent twenty years building the field that holds technology companies to account: Co-Founder of global voices, the International Citizen-media network; author of "consent of the networked"; and Founding Director of ranking digital rights, whose corporate accountability index scores the world's most powerful platforms and telecoms companies on privacy and Freedom of expression. That index is one of the very few instruments that measures platform power against a published standard rather than against itself. She led global public policy advocacy for the Wikimedia Foundation from 2021 to 2025, remains on the board of Wikimedia Europe, and as of August 2026 is a Fellow at Harvard's Berkman Klein Center. A CNN bureau chief who left broadcasting to build the measuring instruments for platform accountability is the mirror image of Thomas Crampton, who left journalism to run corporate social media. Sallie Krawcheck CLASS OF 2003

Current · Finance · role verified 2025

Co-founder; and Chair, Ellevest Network, Ellevest

The roster entry is truncated mid-word: "Chairman and Chief Executive Officer — Smith Barney, S". the string simply stops. The same mechanism, a different column. And the title it truncates is accurate and enormous. She ran Smith Barney; she was Chief Financial Officer of Citigroup; she ran Citi's wealth management business; she was Chief Executive of Merrill Lynch and head of Bank of America's Global wealth and investment management division. She was routinely called the most powerful woman on Wall Street, and the roster records the job title with the Last Word cut off. Then she built the opposite thing: in 2016 she launched Ellevest, a digital investment platform built specifically for women and around the gender investing gap, and chairs the Ellevest Network. She stepped down as Ellevest's Chief Executive as the firm reached its tenth year, saying she would focus on her health following a diagnosis she did not Specify; Chief Investment Officer Dr Sylvia Kwan and chief operating and financial Officer Connie Hsiung became Co-chief executives. She chose not to name the diagnosis. Record the fact of the transition and the reason she gave, in her own terms, and nothing further.

Samantha Power CLASS OF 2003

Current · Government · Academia · Media · role verified 2026

Writer and academic; formerly Administrator, United States Agency for International Development, Independent

The roster entry has a grammatical defect and a real title under it: "writer and Human Right Center Director" — singular where it should be plural. Otherwise contemporaneous and exact: she directed the Carr Center for human rights policy at Harvard, and she is a writer — "a problem from Hell: America and the age of Genocide" won the Pulitzer Prize for general non-fiction in 2003, the class year itself. She went on to be United States Ambassador to the United Nations, 2013–2017, with cabinet rank — and then administrator of the United States Agency for International Development from 2021 to 2025, running the largest bilateral aid agency in the World. And the ending is without precedent anywhere in this roster: she walked out of USAID headquarters for the last time on 20 January 2025 — and the agency itself was officially shut down in July 2025. The institution she ran no longer exists. She has spoken publicly through 2026 about its dismantling and its legacy. No other entry in this encyclopedia records a person whose organisation was not merged, renamed or sold but abolished.

Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Olivela

A second "100" attestation in the same twenty-five entries: her biography records that she was "named one of World Economic Forum's 100 Global leaders of Tomorrow". She was President and Chief Executive of project achieve, the school information-management system, whose software reached fifteen per cent of all US schools before she sold the company, and which won a 3.5 million dollar federally funded national rollout. The sequence is unusually coherent: a teacher and school principal who founded the Academy of Pacific RIM charter school, then Project Achieve, then Schoola — which sold donated clothing and returned forty per cent of proceeds to school arts, music and physical education — and now Olivela, a luxury retailer that directs a share of every purchase to children's education and girls' schooling. Sylvia Matthews CLASS OF 2003

Current · Academia · Government · Healthcare · role verified 2026

President, American University

The roster misspells her surname by adding a letter: she is Sylvia Mathews — one "t" — and she is now Sylvia Mathews Burwell. An added character, where every other name defect in this encyclopedia has been a loss, a substitution or a truncation. That completes the taxonomy's fourth shape, and it is the one most likely to survive a spellcheck. She was Executive Director at the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, and the class of 2003 caught her there. And then she held two Cabinet-rank offices of the United States government: director of the office of management and budget, and then the 22nd Secretary of health and human services, 2014 to the end of the Obama administration — running Medicare, Medicaid and the food and drug administration, and best known for Shepherding and defending the affordable care act. She had earlier been Deputy Chief of Staff to President Clinton and Chief of Staff to the Secretary of the Treasury. Since 1 June 2017 she has been the 15th President of American University, and the first woman to hold the office. So the roster's "Executive Director — Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation" is the entry for a woman who went on to run the American federal health system and the federal budget office. No entry in the project understates its subject by a wider margin, and it does it while misspelling her name.

He was a Vice-President at Fred Alger management, and later president of River Twice Research and of River Twice Capital, so the finance career is continuous rather than abandoned. But his public role is now a media one: he founded The Progress Network at New America, a media organisation built explicitly around the argument that the world is improving and that the news business systematically understates it, run day to day by Executive Director Emma Varvaloucas and now more than five years old. In early 2026 The Progress Network moved to Substack — which makes him an IndependentMedia candidate under the vocabulary the owner added in September 2025, though his output remains institutionally housed at New America and he is not filed that way here. He hosts the podcast "What Could Go Right?", is a Contributing Editor at Politico and a columnist for time, and writes the "Edgy Optimist" newsletter; his books include a history of the invention of GDP, and "Inside Money" is the most recent. A man who runs money and simultaneously runs a media outlet arguing the world is getting better is a combination worth naming plainly.

Maria Lechner Reynal CLASS OF 2002

Current · NGO · Government · Academia · role verified 2025

Founder and Director-General, Fundación ECOS; and Co-Chair, GEF CSO Network, Fundación ECOS

She founded Fundación ECOS and is its Director-General. And the second role is the one that matters: she is Co-Chair of the Global Environment Facility's civil Society organisation network. The GEF is the financial mechanism for the three Rio conventions — climate change, biodiversity and Desertification — and the CSO network is how non-governmental organisations get a seat at its table. Co-chairing it means speaking for civil Society inside a multilateral funding body. Through a GEF-financed venture, ECOS has worked to connect the people implementing Uruguay's obligations under all three conventions — the bridge-building approach she developed working in Argentina's foreign ministry. A trade-law professor; she has served with the Organization of American States on environmental law. An Unpaid-sounding civil-society co-chairmanship that sits inside the governance of a multi-billion-dollar Multilateral Fund is exactly the kind of position this encyclopedia should learn to spot.

Rustam S. Azimov CLASS OF 1994

LastKnown · Government · Finance · role verified 2017

First Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, Government of Uzbekistan

A disappearance from public life. Long-serving Uzbek finance minister and first Deputy Prime Minister, and for years regarded as a possible successor to President Islam Karimov. He was placed under House arrest in August 2016, most plausibly to sideline him in the succession as Karimov lay dying — Karimov's death was announced that september — and was dismissed from the government on 6 June 2017 under Shavkat Mirziyoyev. Very little reliable information about him has surfaced since. The roster records no title for him.

Adolfo R. Taylhardat CLASS OF 1993

Director, Latamics

Searching the name returns Adolfo Raúl Taylhardat, the distinguished Venezuelan diplomat — Permanent Representative to the United Nations from August 1993 and President of the Security Council in September 1993, ambassador to France, Haiti, Cuba and Austria — who died on 9 July 2017. But he was born on 6 May 1934 and would have been 59 in 1993, well outside the class's stated limit of 43. The honouree is therefore someone else of the same distinctive surname, plausibly a relative, and the roster's organisation — Latamics, apparently a consultancy — does not match the diplomat's career. The second case of this shape after Eugenio A. Mendoza: a famous namesake of the wrong generation. Held at the roster's own title.

Chairman, Mendoza Enterprises

Searching this name returns Eugenio Mendoza Goiticoa (13 November 1906–17 October 1979), the industrialist who built the Grupo Mendoza across machinery, banking, vehicle assembly, cement, paints, paper and animal feed, served as Minister of development, and founded the Metropolitan University of Caracas and the Mendoza Foundation. He died fourteen years before this listing and cannot be the honouree. The middle initial A. distinguishes them and the honouree is evidently a descendant heading the same family group, but the individual was not identified.

Minister of Finance; President, Government of Zambia; Forum for Democracy and Development (FDD)

Prediction is confirmed, and this is the strongest "." Case in this encyclopedia. Wrote: "Edith Z. Nawakwi (1999), Zambia's finance minister, may be an even stronger example, and she is due imminently." She was Zambia's Minister of Finance in 1998–1999 — the first woman ever to hold that office in Zambia and the first in the Southern African region — so she was a sitting finance Minister in her selection year, and the Forum's file records a single full stop. She died on 7 April 2025, aged 66, in South Africa, where she had been evacuated for specialist treatment. Named sources and a full date: the Zambian Cabinet Office's own announcement, Lusaka Times, News

Diggers, Zambia Monitor and Diamond TV, all 7 April 2025; President Hakainde Hichilema issued a public tribute. Identity test, and it passes despite the absent anchor: the roster gives the middle initial Z and her full name was Edith Zewelani Nawakwi; she was a serving national finance minister in the class year, which is exactly the selection profile; and there is no second public figure of the name.

Chairman and Co-Founder; Chairman, Phatisa Group; Super Group Ltd; MTN Zambia; Zambia Venture Capital Fund

He ran the Zambia privatisation agency as its first Chief Executive, overseeing one of the largest privatisation programmes in Sub-Saharan Africa, and went on to found Zambia Venture Capital Fund. He is Co-Founder and Group Chairman of Phatisa, a pan-African private equity manager investing in food and affordable housing across the continent, and chairs its Investment Committee. The board list is the interesting part: chairman of Super Group (the JSE-listed logistics business) since 2022, chairman of MTN Zambia, and a Board Member of African parks — the conservation organisation that manages national parks on behalf of African governments, which is a genuinely unusual kind of delegated public authority. The pairing with Ugur Bayar: two 1999 honourees ran their countries' privatisation programmes, in Zambia and in Turkey, and neither roster entry says so.

"Chief Executive Officer and Controller, The Communications Authority" means he ran Zambia's telecommunications regulator at the moment mobile telephony arrived in the country — the Communications Authority was the predecessor of today's ZICTA, and its controller licensed the operators and set the terms on which Zambians got their first phones. A national telecoms regulator is a textbook case of the quiet structural power, and the roster States it plainly for once. Managing Director, Zimsafe (Pvt) Limited

Roster title retained; it is contemporaneous — Zimsafe operated from Willowvale in Harare and she ran it. The roster entry and her marriage are the same year: she married Constantino Chiwenga in November 1998, the year of her selection; he was then a senior army commander, became Commander of the Zimbabwe Defence Forces, led the November 2017 military action against Robert Mugabe, and has been First Vice-President of Zimbabwe since. Allegations in both directions, reported and not established: he filed for divorce in 2012 citing her alleged violent behaviour; she has said publicly that she feared for her life and described physical and emotional abuse; press reporting of the divorce canvassed the ownership of Zimsafe, C&J, Kazungula, Vitlux and Lighthouse Investments and of offshore assets. Founder and former Group Chief Executive Officer, Trust Holdings Limited

He founded Trust Bank in 1996 and was still running the group in 1998. The career before it is the interesting part: he helped create Ghana's flagship merchant bank, Continental Acceptances (Cal), and on returning to Zimbabwe in 1992 spearheaded the formation of national merchant bank, the country's first indigenous merchant bank, running it for nearly three years before founding Trust. The institution did not survive, and the allegations are stated as reported with no established finding: Trust Holdings voluntarily delisted from the Zimbabwe Stock Exchange in 2013; the Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe cancelled Trust bank's licence in December 2013 citing a weak capital position and abuse of depositors' funds, and provisional liquidation followed after shareholders withdrew their opposition. RBZ material has been quoted in the press as attributing distributions to employees and directors to his instruction, and he has been named in reporting on bankers barred from the sector. No criminal conviction or regulatory finding against him personally has been located, and none is asserted.

He founded Kingdom securities in 1994 and became, at twenty-eight, the youngest founding Chief Executive and owner of a banking institution in Zimbabwe's history. Born 11 July 1966 and raised in Harare's Highfield township in an entrepreneurial family; he built Kingdom Financial Holdings across Zimbabwe, Malawi, Botswana, Zambia, South Africa and the United Kingdom. And the exit is dated and clean: he merged Kingdom financial Holdings with Mauritius-based Afrasia Bank in 2011 and sold his entire 30 per cent shareholding to them in September 2013, leaving banking altogether. Since then: Executive Chairman of the Success Motivation Institute (Africa), doing leadership coaching and mentoring; a philanthropist; and a Former Chairman of the Zimbabwe investment authority — so, as with Bernoussi, the man who built private banks also chaired the state body that approves foreign investment.

He founded Renaissance Merchant Bank in 1999 and was its Chief Executive, building it out through a parent, Renaissance Financial Holdings, that took in Africa First Reassurance and a large stake in the listed Rainbow Tourism Group. A former grain trader who built a merchant banking group, honoured by the Forum in 2003 at the height of it. What the record shows, stated precisely: in June 2011 the Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe removed him as Chief Executive and placed Renaissance Merchant Bank under curatorship for six months, following investigations that it said had Unearthed systemic abuse of depositors' funds among other irregularities. The Central Bank recorded total insider Borrowings of USD 12.4 million — covering Timba, his relatives and Renaissance Financial Holdings — exceeding 25 per cent of the bank's capital base in breach of banking rules, and non-performing loans at 38 per cent of a USD 53.1 million loan book as at 31 March 2011. In 2018 a Harare High Court judge, Justice David Mangota, declared him insolvent after he failed to pay a USD 1,815,117 debt to first Mutual Holdings. No trace of the person or of "Dadi Monthly Magazine" survives in reachable sources under this romanisation; the Chinese characters are unknown and Wade-Giles-to-pinyin ambiguity makes the name unsearchable. NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. And the Forum's published list shows this encyclopedia truncated the entry: the Forum's own 1995 list reads "Ex-Managing Director, Goldman Sachs International, United" — this encyclopedia stops at "Goldman Sachs International", losing a trailing "United..." that was almost certainly a country ("United Kingdom" or "United States") and is itself cut off in the Forum's published list. So this entry carries both the Class 2 Ex- shorthand and a truncation, like Roger Gruben. No information found. And the roster entry has a shape this encyclopedia has not seen before: the Forum gives a position — "Executive Vice-President and General Counsel" — with no organisation at all. A General Counsel of nothing is unsearchable: the title is generic, the name is common, and the one field that would have narrowed it is the field the Forum left blank. A Patricia L. Irvin served as a US Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense in the 1990s, which would fit a 1996 selection; no source ties her to the listing, so the entry stays open.

Peter A. Korotkov CLASS OF 1996

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. President, Russian National Commercial Bank — and the organisation name is a trap. A bank of that name (Российский национальный коммерческий банк, RNCB) exists today and is the dominant retail bank in Crimea, sanctioned by the EU, US and UK after 2014; it is a state-owned entity with no continuity of management to a 1996 private bank of a similar name, and nothing connects this man to it. Do not link him to the modern RNCB. That inference would be both wrong and defamatory. The 1990s Moscow commercial banks largely did not survive the 1998 default.

SOURCES no source found; the modern RNCB is cited only to EXCLUDE the false link

Russell Daggatt CLASS OF 1996

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. A candidate exists and cannot be confirmed: a Russell Daggatt was president of Teledesic, the Craig McCaw and Bill Gates satellite-internet venture of the 1990s, which would fit a 1996 selection almost perfectly — but no source ties that man to the GLT listing, and this encyclopedia's own rule forbids assuming an identity from plausibility alone (the Bernstein, Taylhardat and Carlos Tavares lesson). Recorded here so the lead is not lost: if a Forum document or his own biography ever links the two, this entry resolves immediately.

Ulrike Nieter CLASS OF 1996

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The name is German and uncommon, which normally helps and here does not — nothing datable attaches to it, and the only traces are third-party compilations of the GLT class lists, which is circular. A German name with no country is a candidate for the Handelsregister/Bundesanzeiger pass alongside Margrit Wieduwilt.

Wang Titang CLASS OF 1996

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. General Manager, Xiamen International Airport Group Co. Ltd — a real and identifiable company, the operator of Xiamen Gaoqi International Airport in Fujian, still trading. But no trace of this man survives in reachable English-language sources, and the romanisation "Wang Titang" is ambiguous across several character sets on the commonest Chinese surname.

William Lo Wing Yan CLASS OF 1996

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. A candidate exists and cannot be confirmed: a William Lo Wing-yan has been associated with Hong Kong technology and public bodies, and the name shape is Cantonese romanisation with the given name following the surname — but the current Cyberport board and management listings, checked to March 2026, do not carry him, and nothing datable ties any candidate to the GLT listing.

Wolfgang Riehle CLASS OF 1996

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The name is German and moderately common; several living people carry it, including an academic Anglicist, and none can be tied to the listing by age, role or any other anchor. The Nigel Playford / Ulrike Nieter shape for the third time — a German-language name with no anchor. Three of them now (Wieduwilt, Nieter, Riehle), which is enough to justify a single batched Handelsregister / Bundesanzeiger pass rather than three separate attempts.

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. General Director, Research and Production Association Crosna — a real Russian entity, Crosna having been a Moscow satellite-communications and electronics company of the 1990s, but no continuous public identity for it could be reached and nothing datable attaches to the person. Russian-language searching is the route and the queue is now Nadezhda Lukiyanova, Vasili V. Soldatov and this entry — three Cyrillic entries, and the method is proven (Dmitry Vasiliev resolved on the first Russian search)

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Vice-Chairman, Enany Group of companies — an Egyptian family business name, and the roster's own title is the only trace of it that could be reached; no company of that name with a continuous public identity was located, and the personal name transliterates several ways (Enany, El-Enany, Anany).

Anna K. Hejka-Arczynska CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Heyka Group — and note the spelling discrepancy inside the Forum's own entry: the person is "Hejka-Arczynska" and the company is "Heyka Group", J against Y. That is either a real anglicisation of the company name or an error in the file, and it makes both halves harder to search. Polish; a Hejka has been active in Polish private equity and venture capital since the 1990s, but nothing datable ties any candidate to the listing.

Daniel Wagner CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. And the name is the problem in its commonest form: several public figures called Daniel or Dan Wagner are readily traceable — a British technology entrepreneur, an American political-risk author and speaker, an academic — and none can be connected to the GLT listing, so choosing between them would be invention. Like Michael J. Smith and Robert A. Johnson, this is the anchor failure in its purest form: the entry contains a name and nothing else, and the name is shared. The only traces tying anyone to the class are the third-party compilations, which are circular.

SOURCES no source connecting any candidate to the listing; third-party GLT compilations excluded as circular

Emil Harsev CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Managing Partner, Harsev Co. Unlimited — the organisation name is unusual enough that it ought to help, and it does not; nothing with a continuous public identity under that name could be located. The name is Bulgarian, and Bulgarian financial records of the 1990s are thinly digitised — the same archive-gap category as Liz Chitiga and Nicole Feely. The archive gap bites hardest on the merely commercial.

Francine Wachsstock CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The name is distinctive — Wachsstock is uncommon in any spelling — and that normally helps; here nothing datable attaches to it at all. That circularity is worth naming as its own observation: for the hardest entries, the entire visible internet record of the person consists of copies of the Forum's list. The Nigel Playford shape — a rare name with no anchor.

SOURCES no source found; third-party GLT compilations excluded as circular

Jeffrey J. L. Koo CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Identity unresolved, and this is the Highest-risk unresolved entry in this encyclopedia — higher than Daryl Bernstein or Carlos Tavares — because one of the two candidates carries a criminal conviction and the other is dead. The two candidates are father and son in the Taiwanese Koo family that controls Chinatrust, now Ctbc financial holding: (1) Jeffrey Koo senior, who built Chinatrust and died in 2012 — born 1933, he would have been 64 in 1997, far outside the programme's age band; and (2) Jeffrey Koo junior, born 1964, who would have been 33 — comfortably inside it. The under-43 age rule therefore points clearly to the son, and the age rule has saved four entries before (Bronfman, Desmarais, Gates, Taylhardat). But the roster's initials "J. L." match neither man's published name form cleanly, and no source ties either to the GLT listing. What makes this different from the other unresolved entries: Jeffrey Koo Jr was indicted in the 2006 "Red Fire" affair and, in May 2025, was sentenced to seven years and eight months over the Chengcing Lake building purchase, with a Taipei court ruling him a flight risk subject to daily monitoring. That conviction must not be attached to this entry on the strength of an age inference. If the identity is ever established, the entry can be written; until then, naming either man here would be indefensible.

Jocelyne Attal CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. A candidate exists and cannot be confirmed: a Jocelyne Attal held senior marketing positions in the technology industry in the 1990s and 2000s, which would fit a 1997 selection — but no source ties any such person to the GLT listing, and this encyclopedia's rule forbids assuming an identity from plausibility (the Bernstein, Carlos Tavares and Russell Daggatt lesson). The lead is recorded so it is not lost.

SOURCES no source connecting any candidate to the listing

Kristaq Luniku CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The name is Albanian and distinctly so, which normally helps — and here it does not, because Albania is the most extreme archive gap this encyclopedia has met: almost nothing of 1990s Albanian business or public life is digitised in any language, and the country was in near-collapse in 1997, the year of this class, following the pyramid-scheme crisis. This is an archive failure, not a script or anchor one, and it is the seventh member of that class (with Chitiga, Feely, Leptos, Harsev, Goschorski, Hejka-Arczynska)

SOURCES no source found

Liz Chitiga CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The name is Zimbabwean and a woman named Chitiga headed the Minerals Marketing Corporation of Zimbabwe in the 1990s, which would fit a 1997 selection — but no source ties that person to the GLT listing, the first name does not match in the sources located, and this encyclopedia's rule forbids assuming an identity from plausibility. Recorded so the lead is not lost. Zimbabwean records of the 1990s are thinly digitised, which is a category of failure distinct from the transliteration ones — it is an archive gap, not a language gap, and no amount of searching in English will fix it.

Marek Goschorski CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Milton Kim Seok-Dong CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Nicole Feely CLASS OF 1997

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Chief Executive Officer, Victorian Employers' Chamber of Commerce and industry — a real Australian body, now the Victorian Chamber of Commerce and industry, and the title is plausible for the period. But no trace of this person survives in reachable sources, and the name is not distinctive enough to bridge the gap. Australian organisational records of the 1990s are thinly digitised — this is closer to the Liz Chitiga archive-gap category than to the transliteration ones, and it is the second instance, which suggests the archive-gap class is real and worth counting separately.

Ana M. Botero CLASS OF 1998

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Searches on Colombian finance return a professional associated with CAF — Banco de Desarrollo de America Latina, but this encyclopedia has not established that this is the same person and it must not be attached. The surname is among the most common in Colombian public life — Catalina Botero Marino and Alejandra Botero are separate and independently notable people, which is precisely the trap. The entry stays empty. For the alias/identity work: a middle initial ("M.") with a blank title is the worst combination in the file.

Elia Federici CLASS OF 1998

NoInfo · role verified 2026

An Italian company safe S.p.a. Exists in the business register (Vat 03224661201) but no linkage to this individual has been established. Searches return at least three distinct men named Elia Federici in Italy, including a Chief Executive of Fresia 2200 srl and the subject of a published biography, "Elia Federici: un imprenditore abruzzese" (Maurilio Di Giangregorio) — none of them established as the honouree. And a specific warning that must travel with this entry: searches also surface a Tangentopoli-era report of the arrest of a "Federici" in a Roman Construction-sector corruption case. That is a different matter and a different person so far as the evidence goes, it is not attached to this entry, and it must never be. This is the archive-gap class: a common Italian surname, a common Italian company name, a 1990s mid-market business, and no digitised record. The entry stays empty.

Jiang Guofang CLASS OF 1998

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Pinyin without tone marks collapses them into one string. The Chinese-language pass returned 姜国芳, a well-known contemporary oil painter (born 1951) celebrated for Forbidden City subjects, and several academics named 蒋国芳 in entomology and chemistry — none established as the honouree, and the painter in particular must not be attached merely because he is the most visible match. This is a different and worse failure than a common Western name: a common Western surname still points at one spelling, whereas a romanised Chinese name points at several distinct characters. Add it to defect class as a separate mechanism — script collision — alongside accent flattening and one-entry transliteration. The entry stays empty.

SOURCES Roster row (blank title cell); Chinese-language search (姜国芳 / 蒋国芳); Baidu Baike; negative result - no identification established

Michael R. Jackson CLASS OF 1998

NoInfo · role verified 2026

A strong and specific hypothesis that is recorded here as a lead and explicitly not as a fact: Michael Jackson, the British television executive (born 11 February 1958), was Chief Executive of channel 4 from 1997 to 2001 — meaning he was a sitting national broadcaster Chief Executive through the whole of 1998 — and later chairman of Universal Television. In 1998 itself channel 4 took England's home test cricket from the BBC in a GBP 103 million deal. He fits the programme's profile exactly and the year exactly. This entry is the sharpest test in this encyclopedia of the rule that a name-plus-plausibility is a hypothesis, not a match — and the middle initial is the whole of the doubt. Flagged as the top priority for the anchor/alias work: if the 1998 delegate lists or a contemporaneous Forum programme name his organisation, the entry resolves in one step.

SOURCES Roster row (blank title cell); Wikipedia (Michael Jackson, television executive) and Royal Television Society - RECORDED AS AN UNCONFIRMED HYPOTHESIS ONLY

Shaun P. Holliday CLASS OF 1998

NoInfo · role verified 2026

A textbook anchor failure: with no title, no organisation, no sector and no country in the source entry there is nothing to test a candidate against, so every plausible match is unfalsifiable. This entry is empty not because the man is obscure but because the Forum's own record of him is empty. The failure is in the document, not in the search.

Bruno Sidler CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Title-less entry with no organisation and no country. The name is Swiss-German and reads as a real personal name rather than a transliteration, but nothing attaches to it. Hassan Ba CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Searched in English and French, against the Senegalese presidency, against the WEF class lists, and against the name alone. The likeliest explanation is name frequency compounded by archive gap: BA is one of the commonest surnames in Senegal — this encyclopedia's own searches surfaced Amadou Ba (a Former Prime Minister), Amadou Mahtar Ba, Babacar Ba and Seynabou Ba — and Senegalese presidential-staff appointments of the late 1990s are not digitised. This is the Liz Chitiga / Nicole Feely archive-gap category combined with the Michael O'Brien Common-name category, and it is the first time the two have combined on a entry with a strong institutional anchor.

Jan Muller CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Title-less entry, no organisation, no country — and the name is close to the theoretical worst case for this encyclopedia. "Jan MÜLLER" combines one of the commonest given names in Germanic and Dutch Europe with the commonest German surname. Searched against the Global Leaders for Tomorrow attestation pattern, which has closed four other title-less entries in this encyclopedia, and it returns nothing for this name. The alphabetical coincidence with Edin Muftic immediately above and Elizabeth Murdoch immediately below: three consecutive M-entries, two of them resolved and this one not, which is a useful reminder that the failures are not clustered by anything except the anchor.

SOURCES WEF GLT class of 1999 list (blank title cell, MÜLLER with umlaut); no source found for the person

John Windolph CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. A lead recorded as a lead and explicitly not Advanced: a John Windolph is a marketing and employer-brand professional who is described as having been Chief Executive of J. Walter Thompson inside and who writes for ERE; the era and the discipline would fit a 1999 selection, and an advertising-agency executive is a plausible honouree. But nothing ties that person to the roster; the roster gives no anchor, and the search returns three different LinkedIn profiles of the name. The deciding Consideration is the one from Sanjay Kumar in reverse: the claim here would be harmless, but the standard cannot depend on whether a mistake would be embarrassing. A name without an anchor is a hypothesis whether or not it is a flattering one.

Mani Maren CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Title-less entry with no organisation and no country — the Nigel Playford / Deena Chetty shape. And this one has a further problem that should be recorded: the name may be reversed. So the person may be "Maren Mani". Both orders were searched, in combination with the Global Leaders for Tomorrow attestation pattern, and neither returns anything. A reversed name with no anchor is the worst case this encyclopedia can face, because even the name is a hypothesis.

Sanjay Kumar CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Sanjay Kumar, the Former Chairman and Chief Executive of computer Associates, was President and Chief Operating Officer of that company in 1999 and about thirty-seven years old — as exact a fit to a 1999 Global Leaders for Tomorrow profile as could be constructed — and he pleaded guilty in April 2006 to eight felonies including securities fraud, obstruction of justice and perjury over a USD 2.2 billion revenue-recognition fraud, was sentenced to twelve years and an USD 8 million fine, and was released in January 2017 after nearly a decade. There is no organisation, no country and no anchor of any kind, and "Sanjay Kumar" is one of the commonest names in India. No source places the computer Associates Executive in the 1999 class, and a targeted search for a self-attestation found nothing. The asymmetry is the whole point and it is why the entry stays empty: if the identification is wrong, this encyclopedia would have attached a federal fraud conviction and a prison sentence to an innocent man of the same name. That is the Michael R. Jackson principle and it applies with far more force here. A plausible profile is not evidence, and the more damaging the claim, the higher the bar.

SOURCES WEF GLT class of 1999 list (blank title cell); US Department of Justice EDNY releases, 24 April and 2 November 2006, and SEC Litigation Release 19898 (the Computer Associates case - the candidate, NOT advanced); AP via SI.com, March 2017 (release from prison); no source linking any Sanjay Kumar to the roster row

Svetlana Derajic CLASS OF 1999

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. And the roster entry is itself damaged, which is part of the story. The Forum's published list reads "Project Manager, European / Initiative for democracy and / European Human Rights / Foundation" — so her actual post was project manager for the European Initiative for democracy and human rights, the European Union's democracy and human-rights funding instrument, at the European Human Rights Foundation. That matters for the search, because the deleted words are the ones that would have anchored her: EIDHR was a named EU budget line and its Balkans programme staff of the late 1990s are not digitised. The name is South Slavic; searches surface a different person, Svetlana Durkovic, a Bosnian LGBTIQ rights activist born 1974, and she is not the same person and is not recorded as one. Archive gap plus a damaged anchor — a combination this encyclopedia has not had before.

SOURCES WEF GLT class of 1999 list (the full title, read from the extract); no source found for the person

Aman Karim Sarina CLASS OF 2000

NoInfo · role verified 2026

The almost certain reading is that she is Sarina, daughter of Aman Karim — a Malaysian name in which "Sarina" is the given name — which would make the roster's rendering backwards, exactly as Alli Waheed was proved to be. The anchor is real and still did not help: the multimedia development Corporation was the Malaysian government agency created in 1996 to run the multimedia Super corridor, Mahathir's flagship technology project, and it is now the Malaysia Digital Economy Corporation. A Vice-President of it in 2000 was a senior figure in a national industrial strategy. Nothing about the individual survives in reachable sources in either name order. This is archive gap plus name reversal, and the second failure of the anchor rule against a strong institutional anchor after Hassan BA.

Barry John Stuart Hore CLASS OF 2000

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Title-less entry with no organisation and no country. The name is unusually full — three given names and a surname — which is itself a small piece of evidence: the Forum's file almost always carries one or two given names, so a person recorded as "Barry John Stuart" was probably entered from a formal document rather than a business card. It did not help. Searched against the Global Leaders for Tomorrow attestation pattern that has now closed eight title-less entries in this encyclopedia, and in both name orders following the Alli Waheed proof. Nothing attaches. No candidate is Advanced.

Rodrigo Navarro CLASS OF 2000

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. And this is a failure against a strong institutional anchor, which makes it the third of its kind after Hassan BA and Aman Karim Sarina. The roster gives "Managing Director, CAF Latin American Development Bank" — CAF is the Development Bank of Latin America and the Caribbean, a multilateral lender owned by nineteen countries and one of the principal sources of infrastructure finance on the continent. A Managing Director of it in 2000 was a senior multilateral official. Nothing attaches: CAF's own historical leadership pages are not reachable in a form that lists divisional managing directors of that period, and "Rodrigo Navarro" is a common name across Spanish-speaking Latin America and Spain, returning several unrelated public figures. Searched in Spanish and English and against the Global Leaders for Tomorrow attestation pattern. No candidate is Advanced. The pattern forming: all three anchor failures are institutions whose 1990s-2000s staff records were never digitised — a Senegalese presidency, a Malaysian agency and a Latin American multilateral. The anchor rule works on companies and fails on public bodies outside the OECD.

SOURCES WEF GLT class of 2000 list (title confirmed); CAF corporate and historical records; no source found for the person

Andre Cunha CLASS OF 2001

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. He has an anchor — "President — Alldix" — and the anchor is useless, because Alldix itself leaves no public trace of any kind. "Cunha" is one of the commonest Portuguese surnames and the search returns several real Brazilian businessmen of the name — a director of A7 Empreendimentos, a real-estate developer, a footballer — and none of them is anchored to Alldix. Searched in both name orders and with the self-attestation pattern, per the Alli Waheed proof.

SOURCES Searched: name in both orders; "Alldix" alone and with Brazil; with the 2001 class year; with the self-attestation pattern. The only hits for "Alldix" are mirrors of the Forum's own 2001 GLT list. Absent from earlier research

Edward Mallinckrodt CLASS OF 2001

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. A third distinct failure mode, and the worst of the three: the colliding organisation. Andre Cunha had a phantom anchor — "Alldix" leaves no trace at all. This anchor is worse, because it leads somewhere confidently wrong. "Mauryan Capital" resolves cleanly and repeatedly to Mauryan Capital management private Limited of Mumbai — a Sebi-registered alternative investment fund founded in 2015 or 2016, with three Partners, whose portfolio includes Swiggy and PB fintech and which has no traceable connection to him at all. A researcher following the anchor lands on a real, verifiable, wrong company — founded three years after the roster file was exported. And the surname sets a second trap: Mallinckrodt plc is a large pharmaceutical company central to the American opioid litigation, and its SEC filings dominate the search results. The only plausible trace is a London LinkedIn profile carrying no employer detail, which is not enough to record anything. Searched in both name orders and with the self-attestation pattern, per the Alli Waheed proof. They say different things about the file.

SOURCES Searched: name in both orders; "Mauryan Capital" with and without his name; with the 2001 class year; with the self-attestation pattern. Mauryan Capital Management Private Limited (mauryancapital.com, SEBI AIF3 registration IN/AIF3/16-17/0228); PitchBook, Crunchbase, Preqin, Tracxn - all give a 2015-2016 founding and no link to him. earlier research also recorded "No current public information found"

Segun Adeniji CLASS OF 2001

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Searched in both name orders ("Segun Adeniji" and "Adeniji Segun") and with the self-attestation pattern against "Global Leader of Tomorrow" and "World Economic Forum", per the Alli Waheed proof. The surname is common and Yoruba and the search returns several real Nigerians — Oluyemi Adeniji the diplomat and Foreign Minister, Temi Adeniji of Warner Music Africa, Olawale Adeniji IGE the former communications Minister, and the journalist Olusegun Adeniyi whose name is one letter different — and none of them is this person. It is not evidence that he achieved nothing; it is evidence that the Forum's file recorded nothing about him. The trap the near-miss sets: Olusegun Adeniyi is a prominent Thisday columnist and a former presidential spokesman, and an Incautious researcher would have taken him.

SOURCES Searched: name in both orders; with Nigeria; with the 2001 class year; with the self-attestation pattern. Wikipedia disambiguation page for Adeniji; no match. Absent from earlier research

Alfredo Espinosa Jimenez CLASS OF 2002

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The Fundación Mexicana Para El Desarrollo rural is a long-established Mexican Rural-development Foundation with a UN Global Compact entry, a CEMEFI directory listing, published board minutes, a CIMMYT partnership and a Synergos case study. Its current Director-General is somebody else. Nothing in any of that material names him. So the anchor is neither phantom nor colliding — it is sound, and the organisation simply never published the name of its Chief Executive of that era. That is the same shape as Hassan BA, Aman Karim Sarina and Rodrigo Navarro: an institution whose historical staff records were never digitised.

SOURCES Searched: name in both orders; "Fundación Mexicana para el Desarrollo Rural" with and without his name; with the 2002 class year; with the self-attestation pattern. CEMEFI member directory; UN Global Compact participant record; Synergos FMDR case study; CIMMYT partnership announcement - none names him. earlier research also recorded "No current public information found"

Elizabeth Tsehai CLASS OF 2002

NoInfo · role verified 2026

"E.t. Communications" has left no findable trace of any kind — no company record, no archived site, no press mention. A candidate exists and is recorded as a lead only: an Ethiopian-american Elizabeth Tsehai who has spent years promoting African businesses, including work with Mastercard, and is now a prominent collector and advocate for African digital artists, hosting a weekly Forum at which Black artists show work directly to buyers. The initials fit "e.t. Communications" and a communications consultancy fits the described work — but nothing links the two, no source connects her to the World Economic Forum, and this encyclopedia asserts no identification whatever.

SOURCES Searched: name plus "E.T. Communications", plus Ethiopia, Kenya, Nairobi, publisher and journalist, and plus "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; New Lines Magazine, "The New Frontier: African Artists Tap Into a Digital Goldrush" (the candidate, recorded as a lead and NOT as an identification)

Pedro Mello CLASS OF 2002

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. "Rasga Mato" leaves no trace of any kind as a Brazilian organisation — not a registration, not a news mention, not an archived site. That is the same shape as Andre CUNHA's "Alldix" and Neil M. TAGARE's "Research4 Inc.". And the name is the second half of the problem: "Pedro Mello" is an extremely common Brazilian name and the search returns several real people — a startup author who wrote "Guia de Sobrevivência do Empreendedor", a coach, people in Mato Grosso — and nothing anchors any of them to Rasga Mato. The accidental resonance this encyclopedia should not fall for: "Rasga Mato" is a Portuguese phrase, and "Mato Grosso" appears in the results for unrelated people — a coincidence of words, not evidence.

SOURCES Searched: "Pedro Mello" and "Mello Pedro"; "Rasga Mato" alone and with Brazil; with the 2002 class year; with the self-attestation pattern. No trace of the organisation. earlier research also recorded "No current public information found"

Said Fuad Abu Zayyad CLASS OF 2002

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. An Incautious researcher would have produced a confident, fully sourced, completely wrong entry. Searched in both name orders, with and without the Middle name, against Palestine and Jordan, and with the self-attestation pattern, per the Alli Waheed proof. Note also that Tarek Aggad and Hania Bitar — this encyclopedia's two traceable Palestinian entries — were both traceable because their organisations were real and public. This entry is the control case.

SOURCES Searched: "Said Fuad Abu Zayyad" and "Abu Zayyad Said Fuad"; "FIRST Holdings" with Palestine and with Jordan; with the 2002 class year; with the self-attestation pattern. Amman Stock Exchange listing for First Jordan Investment Company PLC - no connection. Absent from earlier research

Daniel Schwartz CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. "Dynamica Inc." Returns nothing, and "Daniel Schwartz" is among the most heavily duplicated names this encyclopedia has encountered — it belongs to a well-known restaurant-industry Chief Executive, to a Stanford education researcher, and to many others, none of whom is connected by any source to Dynamica. A third-party GLT compilation gives him as "Daniel I. Schwartz, Founder, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Dynamica Inc." Which supplies a Middle initial this encyclopedia lacks and is otherwise consistent with the entry. This is the Joshua Koh shape in its most acute form: a dead organisation plus one of the commonest name combinations in the English-speaking world. The temptation to attach him to the famous restaurant executive of the same name is exactly the error the two-John-Thorntons trap was recorded to prevent.

SOURCES Searched: name plus Dynamica, plus 2003, and plus "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; third-party GLT compilation (kla.tv) supplying the middle initial "Daniel I. Schwartz", recorded as a LEAD ONLY

H.R.H. Abdelaziz Al-Saoud CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

The entry is dateable and that narrows it sharply: "Secretary General — Office of H.R.H. The Crown Prince and Deputy Prime Minister". In 2003 the Crown Prince and Deputy Prime Minister of Saudi Arabia was Abdullah bin Abdulaziz, who held that position from 1982 until he became King in 2005. So this person ran the office of the man who was about to become King of Saudi Arabia. The hypothesis, stated as a hypothesis and nothing more: a Prince named Abdulaziz who was Secretary General of Crown Prince Abdullah's office in 2003 would most Naturally be Abdulaziz bin Abdullah bin Abdulaziz Al Saud — the Crown Prince's own son. No source found in this encyclopedia confirms that, and it is not asserted. A wrong identification of a member of a reigning Royal House is the most expensive mistake this encyclopedia could make, and the House of Saud contains many Princes named Abdulaziz.

SOURCES Searched: the transliterated name, the office, and the 2003 Crown Prince's court, in English; Saudipedia entries for Abdullah bin Abdulaziz (establishing who held the Crown Prince and Deputy Prime Minister offices in 2003); no source found naming the Secretary General of that office

Joshua Koh CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. "Transcent Ebusiness Pte Ltd" has left no trace — no company record, no archived site, no press mention — which is unsurprising for a Singapore dot-com-era e-business venture named in a 2003 list, but it removes the only handle the entry offers. And the name alone cannot carry the identification: "Joshua Koh" returns several distinct and well-documented Singaporeans — among them a Chief Executive of Commune lifestyle, the furniture retailer, formerly of Koda Ltd, and others at Accenture and the Singapore furniture Industries Council. None of them is linked by any source to Transcent, and this encyclopedia asserts no identification. The temptation is to pick the most prominent match. Do not.

SOURCES Searched: name plus Transcent, plus e-business, plus Singapore, and plus "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; LinkedIn and conference listings for the several unrelated Singaporeans of the same name (recorded as candidates NOT identified)

Kathleen Houlihan CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Nothing was found connecting any Kathleen Houlihan to the organisation in the entry. The entry itself is garbled and that is part of the problem: "US Committee for the United States Development Programme" is not the name of anything. It is almost certainly the US committee for the United Nations Development Programme, with "United Nations" Mistranscribed as "United States" — the same word substituted for itself one line later. That is a New defect shape: not a lost character or a truncation, but a plausible-looking word swap that leaves the entry grammatical and wrong. It is the hardest kind to catch, because nothing about it looks broken. The trap: a different Kathleen Houlihan is a visible American Executive — Founder and Chief Executive of Dream2career and a member of the Forbes coaches Council — and she dominates the search results. Nothing connects her to the UNDP or to the World Economic Forum, and this encyclopedia asserts no identification.

SOURCES Searched: the name with the cell's organisation as printed, with the corrected "United Nations Development Programme", and with "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; UNDP Executive Board and leadership pages (no match); Forbes Coaches Council listing (the trap, recorded as such and NOT as this person)

Nusorn Photpipat CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Neither "Algorithms Co. Ltd" nor the person returns any substantive record. And a conflicting title surfaced that must be recorded as a lead and explicitly not adopted: a third-party compilation of GLT names 1993–2003 gives this person as "Senior Director, multilateral Affairs and human rights" at Thailand's national security Council — an entirely different organisation and sector from this encyclopedia's "Managing Director — Algorithms Co.Ltd". It is not adopted here. But the conflict itself is the finding, and it is testable: either the compilation carries a later, maintained title for the same person — which would make it a fresh instance of the maintained-title defect, in a NON-Forum artefact — or it is a different person, or this encyclopedia is from a different snapshot.

SOURCES Searched: name and organisation, in English, with Thailand, and with "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; third-party GLT compilation (kla.tv), recorded as a LEAD ONLY under the ISGP/Malone rule and NOT adopted

Shark Sen Ding CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. Neither the person nor the organisation exists in any findable record: there is no trace of a "global manufacturers Union Inc." And none of a "Shark Sen Ding". A person recorded only by a self-chosen English nickname plus one of the commonest Chinese surnames is close to unsearchable in principle, not merely in practice — and searching on "shark" returns an ocean of noise about the fish, the appliance brand and the pickup truck. Compare James Ding, also 2003 and also China — a common surname made searchable by a real organisation attached to it.

SOURCES Searched: the full name, inverted name order, the organisation alone, and combinations with China, manufacturing and "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"

Susan Block CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

Nothing was found connecting any Susan Block to Business Development at Bertelsmann Inc. A search on her name surfaces the obituary of a different Susan block — 1967 to 2025, a Pastry Chef and philanthropist of Toledo, Ohio, wife of Allan J. block, Chief Executive of block communications, who before her marriage worked as an Executive Assistant to two New York City entrepreneurs. That is the right birth decade, the right City, and a Media-company surname — and she is not our person. "Block" is her married name, and an Executive Assistant is not a Director of Business Development at Bertelsmann. This is the closest near-miss in the project to the failure that published two living men as dead in volume 1, and it is recorded here so that the next researcher meets the warning before they meet the obituary. Do not Mark this entry Deceased.

SOURCES Searched: name plus Bertelsmann, business development, New York and media executive, and plus "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; ground.news aggregation of the Toledo and Pittsburgh obituaries of Susan Block, 1967-2025 (recorded as THE TRAP, not as this person)

Teresa Peters CLASS OF 2003

NoInfo · role verified 2026

No information found. The organisation is real and is documented: Bridges.org was an international non-profit working on the "digital divide" and on the practical use of information technology for development, active from around 2001 and based in Cape Town and Washington, and it appears in Ict-for-development bibliographies of the period. The person is not. That makes this the Alfredo Espinosa Jiménez shape rather than the Elizabeth Tsehai shape: the organisation is documented and the individual has left no trace, which is the reverse of the more common failure.

SOURCES Searched: name plus Bridges.org, plus digital divide, plus executive director, plus Cape Town and Washington, and plus "Global Leaders for Tomorrow"; ICT4D bibliography entry for Bridges.org (evidencing the organisation only)

Name index

Every entry in this volume, ordered by family name — the view a phone book gives you, which the body deliberately does not. Use it when you know a person's surname but not their country.

Why the body is not ordered this way. Filing 4,299 names by surname means inferring which part of each name is the surname, and across this corpus that inference fails often enough to matter: 636 entries come from countries where the family name may come first, 111 carry particles (de , van , Bin , Al), 155 have four or more parts, and two people (Bono, Midori) have no surname at all. Left unchecked, Constantino De Oliveira Jr files under “Jr” and Victor Li Tzar-Kuoi under “Tzar-Kuoi” instead of Li. The body therefore sorts on the name exactly as printed — no hidden transformation. Here, where a key had to be inferred, it is marked ° and a wrong guess is visible on one line rather than buried in the sequence.

A note on the names themselves, which covers every entry so that no entry has to explain itself. The names in this volume are printed as the Forum's own rosters carried them, and those rosters are not consistent. Given name and family name are sometimes the other way round — the 2012 export put the family name in the given-name column for part of one class, so a peer is listed as Allī Waheed when he is Waheed Allī. Accents were destroyed by that same export, five different ways. Names in non-Latin scripts reach the roster through transliteration, and there is rarely one correct spelling: the same Arabic name can be written Jawa, Djawa or Jawwa, and the roster picked one. Some names arrive truncated or with an element dropped altogether.

Where the correct form could be established, it is the one printed, and the person is filed under it. Where the family name could only be inferred, the index marks it °. Where the roster's own spelling could not be resolved to a person, that is stated in the entry and nothing is guessed. The ordering of each name follows the convention of the country the roster filed the person under, as best it can be determined — which is a judgement, made once per name, and open to correction.

Notes on the record — method, limits and sources

This is a printed rendering of the WEF Global Leaders for Tomorrow roster, 1993–2003, generated from the completed research sweep. Every row in the source file appears here in full — name, status, sectors, country, role, organisation, the researched trajectory and the sources it rests on. Nothing has been abridged. The source file's field order is

Year|FullName|Status|Sectors|Country|Role|Organization|AsOf|Trajectory|Source .

THREE PRESENTATION CHANGES, DECLARED

- 1. Letter case. The research sweep used ALL CAPITALS to flag its own findings, and 2,571 of 4,299 entries carry runs of three or more capitalised words. Those runs are normalised to sentence case for print. Acronyms are preserved by testing how each word behaves elsewhere in the corpus, and multi-word organisation names are restored from the organisation column. Only letter case changes — no word, number, name or claim is altered, and the source files are untouched. Roughly one word per long run may still take the wrong case, usually a common noun keeping a capital.

2. The working notes are not printed. The research sweep wrote its own method into the same field as the account of the person — emphasis marks, icons, cross-references to its methodology file, batch numbers, and running commentary on how each roster cell was read. None of it appears here. What is printed is what was found about the person, and the Sources line beneath it says where that came from. Nothing in this volume rests on evidence the source line does not name. The working notes are not lost: they remain in the WEF Global Leaders for Tomorrow roster, 1993–2003 and in the 47 research batch files behind it, where the audit trail lives. The separation is made by rule, so a sentence of method may occasionally survive into an account.

3. Country spelling. Variant spellings are merged so each country appears once; the table below declares every merge. No other field is normalised.

COUNTRY MERGES APPLIED

APPEARS AS	MERGED FROM
United States	USA · United States of America · United States; Japan
China	People's Republic of China · China, People's Republic of
Hong Kong	Hong Kong SAR · Hong Kong SAR, China · Hong Kong, China
South Korea	Republic of Korea · Korea, Republic of
Russia	Russian Federation
Vietnam	Viet Nam
Czech Republic	Czechia
Palestine	Palestinian Territories
Côte d'Ivoire	Cote d'Ivoire · Cote d'Ivoire · Côte d'Ivoire
Brunei	Brunei Darussalam
United Kingdom	United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland · UK
Country not recorded	entries where the roster carried no country at all — 94 of them. Never silently dropped.

One row reads United States; Japan and is filed under United States. The label chosen is the common reader-facing form — Hong Kong, not Hong Kong SAR; Russia, not Russian Federation — matching the published directory these volumes replace.

STATUS VOCABULARY

VALUE	MEANING	ROWS
Current	The role shown is held now, as at the role verified year on the entry.	810
LastKnown	The most recent role the research could establish; the person may have moved since.	212
NoInfo	No reliable current information was found. This is not a statement about the person.	94
Deceased †	Death established from a named source with a date. Marked with a dagger on the entry.	48

Absence of a death is not evidence of life, and vice versa. A row nobody re-checked will read Current whatever the truth is. An earlier phase of this work recorded living men as dead because an absence of current information, or a same-name relative, was resolved into a death; that is why NoInfo exists as a value and is never quietly upgraded.

CLASS YEAR AND ROLE-CURRENCY DATE ARE DIFFERENT THINGS

Class of 1993 is the year the Forum named that person. Role verified 1993 means the role shown was last confirmed in 1993 and nothing more recent was found. The two are unrelated, and where they coincide the entry is not saying the same thing twice.

THE COUNTING RULE

Rows in this encyclopedia

1,164

This is one of two rosters. It must not be added to the other to produce a headcount — 84 people appear in both programmes. The combined encyclopedia carries the de-duplicated union and states the rule in full.

THE VERBATIM-NAME RULE

FullName is a byte-for-byte copy of the Forum's roster string, defects and all — stripped accents, inverted given and family names, maiden names, initials. That is deliberate: it is what makes each row auditable against the source. Corrections and the forms a person actually used are carried in the trajectory text, not in the name. Search on the roster form, and see the Name index for the family-name view.

KNOWN WEAKNESSES IN THIS DATA

Every one of these is a property of the underlying rosters, not of the research. They are stated here because an encyclopedia that hides them is worse than no encyclopedia.

WEAKNESS

- The sector column has two different resolutions. The 2005–2025 rows were researched against a seven-value vocabulary; the GLT rows and the 2026 class against a sixteen-value one. Other is consequently the second-largest “sector” in the combined tally — an artefact of the old vocabulary, not a finding. Any sector tally spanning both is comparing unlike things.
- The YGL roster is incomplete for its early years. The shortfall is established; the missing names are not. 2015 holds 100 rows against a Forum-stated class of 187 (54%); 2016 is now closed at 121. Roughly 86 people are missing from 2015 and who they are is an open question. Names circulated by third-party aggregator compilations are not carried here and are never cited.
- The coverage trend is not evidence about the Forum. Completeness rises monotonically with recency (54% → 68% → 84% → 98%). That is a property of how the roster was assembled, not of the Forum's candour, and must never be used as the latter.
- There is no 2004. GLT ran to 2003; YGL began in 2005. The gap is real, not a data loss.
- The primary record keeps disappearing. The Forum removes profiles from its own site; it removed the 2003 GLT class list entirely (that press release survives only because an honouree posted his own copy); and Wikipedia's “List of Young Global Leaders” article has been deleted. Absence from the Forum's current site is not evidence of absence from a class.

6 Country is not citizenship, and 106 entries carry no country at all.

THE SOURCE HIERARCHY THIS ENCYCLOPEDIA USES — AND THE ONE IT REFUSES

TIER	SOURCE	STATUS
1	Forum primaries — press releases, annual reports, class pages	Cite
2	An institution announcing its own person — a university, employer or government	Cite
3	Encyclopaedic secondary sources, with their own citations checked	Lead only
4	Aggregator compilations and the sites recycling them	Never. Lead generator; never a source

A name that happens to be true in a source that cannot be trusted is still not a citation. The encyclopedia does not carry a name until it has one of its own.
